'Better Than Transplants'

Artificial Hearts Near

By JOE ALEX MORRIS Jr.
Colonist-Los Angeles Times Service

ROSTOCK, East Germany — In the future, a man with a bad heart will be able to drop it off at a clinic for repairs while he goes his merry way fitted with an artificial substitute.

This is the fantastic and confident prediction of East Germany's leading organ transplant specialist, Dr. Horst Klinkmann. The artificial heart will be ready in three years and will be in clinics within five years, he said in an interview.

He is confident that for moral as well as practical reasons, the artificial heart will win out over the transplant of human organs on either a temporary or permanent basis. "The heart is a relatively simple organ, and using polyurethane as the construction material, there is no problem with rejection at all," said the 36-year-old specialist, who is the first East German ever to get an American professorship.

Most of the patients given heart transplants have died because their bodies ultimately rejected the foreign organ.

Klinkmann returned to Rostock University last year after a year in residence at the University of Utah. While there, he delivered guest lectures in 24 American universities.

He is best known for an artificial kidney he developed in co-operation with Dr. Hans-Juergen Wilke. The membrane employed, which they produce on sausage skin-making machines, is regarded as the best and is now being bought by U.S. firms.

Klinkmann believes medical science has now reached the threshold of its most dramatic era. "Medicine is now developing the way physics and chemistry did at the beginning of the century," he said.

His optimism about the heart is based partly on the fact that it is a muscle, and not a complicated biochemical organ such as the liver or the kidneys. An artificial pump can be built, and the problem or regulating it has already been solved with the Pacemaker.

The great advantage with the artificial heart is that it will allow doctors to remove the natural heart, freeze it, and make the necessary repairs, he said.

" . . . In two-thirds of the cases, the original heart could be returned after it was repaired," he said. "In the other one-third, the people could survive with artificial hearts in their bodies."

Pressure Leak?

Hitch Slows Jettisoning

By JOHN BARBOUR

HOUSTON (AP)—The Apollo 15 astronauts rocketed off the moon Monday with bags full of lunar secrets, linking up with their mothership in orbit around the moon for the first step home, but they ran into temporary trouble.

On the verge of jettisoning their faithful lunar lander Falcon, the same craft that had carried them to the moon and back again, an odd pressure reading was noted between the chambers of the spacecraft.

It posed the question, was there a pressure leak? And where?

Mission Control delayed the jettisoning of the lunar lander for two hours while the crew — astronauts, David Scott, Alfred Worden and James Irwin — performed checks. When no leak was discovered in the command ship, the Falcon was finally dropped away at 6:05 p.m. PDT.

But Falcon did not move out of the way as it should have. Command pilot Scott was about to fire his own manoeuvring jets when he called down to earth:

"She's about 150 feet dead ahead." For reasons not yet determined the lunar craft was still sitting there in the sun in front of them.

Scott informed Mission Control, and officials there quickly radioed back: "Hold the burn, Dave."

They then readjusted the jet firings and Endeavour itself was manoeuvred carefully away from Falcon, which crashed into the moon at 8:04 p.m.

The sudden discrepancy in pressure reading that delayed Falcon's jettison was reminiscent of a Soviet tragedy, the loss of three cosmonauts aboard Soyuz 11 June 30. They were killed when there was a sudden pressure drop in their spaceship during re-entry.

Mission Control in commenting on the problem said the astronauts were in no danger.

If there were a leak, the astronauts had two alternatives. They could have re-

China Rejects Russia On Disarmament Plan

LONDON (Reuter) — China has rejected a Soviet proposal for a disarmament meeting of the five nuclear powers, informed British sources said Monday.

The sources said that China has repeated its proposal for the convening of a worldwide summit conference to discuss disarmament.

Mainland China

Taiwan Accepts New U.S. Policy

From AP, UPI

WASHINGTON — More than 20 years of American opposition to a United Nations seat for Communist China ended Monday with State Secretary William Rogers' announcement that the United States will support UN membership for Peking.

However, part of the new policy will be an American fight against expelling the Nationalist Chinese government based on Taiwan from the world body.

After outlining the reasons he said dictated a change in policy dating to the 1949 Communist takeover of the mainland, Rogers told a news conference:

"The United States accordingly will support action at the General Assembly this fall calling for seating the People's Republic of Communist China. At the same time the United States will oppose any action to expel the Republic of Nationalist China or otherwise deprive it of representation in the United Nations."

In his statement and in answering questions later, the secretary emphasized the Nixon administration belief that the interests of world peace will best be served by UN membership for Peking as well as Taiwan.

The Nationalist government, which Rogers said was fully consulted along with other interested countries before his announcement, indicated it accepts the new U.S. policy and will fight for both its General Assembly seat and its membership on the Security Council.

The Taiwan foreign ministry, while not directly addressing Rogers' statement, said it would base its claim on the UN charter, which among other things specifically names the Republic of China as the representative in the General Assembly and Security Council.

The Republic of China is the official name of the Nationalist government.

This is a turnabout in Taiwan's position, which previously was that the Nationalists would not accept any sort of two-China UN policy, a stand also taken by Peking.

The mainland government was not consulted in advance.

Yugoslavia Next Trip For Trudeau

● Trudeaus wind up visit to Nova Scotia. Page 7.

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister and Mrs. Trudeau will spend part of their holidays in Yugoslavia and while there will likely meet President Tito, a spokesman in Trudeau's office said Monday night.

The spokesman said that if the prime minister meets President Tito, as expected, the possibility of a visit to Canada by the 79-year-old leader will be discussed.

Trudeau's Mother In Hospital

MONTREAL (CP) — Grace Trudeau, 81-year-old mother of Prime Minister Trudeau, was taken to hospital Monday morning but no word was available on her condition.

A spokesman for the Notre Dame hospital said information about Mrs. Trudeau, the former Grace Elliott, would not be released without the family's approval.

Mrs. Trudeau was not able to attend her son's wedding last March because of illness.

Mrs. Trudeau's husband, Charles-Emile Trudeau, a wealthy Montreal businessman, died in 1935 when the prime minister was 15 years old.

British Rolls-Royce Staff Pleased by Lockheed Aid

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. Senate approved a quarter-billion dollar loan guarantee for the bankruptcy-threatened Lockheed Aircraft Corp. by one vote Monday. President Nixon greeted the action with "gratitude and deep satisfaction."

The 49-48 vote giving final congressional approval to legislation permitting the government to guarentee $250 million in bank loans to the giant airplane builder "will contribute greatly to the economic strength of the country as a whole" and "save tens of thousands of jobs," the president said in a statement.

Senate approval of the house-passed measure assured continuation of Lockheed's production of the L1011 Tristar, a mammoth commercial jetliner, and saved the company from what it said would be certain bankruptcy.

In London, relief was expressed. An estimated 10,000 British Rolls-Royce workers are affected.

Rolls-Royce went bankrupt early this year, with the British government taking over its aircraft engines division.

The government guaranteed continued production of the RB.211 jet engine, the power plant for the Tristar, but only if the U.S. government guaranteed Lockheed's survival.

Senate opponents had argued in vain since July 21 when the debate began that a government guarantee would mean a bailout for Lockheed and would violate the free enterprise principle.

Proponents countered that the government normally goes to the aid of all business, big and little, and that it took no risk in guaranteeing the Lockheed loan. But if it did not, they said, it would add to the unemployment problem by putting the Tristar workers on the jobless list.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon has proclaimed the current week National Clown Week.

"Today, as always," Nixon said, "clowns and the spirit they represent are as vital to the maintenance of our humanity as the builders and the growers and the government."

Eskimos Helped By Rare Serum

QUEBEC (CP) — One Fort Chimo Eskimo has died and nine others have been flown south to hospital suffering from botulism poisoning after eating white whale meat which had been dried in the sun.

The condition of the nine survivors was reported as satisfactory Monday after they were treated with a rare serum.

Dr. Normand Tremblay of Fort Chimo, 900 miles north of Montreal, informed the medical centre at Laval University Saturday night that he had 10 patients suffering from poisoning.

By Sunday, one of the patients had died and Dr. Tremblay decided to send the others, including two children, to the Laval hospital in Quebec City and Maisonneuve Hospital in Montreal.

No serum was available in Quebec but Royal Victoria Hospital authorities in Montreal located some at the Connaught laboratory in Toronto. By early Sunday it was on its way to Laval in a Canadian Armed Forces aircraft.

Steel Prices Zoom Higher

PITTSBURGH (AP) — U.S. Steel, the industry pacesetter, announced Monday a price increase averaging eight per cent on virtually all its products, and other leading American companies followed suit. Tht move promised to drive up the cost of all kinds of consumer products, ranging from trucks to toasters, but probably not immediately.

Bethlehem Steel was the first to follow the U.S. Steel lead and Armco Steel was next.

Republic Steel and Youngstown Sheet and Tube fell in line with the others Monday night.

The White House said it is "questionable whether the increase is in the industry's long-run interest." Deputy press secretary Gerald L. Warren said that "price increases of this magnitude and at this time are bound to have an adverse affect on the tonnage of steel produced in the United States and on jobs in the steel industry."

The U.S. Steel increase is intended mainly to offset the cost of a new three-year contract approved barely 12 hours earlier between the industry and the United Steelworkers union, the company said.

Word of the U.S. Steel increase, which is to be spread over five months, came before most of the country's steel production lines were operating again. Anticipating a strike rather than settlement, most steelmakers began shutting down last week, and the startup process is expected to take another 10 days at least.

U.S. Steel said the new United Steelworkers' contract, which provides for a 30-per-cent wage increase spread over three years, would raise its labor costs an estimated 15 per cent.

Crash Error Admitted By Flight Instructor

MORIOKA, Japan (UPI) — An air self-defence force flight instructor's navigational error was blamed Monday for the mid-air collision Friday that killed 162 persons in the worst aviation disaster in history, police said.

Police said Capt. Tamotsu Kuma erroneously led himself and a pilot trainee in another plane to fly too close to a commercial air route.

The trainee's F86 jet fighter collided with the Boeing 727 All Nippon Airways jet, killing all aboard the passenger plane. The fighter pilot, Sgt. 2-C Yoshimi Ichikawa, bailed out safely.

Police said Kuma Monday retracted an earlier statement and admitted his error.

Kuma told police he and Ichikawa were flying in formation and he was unaware of the airliner's course until a few seconds before the collision. Kuma said he was flying about 1.2 miles ahead of Ichikawa, police said.

Kuma said when he saw the commercial plane behind Ichikawa's F86, he banked sharply to the right and pulled up. He said he had instructed Ichikawa to do the same, but it was too late for the trainee to carry out the emergency procedure, police said.

In Tokyo, Prime Minister Eisaku Sato ordered a review of the existing aviation control system and promised compensation to the families of the victims.

Common Problems on Victoria Agenda

Premiers Will Avoid Charter

By IAN STREET
Colonist Legislative Reporter

There will be no bid by provincial premiers who begin two days of meetings here Thursday to revive the Victoria Charter, Premier Bennett indicated Monday.

He was commenting on reports from sources in Eastern Canada which said the premiers would discuss the Victoria Charter on the constitution, drawn up here in mid-June, and later vetoed by Quebec.

Bennett, who as host will be conference chairman, indicated constitutional problems won't be on the agenda for the meetings which will continue behind closed doors through Friday.

Like past meetings of premiers, Bennett added, the conference will deal with problems common to provincial governments across Canada, such as fiscal matters and environmental control.

Most of the premiers are expected to arrive here Wednesday. Bennett will greet them officially on the steps of the legislature before the first closed session begins at 10 a.m. Thursday.

Reporters will be allowed into the conference late Friday when the business has been completed to ask questions of the premiers. Bennett said no opening statements will be issued and no final communique issued at the conference's end.

The Victoria Charter, which proposes a formula for patriating Canada's constitution from Westminster where it must now be amended by the British Parliament, was given provisional approval by provincial premiers and Prime Minister Trudeau here in June.

Jettison Delayed

sealed the command ship hatch, and if that had failed their spacesuits and helmets with their own oxygen pressurization system would have protected them.

The Apollo 15 astronauts were wearing spacesuits for the Falcon jettison specifically because of the Soviet tragedy, and the fact that the spaceship is now thought to be vulnerable during the jettison manoeuvre.

When the astronauts swung out of radio contact behind the moon, they were told to make certain tests — and those tests showed that there was in fact no leak in the command ship. It meant it was all right to shuck Falcon away.

"It's away clean, Houston," Scott reported.

"Hope you let her go gently," said Mission Control. "She was a nice one."

Minutes after they were clear of the little lunar lander, Donald (Deke) Slayton, chief astronaut, radioed that he wanted the two men who had spent the last three days on the moon, Scott and Irwin, to take sleeping pills "so you can really power down for the night."

They entered a sleep period, but did not report whether they had taken the sedatives.

"It's up to Al (the command pilot) who has been in moon orbit for the last three days whether he wants to take one or not," he said.

Earlier in the day things were going smoothly and there was scarcely a hint of trouble.

Falcon blastoff from the Falconnblastoff from the moon via television signals beamed to Earth from a camera left on the lunar surface.

The astronauts hurtled up toward Worden piloting Endeavour.

"Very nice manoeuvring, Endeavour," Scott beamed.

"Hard dock," called out Worden.

"Yes sir, Endeavour," Scott said. "It's nice to be aboard again."

The docking, at 12:10 p.m. PDT, also was televised Earthward by Worden's color television camera in Endeavour.

Barely two hours before, Worden had radioed from orbit around the moon to the little Falcon on the lunar plain: "All right, Falcon, I have you in view."

Them, at 10:11 a.m., came the end of Falcon's 67 hours on the moon, 19 of which were used by Scott and Irwin to prowl the lunar surface by foot and by motor car.

The three astronauts were reunited for the first time in three days, their two craft docked nose to nose.

For two more days they will orbit the moon, conducting photographic and other experiments from some 60 miles above the lunar surface. They will fire their engines again to head back to Earth and a 1:46 p.m. splashdown Saturday in the Pacific.

The liftoff from the moon, where Scott and Irwin roamed mountain, canyon and crater gathering rock samples, was nearly flawless.

Mission Control had radioed them: "I assume you have taken your explorer hats off and put on your pilot hats."

Scott radioed back: "Yes sir. Sure have. Ready to do some flying."

The TV view of the blastoff was all over in a turn of a head, the Falcon's ascent engine igniting and breaking away from the spindly-legged descent stage that acted as its lunar launch pad.

From the Falcon itself blared the United States Air Force anthem: "Off we go, into the wild blue yonder," taped and broadcast by the two air force officers inside.

Their third outing on the moon took four hours and 45 minutes, and added three miles to make a total of 17 covered in the moon buggy Rover. That trusty little vehicle was left behind, its last duty to serve as a mount for the color television camera that beamed to Earth the spectacle of Falcon's blastoff.

Their last expedition took them to the rim of the 1,200-foot-deep Hadley Rille, a mile-wide canyon, and for two hours they dared its very edge, bounding on foot to a sloping terrace formed above the precipice.

There they collected rocks and fragments that could betray how the canyon was formed, whether by lava flow or by some other process not yet determined.

Eagles Shot

WASHINGTON (AP) — At least 565 bald and golden eagles were shot from aircraft in Wyoming in the last seven months, a helicopter pilot told a Senate subcommittee Monday.

Taiwan Accepts U.S. Policy

Rogers said, and has yet to be heard from. It has contended there is one China and Taiwan is an integral part — a province — of the mainland government.

In a statement issued in Peking and Algiers, however, both Communist China and Algeria said they will never accept a two-China policy.

The communique said the "manoeuvres seeking to create two Chinas, or one China and one Taiwan which aim at the independence of Taiwan and pretend that the status of Taiwan remains to be decided, are nothing but deceitful pretense doomed to failure."

The communique followed a visit to mainland China by Algerian Foreign Minister Abdel Aziz Bouteflika.

Underlying Rogers' statement and previous administration moves to ease U.S.-Chinese relations is what he termed "the realities of the world today."

Rogers said of the Peking government: "After all, they represent about one-fourth of the people on the surface of the earth."

The secretary declared "the position of the United States is that if the United Nations is to succeed in its peacekeeping role, it must deal with the realities of the world in which we live."

Japan told the United States Monday it will not block Communist China's admission to the United Nations but will try to prevent Nationalist China's ouster from the world body, foreign ministry officials reported.

Acting Foreign Minister Toshio Kimura briefed U.S. Ambassador Armin H. Meyer on the Japanese position, the officials said.

Kimura did not say clearly that Japan favors the seating of Communist China in the UN Security Council as a permanent member but did say Japan would accept "any decision by a majority."

At United Nations headquarters, Secretary General Thant declined comment on the U.S. decision to vote to seat communist China in the UN assembly.

Thant's spokesman said U.S. Ambassador George Bush called the secretary general from Washington to inform him in advance of the announcement by Rogers later in the day.

Although the Taiwan foreign ministry made no direct comment on the Rogers statement, the Nationalist Chinese ambassador to the U.S., James C. H. Shen, told a San Francisco news conference:

"We are still opposed to Red China in the United Nations. It is like a police department asking criminals to help them."

He declined direct comment on Rogers' announcement, but said it is "wishful thinking" to expect that UN membership would "cause the Chinese Communists to abandon their aggressive, bellicose ways ..."

Shen noted that removal of the Republic of China from the Security Council would require ratification by two-thirds of the General Assembly and all permanent Security Council members.

His own country's legislative body would "have some considerable reluctance to take such a course," Shen said.

One of the realities President Nixon faced was near-certain defeat if he maintained the policy of seeking to keep Communist China out of the UN.

Last year, for the first time, the Communist regime obtained a majority in a bid for a UN seat, although the United States managed to keep Peking out on the so-called important-question issue.

Under this, the admission of Peking was ruled an important question, requiring a two-thirds majority. With that procedure in effect the mainland fell 14 votes short. However, many of those 14 nations indicated they would switch this year.

What makes Marine Drive a good tournament course? Al Balding says: "It's flat and not too long. But it's a really tough driving course. They've got trees planted along both sides of some pretty narrow fairways, and enough doglegs to make a good drive essential for the tournament. "This is a beautiful course with the Fraser River along the south side and the mountains in the distance. I'm looking forward to the tournament here."

Skin Planing Touchy

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I would like to remove a large tattoo from my chest. Your mention of dermabrasion prompts my inquiry. Could this technique for removing superficial skin blemishes be used for a tattoo? Will you outline various methods for removing a large tattoo? — B.C.R.

First let's qualify your mention of dermabrasion as being for "superficial skin blemishes." It is too intricate a process to use for superficial things like pimples or the like.

Dermabrasion (also called skin-planing) entails the removal of outer layers of the skin, but leaving the deeper layers from which new skin will grow.

It is a procedure of precision: rotary steel brushes or comparable instruments are used to remove as much of the surface as can be spared, without destroying the necessary layers below.

It has to be done under anesthesia, and under aseptic (completely sterile) conditions, else the raw surface would pick up all sorts of infections.

It has to be done in a hospital — or, for small skin areas, under conditions comparable to those of a hospital operating room. And after that, bandaging will be required for periods on the order of two or three weeks, until the new skin surface is safely established.

In short, dermabrasion isn't a simple little process that you can have done in a free afternoon.

Dermabrasion, however, is being used to remove tattoos, but since a tattoo involves coloring matter that has been driven into the skin, the depth of penetration has a bearing on how fully the tattoo can be eradicated. I have seen cases of complete removal, but am not willing to say all cases can be that successful. You'd do better to have a dermatologist or plastic surgeon evaluate the prospects in your particular case.

Other methods are removal of the colored area (followed by skin grafting) and retattooing with colors that mask the tattoo.

Nimeiry Threatens Break

Top Soviet Diplom

Expelled from Sud

KHARTOUM (AP) — Angered by Communist press attacks, Sudan ordered the top Soviet diplomat in Khartoum and the Bulgarian ambassador Monday to leave. Earlier, the Sudanese government recalled its ambassador from Moscow, who also acted as envoy to Sofia.

In recalling its ambassador, however, el-Nimeiry halted short of a complete break with the Soviet Union, although he has made clear he will do that if Soviet action makes it necessary.

Ordered out of Sudan within 48 hours was the Soviet counsellor, Mikhael Orlov, who has been Moscow's top man in Khartoum since the ambassador left last month at the end of his assignment. The Bulgarian ambassador is Sooyan Zaimov.

On another front, Joseph Sisco, assistant United States secretary of state, talked in Jerusalem, for 2½ hours with Premier Golda Meir and her principal advisers, trying to find a formula to reopen the Suez canal as a step toward peace in the Middle East.

MOSCOW (AP) — With Romania absent, the Soviet Union and its East European allies held a surprise summit in the Crimea Monday and condemned "right-wing and left-wing opportunism," an apparent attack on Communist China.

In what appeared to be a profound stock-taking after United States President Nixon's announcement that he would visit Peking, Soviet Communist party leader Leonid Brezhnev called the party chiefs of East Germany, Poland, Hungary, Czechoslovakia and Bulgaria to an undisclosed place in the Crimea.

Survival Secret: Pray, Play

SEATTLE (AP) — Gary Anderson, 23, said he prayed and played psychological games with himself as he survived 38 days alone in the wilds of the Yukon Territory.

"I prayed when I got up, I prayed when I went to bed and thanked God for the day," Anderson said at the airport here Monday, one day after a private pilot spotted his SOS signal.

An air search continued near the southern Alaska-Yukon border for Anderson's 55-year-old father. The two became separated June 24 after their light plane crash-landed on the Alsek River.

He said one of his first plans when he got home was to go to a neighborhood tavern and order a pizza.

Nimeiry Threatens Break

Top Soviet Diplomat Expelled from Sudan

KHARTOUM (AP) — Angered by Communist press attacks, Sudan ordered the top Soviet diplomat in Khartoum and the Bulgarian ambassador Monday to leave. Earlier, the Sudanese government recalled its ambassador from Moscow, who also acted as envoy to Sofia.

In recalling its ambassador, however, el-Nimeiry halted short of a complete break with the Soviet Union, although he has made clear he will do that if Soviet action makes it necessary.

Ordered out of Sudan within 48 hours was the Soviet counsellor, Mikhael Orlov, who has been Moscow's top man in Khartoum since the ambassador left last month at the end of his assignment. The Bulgarian ambassador is Sooyan Zaimov.

The government of President Jaafar el-Nimeiry in Khartoum has been seething since the Soviet press mounted an attack on the Sudanese regime for hanging two well-known Communists and launching a drive to arrest every Communist in the country.

In Jerusalem, Israeli sources said Sisco's latest conversations promised to be as tough as those he went through last week with Israel's leaders.

The talks are believed to be dealing with Israel's conditions for a partial withdrawal from the Suez canal so workmen can reopen it. The waterway has been closed by sunken ships since Israel's war in 1967 with Egypt, Jordan and Syria.

Rain Torrents Cause Deaths

NEW YORK (UPI) — Torrential downpours across the Atlantic coast states late Sunday and Monday caused deaths, flooding and traffic problems.

A 15-year-old boy drowned in Rahway, N.J., and a motorcyclist was killed by lightning on the New Jersey Turnpike. Telephone service and transit lines were disrupted in the New York area.

Five persons died in the Little Gunpowder River about seven miles southwest of Belair, Md., when a car went off a bridge. Five persons who tried to rescue them were missing.

A boy drowned in a sewer in Towson, Md., and in Baltimore, Katie Merrill, 46, died when she stepped from a car into a storm sewer. Louis Maciacara, 73, drowned when he fell into water in his flooded basement.

Intelligence Agent Testifies:

Cong Tortured, Killed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — testifying under oath, a former U.S. military intelligence agent Monday described torture and killing of Viet Cong suspects by Americans including the deliberate starvation of one woman and the fatal shooting of his own interpreter by a U.S. Army captain.

"They all died," K. Barton Osborn said of suspects brought into U.S. interrogation centres with his knowledge during the 15 months he served in Vietnam. Asked by newsmen later to estimate the number of deaths, Osborn replied: "Several hundred."

Osborn, now a graduate student at American University in Washington, D.C., testified before the Foreign Operations and Government Information subcommittee of the House Government Operations Committee.

Osborn said he witnessed two "airborne interrogations" in which a suspect was pushed to his death from a flying helicopter so a second suspect would be frightened into talking. The same marine officer did both, he said. Between the first and second incidents, Osborn said, the officer was promoted from first lieutenant to captain.

He said he also saw his female interpreter, a Chinese woman who lived in Heu, shot to death by a U.S. army captain as she returned to Osborn's home from lunch.

"When I asked him why he did it he said the woman was only a 'slope' anyway and that it didn't matter," Osborn testified.

Osborn said most of the acts he described were committed by personnel of the U.S. interrogation group at the Da Nang marine base.

He said a Vietnamese woman was locked in a cage at the unit and given no food. She starved to death, he said.

Ginter Brew Fills In

VANCOUVER (CP) — About 5,000 cases of Uncle Ben's beer from Ben Ginter's Winnipeg brewery were on sale in B.C. liquor stores Monday and the Liquor Control Board had also placed "all you can supply" orders with Olympia Brewing Co. in Washington and O'Keefe's Breweries in Calgary and Edmonton.

Beer has been scarce since the July 19 strike-lockout of 250 brewery workers at Labatt's in New Westminster and Molson's in Vancouver.

You can help, too. Keep your car tuned and those pollution controls checked regularly.

A Challenge to Humanity

A GENTLEMAN WHO HAS BEEN DOING what he can to help alcoholics, William Ogston, is now attempting to expand his humanitarian endeavor to include narcotics addicts. He is trying to raise money to buy a property in Victoria with the idea of adding to the facilities he already operates for the assistance of those who ask for it, but he complains of public indifference.

Mr. Ogston is learning the facts of life, one of which is that the public is distrustful of such private enterprises and apathetic about the whole sad and increasingly shocking problem of addiction, whether it be alcohol or narcotics. He knows by now, it must be supposed, that when he comes to bat in this sort of game he has two strikes against him already.

But perhaps more alarming than the average citizen's lack of concern is the official attitude. Vancouver's Chief Constable John Fisk admits his police force can do little to prevent the rapid increase in narcotics addiction. His officers can only help control the problem, he says. They cannot eliminate it or even reduce it.

Chief Fisk says "we must look to our sociologists and medical people and others in related fields to take the kind of action necessary . . ." People like Mr. Ogston, for example?

The chief constable's suggestion is sound as far as it goes, but he might have added what he must surely believe, that the laws of the land as they exist are an inadequate deterrent to the trafficking in drugs. Right there lies the real problem in suppression.

Chief Fisk says there were an estimated 500 heroin addicts in Vancouver in 1950. Today there are probably 4,000. Some people close to the problem of suppression (or control, if that is the lamentable truth about society's effort) will claim the figure is at least twice that.

They point out that the estimate of addiction can only be based on a wild sort of projection of figures of known users and the awful growth in their number. They maintain the public has been deceived because it only sees the tip of the iceberg. No one, they insist, is about to advertise his addiction, so the total must be ascertained from police records and whatever the medical profession cares to disclose.

If there are 4,000 users in Vancouver and another 1,000 on Vancouver Island it is safe to say there are at least five times that number in the nation. But it would not be unreasonable to suggest this is a conservative estimate; and some authorities will say it is totally unrealistic, with the rate of increase even larger than suspected.

It has been reported that the LeDain commission on the use of drugs may have figures which, for some reason or another, it has not disclosed.

Apathetic or not, the public is going to pay the bill for this ghastly habit, for except in a relatively few cases the user cannot find the money to support his need except through crime or the degradation of prostitution and revolting depravities. Surely a more acceptable course would be a total effort at suppression and cure; with the reinforcement of police forces and a drastic amendment of the law to coincide with provision of specialized hospital care.

Civilized communities should not measure the cost of these things in dollars, although it is inevitable it will enter into the calculation. Action must be determined by a realization of the extent of human misery already existing and by an appreciation of the meaning of the predictions for the future.

To find the right answer the public must have all the facts and figures available. It would be nothing short of criminal to suppress them, for by such dereliction of duty authority would be abetting the most sordid of all the world's nefarious trades.

Litter Every Foot

ONE OF THE MORE interesting projects under the federal Opportunities for Youth program this summer — and it could even be useful — has been a coast-to-coast study of litter by three Dalhousie University students. With a $3,500 grant to support them, they have collected, sorted and counted pieces of litter along highways in all ten provinces. They report that Prince Edward Island is the least littered province, and Alberta the most littered.

Since waste is often considered the mark of affluence, it is somewhat surprising (though pleasantly so) that the students rank British Columbia fourth cleanest among the provinces. But there is another apparent anomaly. British Columbia, which has been a leader in insisting on bottles being returnable, has more empty bottles per mile of highway than any other province, according to their sampling. Perhaps this indeed is symbolic of affluence, since the "worse" provinces must throw away cheaper junk in greater volume. (Broken glass and cigarette packages, in that order, are the most common forms of litter.)

The national average, the students say, is 4,720 pieces of litter a mile, or a piece every 13 inches.

The answer to the problem, as they see it, is anti-litter education. But education won't clean up the mess over any short term. The finding of a piece of litter every foot or so gives realism to a suggestion by British Columbia's diamond-in-the-rough Ben Ginter that litter-collection (together with recycling and a tax on throw-away products) would provide needed work for non-skilled labor and in the summer, for students. Perhaps next summer's Opportunities for Youth program, if there is one, could include roadside clean-up jobs which would give the taxpaying public more for its money than some of the projects in what The (Vancouver) Sun calls "this summer's catastrophe."

Ottawa Offbeat

An Innovative 'News Letter'

By RICHARD JACKSON, Colonist Ottawa Bureau

MAYBE it slipped your notice, but when parliamentarians voted themselves that recent pay raise from an annual $18,000 to $26,000, more than money was involved.

It was a package deal they wrapped up, and in it were a number of privileges and fringe benefits. A whole new parliamentary deal.

One of these fringe benefits, if it escaped your attention the first time around, you are almost certain to be made aware of any day now.

It's the free "bulk" or "householder" mail privilege, and it will bring you, four times a year, a "report from Parliament Hill," or, as some prefer to call it, "Constituency News Letter" from your friendly neighborhood MP.

Before the pay-and-privileges package deal was tied up, the MP had to pay for these mailings, not much, mind you, but it could run anywhere between $100 and $200 for something close to blanket postal coverage of the riding.

Now it's to be all for free.

And if your MP is a bore, or a political hack, or somebody representing you in Ottawa on the strenghth of his lone talent for free-riding in on the leader's coat-tails, his "News Letter" will end up with all your other junk mail. In the garbage. That is, if he has the will and wit to write one.

But if your MP is a politician of intelligence and imagination with a lively and provocative interest in the conduct of the nation's business, then you could be in for some informative and perhaps entertaining reading — even if you are not among his supporters and oppose the policies of his party.

Max Saltsman, seven years New Democratic MP for Waterloo, happens to be such a man. He had to be to win an old Ontario riding that since Confederation has swung more Conservative than Liberal and never, never before, socialist.

He's an independent sort, usually speaking more for himself than for the NDP, and at times has whacked away at the New Dems as hard as any of its critics.

Max Saltsman is different in another way.

He uses his "News Letter from Parliament Hill" to listen instead of talk.

He broke the standard MP "News Letter" style of propagandizing, in both the personal and party sense and set a new fashion of asking his constituents what they thought about the issues of the day instead of telling them what he feels they should be thinking.

His first free "bulk" mail "News Letter" currently is going into the mail to the 38,000 households of his 110,000 constituents, with a playback of response to a questionnaire.

It was an unusual questionnaire in that it asked questions you really wouldn't expect from a New Democratic MP, and that it brought in a thumping 10 per cent response, with 4,000 of the 38,000 households answering.

What was the big worry of the day, he had asked them.

And they told him, in order of concern: unemployment, welfare, inflation and taxes.

New Democrats currently, as traditionally, have been decrying unemployment, campaigning for better welfare standards, downgrading the danger of inflation and calling for increased government spending.

But his constituents were with the NDP only on unemployment being the greatest real and present national danger.

They were against the party on the three other points.

★ ★ ★

The poll, conceded Max Saltsman, showed "an almost universal concern over welfare, how it was damaging society, killing the incentive to work and that perhaps it should be earned as a privilege and not regarded as a right."

And inflation, the third biggest group told him, was a real concern, ranked only after unemployment and welfare.

They were worried about taxes — increased government spending inevitably brings higher taxation, sometimes delayed by deficit financing but unavoidable in the end — which like the response to the welfare and inflation flew in the face of current NDP thinking.

On the controversial MP pay-and-privileges package, 61 per cent were for higher parliamentary salaries limited to six per cent a year. But there were "many" protests about the tax-free expense allowances.

The answers to his Quebec questions were a "surprise."

On separation, 62 per cent didn't believe Quebec was serious, 53 per cent didn't think the province had the right to secede, but only 37 per cent were willing to use force to prevent it. The 63 per cent who wouldn't fight to hold Quebec were willing, though, only to let it go peacefully with strings: the "safeguarding of the St. Lawrence with a provision of a maritime corridor."

But the strongest undercurrent of feeling reflected, the way Max Saltsman read the results, was the sentiment that "if they meant it, Quebec should get out and quit bugging the rest of us." Again it scarcely squares with NDP thinking.

Then Max Saltsman himself doesn't always, nor perhaps even often square with it, which makes him an unusual MP, and an independent mind, currently in short parliamentary supply.

I Beg to Differ

A Look at Something Different

By FRANK LOWE from Montreal

WHILE I realize that today anybody who exhibits any optimism about the future is considered rather kinky, if not downright nuts, I felt that perhaps it was time to write a few optimistic words.

Living, as so many of us do, cooped up in cities, optimism is hard to come by. The news is invariably bad. The air smells. There are too many people. Most of them unfriendly.

But recently I had a chance to look at something different. I took a train ride across the major (using mileage as the determining factor here) part of Canada.

★ ★ ★

It was simply great.

I began to feel better shortly after we cleared the city and started scooting along the countryside. Do you know that out there people actually take the time to wave and smile at you as you roll by?

Not just the kids who still love to wave at passing trains. Men standing on the platforms of the little whistle stops, women sitting in cars waiting for the train to clear the crossing — they invariably gave with a big, happy wave.

How many times, in the city, have you had a stranger smile at you? Let alone wave a friendly greeting?

And talking about friendly people, train passengers rank right up there at the top. At one stop, when I got out to stretch my legs, a man said hello and stopped to chat.

An American, he wanted to see as much of Canada as possible. So he loaded his wife, son and daughter-in-law on the train back east and was rolling west.

"A wonderful country," he enthused. "I wouldn't have missed this for anything."

His wife, being a normal wife, chimed in to say:

"It's a good thing that they have big windows in the bar car or he wouldn't know whether he was in Ontario or Wisconsin."

★ ★ ★

But he just grinned.

Then, of course, there is the country itself. Miles and miles of nothing but miles and miles. For so many years I had been flying over this route I had almost forgotten that fact.

But you can't forget it out in Saskatchewan. That sky — there is so much of it you hardly believe it.

Then there are those hundreds of sloughs. Filled with thousands of ducks. Could it possibly be that there may be some wildlife left after all?

Or did we only imagine, as the train started to climb the Alberta foothills, that we saw some deer at the side of the track, giving us a curious look?

It is also nice to be able to report that the Rockies are still there. Only, again, it has been so long since I looked at them from ground level that I had to learn all over again just how huge and impressive they really are.

As we climbed the grades and wound around through the passes I was glad I was in a comfortable train and not out there on the road with those legions of restless kids.

The Rockies, seen through a window, are a joy to look at. But they must seem menacing and cold to a kid looking at them over the top of his hopefully lifted thumb.

But even being on a train has its nervous moments — especially if you don't like heights. The following morning I woke up shortly after dawn. I clambered to the foot of my bed and zipped up the blind.

Outside there was no sign of land. I was peering straight down into the depths of the madly-swirling Fraser River.

Down came the blind and back into bed I popped.

Because back there as the trip came to its close I could think of all the nice things I had seen — and figure that perhaps life was worth living after all.

"Don't take that one. That's grandma's."

Washington Calling

Great Man in the Crowd?

By MARQUIS CHILDS

HOW do you single out of the crowd a man who can measure up to the fearful demands of the presidency? Is there such a man today? The pessimists, the doubters, the cynics would say no.

Just possibly history can shed a little light on this most troubling of questions when the crowd is so large and confused. In the late 1850s James Buchanan, a Democrat, was a vacillating, timid president who failed to face up to the deep divisions in the country between the slave-holding South and the industrial North. With the government in Washington ineffectual, the drift was steadily toward disruption and breakdown.

The new Republican party had a number of showy candidates, among them conspicuous establishment figures on the Eastern seabord. Out on the prairie in Illinois was a lanky, rather uncouth-looking lawyer who had variable success in politics. Abraham Lincoln was an unknown.

Not only was he unknown but he kept his views very much to himself. To the annoyance of his backers in the East he would not say that he favored emancipation of the slaves. Nor would he go so far as to express opposition to the institution of slavery. This was a careful, deliberate man whose caution irritated the New Left of his day.

Yet, he was nominated at The Wigwam in Chicago as, in a sense, a candidate representing a compromise between the abolitionists and those who continued to believe the union could survive with gradual changes abating the differences between the two regions.

He had refrained as a candidate from further inflaming the national temper. Once in the office he was his own man. Nothing could illustrate his independence better than his response to the letter sent him by his arrogant secretary of state, William C. Seward, saying that since Lincoln was green and inexperienced, he, Seward, would be happy to take over the principal duties of the presidency. Thank you just the same, said Lincoln, but I will manage without your help.

An example closer at hand was the governor of New York in 1932. Franklin D. Roosevelt had shown that he was an adroit politician, winning election as a Democrat in a normally Republican state and over the divisions in his own party.

With his party split a half-dozen ways Roosevelt was a cautious candidate. He even campaigned, once he had the nomination, as a budget balancer, though millions of Americans were out of work. Yet once in the office, having proclaimed in his inaugural address that "we have nothing to fear but fear itself," he took charge and rallied the country behind a program to restore the nation to health.

Whether there is a potential candidate bearing any resemblance to the two men who emerged as such strong presidents must be a subjective judgment. Sen. Harold Hughes of Iowa, who has now taken himself out of the race, seemed to have some of the qualities of a strong man who could on occasion keep his own counsel.

To blame Edmund Muskie for his caution is really blaming him for not wanting to throw away his chance for the nomination. He is the front runner, being sniped at from every side. In the view of this observer he comes closest to being the candidate who could, given the elements of character, bring some unity to the party and prove himself once he is in office.

A few more coups such as President Nixon's impending visit to Peking and the campaign next year may turn on foreign policy and the presidents promise of a generation of peace. Should that be so, with the economy not too flawed, he is likely to be re-elected. And we shall never know whether there was a potential great man among the faces in the crowd.

Object Lesson for Small States

By OTTO VON HABSBURG

THE sensational announcement of the impending visit of the American president to Peking has been a great surprise for those who did not see the signs of the times.

When Richard Nixon and his adviser, Professor Henry Kissinger, entered the White House in January 1969, a new chapter began in American world policy. Till then Washington's attitude was often characterized by a romantic missionary spirit. Wilson and Roosevelt, Eisenhower and Kennedy spoke of a democratic crusade. America, they felt, should give a new meaning to relations between nations. The days of the balance of powers and secret diplomacy were gone.

This noble sentiment was coupled with a perilous overestimation of the country's means. The United States felt responsible for maintaining order everywhere. This illusion could be entertained as long as a crushing armament superiority existed. Vietnam put an end to this dream.

Professor Kissinger's "new realism" takes these facts into account. Metternich's historian knows the dangers of wishful thinking. He understands that the objective laws of power apply to the first state in the world. A risk henceforth will be taken only in the service of tangible interests. Furthermore the paramount power shall never permit the second to crush the third. On the contrary: there exists a solidarity between the champion and the challenger's direct rival. Knowing these thoughts one could foresee that Washington and Peking would meet one day, not to become friends but to give a practical expression to their common interests.

A sideshow to these major events, which reveals strikingly the double moral standards of certain of our holier-than-thou politicians, has been the performance of men in the U.S. Congress, who, while noisily applauding the opening towards the totalitarians of the left, voted in the same breath to cut off deliveries to America's partner Greece, because allegedly it is not too much in a hurry to call free elections.

The greatness of the event of President Nixon's forthcoming trip has almost overshadowed a sombre drama: the dumping of Nationalist China, one of America's oldest and most faithful allies.

Taiwan was always close to Washington. The two countries were tied to each other by treaties and solemn pledges. Even in the last years U.S. leaders had often emphasized, that the Chinese friend would never be abandoned. But today he is dropped under the most humiliating circumstances: the brother-in-arms of yesterday is not even informed, he must hear the decision over the radio.

Many will speak of Washington's perfidy, the same reproach that was leveled against Britain in the 19th century. These complaints are morally justified. One should nevertheless not forget that superpowers have laws of their own, different from those governing nations whose decisions have no world-wide repercussions.

Instead of complaining it would hence be more reasonable to draw conclusions from Free China's tragedy. The small countries do not count when the interests of the big are at stake. Pledges and promises are usually worthless. In the epoch of mass-destruction weapons each one is for himself. Only genuine powers survive.

This is the lesson given to a Europe which lives in a danger zone. It can only be secure if it is united, and hence strong enough to plan its own policy. If it stays as it is it will suffer one day the same tragic fate as America's friends on Taiwan.

But the strongest undercurrent of feeling reflected, the way Max Saltsman read the results, was the sentiment that "if they meant it, Quebec should get out and quit bugging the rest of us." Again it scarcely squares with NDP thinking.

Then Max Saltsman himself doesn't always, nor perhaps even often square with it, which makes him an unusual MP, and an independent mind, currently in short parliamentary supply.

With his party split a half-dozen ways Roosevelt was a cautious candidate. He even campaigned, once he had the nomination, as a budget balancer, though millions of Americans were out of work. Yet once in the office, having proclaimed in his inaugural address that "we have nothing to fear but fear itself," he took charge and rallied the country behind a program to restore the nation to health.

Whether there is a potential candidate bearing any resemblance to the two men who emerged as such strong presidents must be a subjective judgment. Sen. Harold Hughes of Iowa, who has now taken himself out of the race, seemed to have some of the qualities of a strong man who could on occasion keep his own counsel.

To blame Edmund Muskie for his caution is really blaming him for not wanting to throw away his chance for the nomination. He is the front runner, being sniped at from every side. In the view of this observer he comes closest to being the candidate who could, given the elements of character, bring some unity to the party and prove himself once he is in office.

A few more coups such as President Nixon's impending visit to Peking and the campaign next year may turn on foreign policy and the presidents promise of a generation of peace. Should that be so, with the economy not too flawed, he is likely to be re-elected. And we shall never know whether there was a potential great man among the faces in the crowd.

Chou's Statement Lends Weight to Belief that Nixon Visit Will Be Mere Formality

Terms for Ending Vietnam War Already Arranged?

By DENIS WARNER
From Canberra

In the view of one non-aligned Southeast Asia government, the United States and China have already agreed on terms to end the Vietnam war.

And, if this government's appreciation is to be accepted, Henry Kissinger and Chou En-lai have already written the communique that will be published when President Nixon makes his formal visit to Peking.

At first sight, this all seems slightly far-fetched, but now Chou En-lai himself has added weight to the view in an interview with a group of American university students touring China.

"We believe that the first question which must be settled is that of Indochina, and in settling it we will be acting not only in the interests of the Indochinese people but also of the American people," Chou said.

"The thing which in our view is most called for, whether in the United States or abroad, is the withdrawal by the United States of their troops from Vietnam, and the evacuation of troops of other countries which followed the United States in Indochina.

"It can be said that this demand for evacuation is even stronger than the call for restoration of relations between the Chinese and American people."

China's minimum conditions, he revealed, were the evacuation of all American troops not only from Vietnam but from all of Indochina, and not only troops but all personnel and military installations.

This will mean, among other things, an end to Central Intelligence Agency activities with the Meo tribesmen in Laos and to American air support, whether fixed wing or helicopter, for all Vietnamese, Cambodian and Laotian forces. The bombs will stop falling on the Ho Chi Minh trail.

★ ★ ★

Chou did not suggest what concessions might be offered in return, though presumably the United States could not bargain for less than the withdrawal of all North Vietnamese forces from South Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos.

Assuming that Nixon does not intend to go to Peking before the South Vietnamese presidential elections in October, and therefore in effect pull the rug out from under the government of South Vietnam, a settlement on the above lines might have some chance of success.

Since nobody in the past has taken the slightest note of solemnly sworn agreements, however, it will certainly be greeted with some scepticism.

Already the seven-point peace proposal presented by Madame Binh in Paris on July 1, and which Peking supports, has been interpreted to mean not only the withdrawal of American forces but of all effective U.S. aid to Siagon, Phnom Penh and Vientiane.

China may be prepared to suspend its military assistance to North Vietnam if the United States agrees to these terms, but the angry growl with which Hanoi greeted the news of Nixon's impending visit to Peking does not necessarily mean that its own aid to insurgent forces in Laos, Cambodia and South Vietnam would be cut off at the same time.

Peking has been at pains since to make clear that it has no intention of abandoning its support for North Vietnam. Its denunciation of U.S. "imperialism" has been as vigorous as ever.

The imponderable in any U.S.-China deal is what effect it will have on South Vietnam's capacity to go it alone. Nobody knows whether Vietnamization has really worked, or whether urban and rural support cannot be activated for the National Liberation Front at any time.

Some of the indicators, including the defector rate and the falling off in intelligence, suggest that the people are more inclined than ever to sit on the fence.

★ ★ ★

Since Nixon took office the United States has been offering South Vietnam nothing more than a chance to survive. Many American officials saw a survival of a couple of years after the American withdrawal as some sort of "victory."

It will most certainly be seen as a "victory" for Nixon when he goes to the polls next year if the fighting has stopped and South Vietnam is still not under communist rule. The Chinese are not alone in looking towards the settlement of the Vietnam war as a priority task.

What seems to be much farther off than many people believe, however, is the establishment of formal diplomatic relations between Peking and Washington.

When he told the American students that the withdrawal of American forces from Indochina took precedence over any discussion on diplomatic relations, Chou also spelled out quite precisely that China intends to drive the hardest of bargains over Taiwan.

He not only wants the recognition of the People's Republic of China as the sole legal government of the Chinese people, but also demands:

- That the United States should recognize the existence of Taiwan as a province of China in which it has no right to interfere;
- That the United States must withdraw its troops from Taiwan and the Taiwan Straits;
- That the United States must abrogate its treaty with Taiwan.

"This is our position, and we stand by our position," said Chou. "Our position will not change."

Non-acceptance of its seat in the United Nations will be one of the levers China will use to apply pressure on Washington. It will not settle for "two Chinas," or "one China, one Taiwan," or any other similar solution.

Aspirations for Presidency Believed Shattered

Ky Humiliated by Thieu

By GEORGE MCARTHUR, from Saigon

There are sounds of glee in the offices of South Vietnam's President Nguyen Van Thieu. With Byzantine relish, Thieu has politically humbled his longtime rival, Nguyen Cao Ky, whose aspirations of the presidency were shattered by his own ineptness.

Thieu did the job with a display of naked administrative force that dismayed some members of the American establishment. The performance certainly cast considerable doubt on the vital question of whether Thieu will permit an honest presidential election Oct. 3. For the moment, however, Thieu is evidently enjoying his moment of sweet revenge on the once hawkish former air marshal who now coos like a dove.

Ky has been reduced to sending sometimes frantic emissaries to anyone willing or able to help him. Little help seems in the offing.

Thieu worked his revenge on Ky in a complicated bit of manoeuvring just before the final filing date for candidates in the forthcoming elections. Though Ky still has an outside chance to meet the Aug. 4 deadline, his display of weakness was viewed by most South Vietnamese as politically fatal.

★ ★ ★

The scenario began Thursday, July 29, when Thieu formally filed his candidacy papers as did Duong Van Minh, the former general known as Big Minh.

Under the election law jammed through the assembly in June by Thieu, candidates needed the signed and certified endorsements of 40 senators or assemblymen or 100 provincial councillors.

Although this controversial provision had been opposed by Ky as obviously aimed at limiting the number of candidates, he simultaneously said that anyone who could not get the necessary endorsements could not be viewed as a serious candidate anyway.

★ ★ ★

By last weekend Thieu was forcing Ky to regret those

While Big Minh had easily lined up 44 national assemblymen, Ky had been able to get only some 70 provincial signatures by the admission of his own supporters. Even this figure was doubted by some responsible political observers.

KY

Thieu had forestalled Ky by bringing undisguised pressure on the available pool of assemblymen and councillors. Since all the councillors can be dismissed by Thieu-appointed military province chiefs, the task was not difficult.

In some cases Thieu collected signatures on black application forms. Although he did not reveal the number of endorsements on his own filing papers, some Vietnamese newspapers said the president had upwards of 400 signatures.

On Friday, Ky produced 19 provincial councillors who told newsmen they wanted to back the vice president but had already signed papers for Thieu. They appealed to the supreme court to invalidate their initial endorsements to enable them to endorse Ky.

★ ★ ★

Some knowledgeable American officials doubted, however, that Ky could get enough support even if the supreme court ruled in his favor.

And even if Ky did manage to get the necessary signatures many Vietnamese feel that he lost so much "face" in the encounter with Thieu that his always questionable chances were finished.

"Thieu made him look like a fool," one Vietnamese assemblyman said.

★ ★ ★

In the process, however, Thieu strained his relations with U.S. ambassador Ellsworth Bunker.

In the course of the week Thieu met twice with Bunker who also saw Big Minh. At the same time, Deputy Ambassador Samuel Berger was maintaining contact with Ky.

While U.S. spokesmen would give no indication of what transpired in these meetings it was evident that the U.S. officials were urging some solution that would not further damage the credibility of October's elections.

★ ★ ★

Officially, the United States is pledged to the view that "several" candidates should be able to run for the presidency. Unofficially, it is no secret that the U.S. establishment favors Thieu although orders have gone out from Bunker for officials to maintain strict neutrality.

A gloomy view was expressed by an American official who noted that a few Vietnamese were once again openly talking of the possibility of some kind of coup against the government.

"Last month we were betting who would win the election," he said. "Now we are betting on whether there will be an election."

Africa's Odd Man Out Doesn't Give a Hoot

Banda Swims Against Black Tide

By LYNN HEINZERLING
From Zomba, Malawi

This is the home of Africa's "odd man out." President Hastings Kamuzu Banda is known to his people as ngwazi or champion but many African leaders call him a renegade to the black man's cause.

Dr. Banda, a stocky, grey-haired, dark-suited physician turned politician, talks to white South Africans, borrows money from them, trades with them and maintains the only black African embassy in Pretoria. Banda ridicules the Organization of African Unity but maintains Malawi's membership. The OAU is dedicated to ending white-minority rule in Africa.

The Malawi leader trades openly with Rhodesia in violation of the sanctions voted by the United Nations. Some 200,000 Malawians work in Rhodesia, about 100,000 in South Africa at wages Banda puts at $8 to $12 a month.

★ ★ ★

Banda maintains amiable relations also with the Portuguese territory of Mozambique, although the OAU is fighting a guerrilla war there.

He recently completed a new rail link with the Mozambique railway to expedite traffic in both directions. Mozambique ports are his outlet to the outside world.

The Malawi leader says it is "arrant nonsense" for African leaders to oppose Britain's sale of arms to South Africa.

★ ★ ★

"South Africa could conquer all the Africans in East and Central Africa now," says Banda. "Now, without a single plane from Britain, without a single submarine from Britain."

Banda

Banda makes most of his heretical pronouncements to meetings of his Malawi Congress Party, the only political organization in the country, or to parliament. He doesn't like reporters and there is no daily newspaper in Malawi.

★ ★ ★

He admitted at the last session of parliament that he doesn't like to "sit on the fence."

"I never like to quibble, never like to equivocate," he said. "That is not my nature. You will just have to get rid of me if you do not want a man like that."

There isn't much chance of that. Banda's party has a firm grip on the little republic, an oasis of green splashed in season with color — giant poinsettias, orchid trees, flamboyants, jacarandas, hibiscus and bougainvillea.

A constitutional amendment in 1964 gave Banda the right of preventive detention, which he uses.

It also provided for "the doing of such other things as appear to him to be strictly required by the exigencies of the situation in Malawi."

His army of 1,000 and police force of 3,000 still have British expatriates as officers.

Now in his 60s and president for life, Banda can fairly be said to be in full control of Malawi's destiny.

★ ★ ★

He sees that destiny as being tied to white-ruled neighbors which dominate the region's economic and political life.

Banda told the OAU summit meeting in 1964 it couldn't expect Malawi to "cut its own throat" by rejecting political and economic relations with the powers controlling his agricultural exports.

★ ★ ★

The Malawi Congress Party has been unable to give Banda a prosperous economy. One economist says Malawi is strapped but indicates some recent improvement: "Five years ago the economy was terribly weak, now it is just weak."

There are not minerals and little industry so far. The per-capita income is about $70 a year and a slight improvement last year was wiped out by inflation and the three-percent birth rate which will double the population of four and one-half million in about 18 years.

Banda is not afraid to admit conditons are bad.

★ ★ ★

"Economically and financially," he tells his people, "we are not viable." He has started agricultural projects and urges Malawians to cultivate their fields — vegetables, rice, cotton, tea and especially tobacco.

Banda himself grows tobacco and he insists that ministers and civil servants farm on the side.

One other hope is tourism. This is a beautiful country with rolling, green hills, the peaks of Mount Mlanje and Mount Zomba and a lake 350 miles long with 240 kinds of fish. Hotels and roads are being built.

We Need a Jolly Good War!

By DENNIS BRAITHWAITE

Why are we in such trouble today? Because modern-arms technology has made war unthinkable, thereby depriving us of our only hope for a stable, moral, rational and (above all) happy society.

By war, I don't mean brush-fires like Korea and Vietnam and certainly not those tribal dust-ups in Biafra and Pakistan. I am talking about a world war, a geopolitical struggle between modern industrial states or coalitions of modern industrial states. Total war, as it came to be called when the Axis and the Allies were hard at it last time.

During the Second World War, everything was on the upbeat. Our literature, films, plays, radio broadcasts, even the newspapers, had a strong inspirational flavor. Remember Mrs. Miniver? Was there a dry eye in the house when Walter Pidgeon set sail in his little boat to take the boys off the beach at Dunkirk? Didn't every heart swell with pride and determination when Henry Wilcoxon delivered his "people's war" sermon from the bombed-out church in the picture's climactic scene?

★ ★ ★

Were the British ever as popular in all their centuries of history as when the Luftwaffe was doing its damndest to blitz them out of existence? Even the most diehard anti-British Americans finally got to love them. And after June 1941, everybody got to love the Russians. Remember?

We, truly, were the lover generation. We loved our armed forces and cherished the civilian leaders — Churchill, Roosevelt, Chiang Kai-chek, Stalin, de Gaulle even Mackenzie King — who planned the grand strategy of victory. You didn't have to be in uniform to partake of the nation's respect and affection; a job in a war plant would do, or even a PR berth with one of the new government agencies that sprang into existence.

Hitchhikers were picked up without question; if in uniform, they were practically adopted. The same young guys that had been chased off freight trains by the railroad bulls a few years earlier suddenly found themselves wanted, needed, looked up to, listened to.

Labor and industry buried the hatchet. Joint union-management committees became the rage. Practically every day the toilers were entertained in the plant cafeteria and treated to inspirational speeches by war heroes brought home on leave for the purpose.

Food, though rationed, was plentiful enough; and for the first time everybody was eating regularly because everybody was working. Liquor was rationed, but there was a lot of it around and almost any excuse was good enough to hold a party. In fact, for a good many Canadians, certainly those in uniform, there was a blast every night for the whole five and one-half years of the war.

No generation gap, of course, because the young were useful; after all, they did all the fighting. So no matter what wild kind of trouble they got into the adults only smiled indulgently. Kids mattered. What a time it was to be young!

Sex was rampant, yes; but it was good clean participatory sex, not the voyeuristic stuff that's around now. People didn't look at it or talk about it, or drool about it; they did it.

Well, you know what's happening today — the same sort of thing that happened before the war. Everybody just miserable. And this time it looks to be permanent; it seems we have had our last good war, so there's no future for us. We'll just squabble and confront and hate ourselves into oblivion.

Explorers Discover Ship Lost in 1719

RANKIN INLET, N.W.T. (CP) — A team of explorers says it has found the frigate Albany, lost more than 250 years ago in the water of Hudson Bay, on an expedition of trading and exploration.

Eric Disley of Toronto, a spokesman for the seven-man team, said Monday the group found the frigate intact in 27 feet of water and feels confident the sloop Discovery is nearby.

The ships left England about 1718, and sank a year later.

Saskatchewan Halts Pulp Mill

REGINA, Sask. (UPI) — The Saskatchewan government announced Monday it has stopped construction on the Athabasca pulp mill for financial and ecological reasons.

The mill, which was to have been located in northwestern Saskatchewan, would have been the largest mill in North America when completed in 1975.

Premier Alan Blakeney told a special sitting of the provincial legislature that if the mill were not successful the province "would have to find about $149 million."

He added that any miscalculation on pollution control "could cause immeasurable and irreparable damage to one of Western Canada's greatest river systems."

Blakeney said $35 million in debenture sales will be guaranteed by the government should Parsons and Whittemore of New York, developers of the mill, fail to redeem debentures now that the agreement has been cancelled.

Negotiations to terminate the company's agreement are scheduled to begin Friday afternoon.

Blakeney added that "unless this issue can be satisfactorily settled at a reasonably early date, it would be the government's intention to introduce legislation to deal with the matter."

Cancellation of the agreement was one of the issues put forward by the NDP during their recent successful election campaign.

The agreement with Parsons and Whittemore was made by the previous Liberal government.

Blakeney said the government had been offered a higher equity share from its current thirty per cent, but that would have involved more financial risk, which the government was not prepared to take.

B.C. Tel To Cut Projects

VANCOUVER (CP) — B.C. Tel said Sunday it will have to cut back on projected construction and expansion of facilities because its recently awarded rate increase falls "significantly short" of what was needed to meet increasing demands for service.

The Canadian Transport Commission Friday authorized rate increases amounting to $9.4 million in extra revenue for B.C. Tel, just over half the $17 million the company had applied for.

B.C. Tel said it is taking "another hard look" at its capital program.

"It is obvious that adjustments will have to be made in our operations and in our capital program and such adjustments cannot help but have an effect upon our ability to meet customer demands for service," the company said in a prepared statement.

The company predicted its consolidated ordinary share earnings for 1971 would probably show "a modest improvement" over the $5.10 a share paid in 1970, and that a further increase was likely in 1972.

China, Canada Free Of Political Dispute

OTTAWA (CP) — Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield, back from a trip to the People's Republic of China that nearly didn't take place, said Sunday China and its people are well disposed to Canada.

Stanfield, who visited the Chinese cities of Canton, Shanghai and Peking following a trip to Japan and Hong Kong, waited almost seven weeks prior to his departure for the Far East for a response to his application for a visa to enter China.

He received an invitation from the Chinese three hours before he left Vancouver July 15.

He said, however, that it was "very clear in the view of the government of China that it has no political dispute with Canada."

On his return to Vancouver and later in Ottawa Sunday, Stanfield said he had gained valuable impressions of China's leaders and the life of their people.

The highlight of his tour, he said, was the insight obtained into the Chinese government's attitude towards relations with the United States, Japan and matters affecting Canada.

"What do you figure it would cost to replace your front tires? Forty dollars? Fifty? Maybe more?

"Well, that's how much you could save yourself by coming in for this $5.88 wheel alignment.

"You see, when your front wheels are out of alignment, the tire tread will be scuffed off in uneven patches. There may be plenty of miles left in the cord body and in some parts of the tread. But if you've got bald patches caused by poor wheel alignment, the tires have to be scrapped.

"Protecting your tires isn't the only reason to come in for a wheel alignment. Your car will ride better. And handle better too.

"Who needs a wheel alignment? Everybody does, at one time or another. Because as time goes by, normal driving conditions put the front wheels out of true.

"Since correct wheel alignment is so important to you, it is also very important who looks after it for you.

"I think it makes sense to see the Riding System specialists at Firestone. We concentrate on this part of your car. Brakes. Shocks. Balancing. Alignment. And tires, of course.

"As tire people, we have a very special reason to be concerned about your wheel alignment.

"We hate to see tires wear out before their time. Even if they're not ours."

Trudeaus Conclude Nova Scotia Visit

LOUISBOURG, N.S. (CP) — Prime Minister and Mrs. Trudeau finished the Nova Scotia leg of their Atlantic coast tour here Monday and boarded the coast guard ship Sir William Alexander for an overnight voyage to the French island of St. Pierre off the Newfoundland coast.

During the day, they took a 4½-hour refresher course in French-Canadian history. That was the length of their stay at the Louisbourg fortress, a $15.5-million historic reconstruction project, the largest ever attempted in Canada.

Trudeau showed interest in every phase of the vast project, a partial recreation of the one-time citadel of the French power in America. As a result, the Trudeaus' departure was delayed an hour.

Margaret Trudeau, who makes some of her own clothes, appeared most interested in the 18th-century costumes and displays of French antique furniture.

For her Louisbourg visit, she wore a tight-fitting pink jacket and white slacks. She seemed more relaxed than on earlier days of the trip. The prime minister appeared in the completely-casual garb he has worn each day — this time, a yellow pullover blue jeans.

No Forest Dividend

By GEORGE GIBSON
Business Editor

Higher shipments and better prices improved the second quarter performance of B.C. Forest Products Ltd., but not enough for company directors to declare the usual dividend normally due Aug. 1.

B.C. Forest, which operates among other things a sawmill and plywood mill on Gorge Road, and a pulp and paper mill at Crofton, showed net sales of $63 million in the first half of the year, up from $61.8 million in the first half of 1970.

Net earnings for the period were $2.2 million or 51 cents per common share compared with $1.9 million or 42 cents per share.

Although higher, company president Ian Barclay termed first-half earnings "unsatisfactory" in announcing the decision to pass on the dividend. The regular dividend of 75 cents to holders of preferred shares will be paid as usual.

However, there are some brighter days ahead for the Island operations. Victoria sawmill manager Walter Nelson said Monday that slightly more than 1,000 persons were employed here despite the fact that the Point Ellice sawmill is closed due to the weak export market.

The 130 workers laid off last February have been reassigned to the plywood and sawmill operations on Gorge. Eighteen left the company and another eight have joined the new Mackenzie operation near Prince George that will open in mid-September.

An improvement in the export picture will see the Point Ellice operation back in the picture before the end of the year, Nelson predicted.

More than 1,000 are working at Crofton again. The pulp mill is back in operation after a shutdown due to oversupply and a subsequent boiler explosion. Repairs were completed July 22, said company representative John Frisch.

Mine Grads

First class of 20 men will graduate from the B.C. Mining School near Rossland in October after four months of learning fundamentals of the trade.

Basic part of the curriculum is learning how to handle heavy equipment. School site is near the Red Mountain mine.

The second class began this week. The students, from all over the province, are housed in Trail and Rossland.

B.C. education department, the federal Manpower department and the Mining Association of B.C. are joint sponsors of the unique school.

Officials of all three agencies will be on hand Friday, Aug. 13, for the official opening to be conducted by Education Minister Donald Brothers. Mines Minister Frank Richter also will be present.

The school was designed to meet a present and future shortage of properly trained miners.

Peace in U.K.

There seems to be an era of industrial peace descending upon United Kingdom. The British Information Services reports only 1,176 industrial stoppages for the first six months of 1971 compared with 2,355 during the same period in 1970. These figures include stoppages involving more than 10 people and lasting more than one day.

Datsun Price Up for 1972

TORONTO (CP) — A spokesman for Nissan Automobile Co. (Canada) Ltd., distributors of Datsuns, says the 1972 models will show increases of between 2½ and 3 per cent in suggested retail prices. W. P. Haughian, sales administrator, said the price increases will range between $50 and $80 but rear-window defrosters and automatic chokes will be included as standard equipment on 1972 models.

'Four or Five' Bids Entered

Commercial Transport Minister Frank Richter has confirmed the provincial government received "four or five" bids from groups interested in building a natural gas pipeline to serve Vancouver Island.

The minister wasn't available for comment Monday but said in a weekend interview this was the number of bids received by his office when the deadline for submissions passed last Friday.

Richter said he hoped to be able to give details of the bids received sometime later this week. But he added it would likely be "some time" before the government would be in a position to announce which one was successful.

B.C. Hydro announced last week that it was bidding for the contract to bring natural gas from the Westcoast Transmission facility at Williams Lake to the Island via Powell River.

Rail Strike Ends

WASHINGTON (AP) — About 190,000 trainmen won pay increases of nearly $1.50 an hour over 42 months in a United States-wide contract settlement Monday and called off their crippling 18-day strike against 10 railways.

Rail officials said trains will roll quickly, moving tons of stranded food, grain, coal, steel, autos and other shipments in large areas of the South, Mid-west and West affected by the strike.

Labor Secretary J. D. Hodgson said the agreement includes provisions allowing the railways to change work rules for greater efficiency, offsetting some of the costs of the 42 per cent in wage increases over 42 months.

The agreement will increase current average wages to nearly $5 an hour from $3.50 over the life of the contract covering brakemen, conductors, switchmen, firemen and other workers who operate the trains.

King Fisherman entries for the weekend leave no doubts about the big chinook salmon having arrived at Cowichan Bay. Many heavyweights, up to more than 35 pounds, have been taken in the past week and this could be the spot to produce a new chinook leader.

Current leader is Leopold Sauloup with a 48½-pounder from Pedder Bay.

With August here now, the King Fisherman contest enters its fourth section of the six-month-long fishfest with a new round of hidden weight prizes and trophy Prince Buttons up for grabs.

King Fisherman

Chinook Heavies Crowd Cowichan Bay

King Fisherman entries for the weekend leave no doubts about the big chinook salmon having arrived at Cowichan Bay. Many heavyweights, up to more than 35 pounds, have been taken in the past week and this could be the spot to produce a new chinook leader.

Current leader is Leopold Sauloup with a 48½-pounder from Pedder Bay.

With August here now, the King Fisherman contest enters its fourth section of the six-month-long fishfest with a new round of hidden weight prizes and trophy Prince Buttons up for grabs.

Weigh-in stations are asked to make sure that all entries for fish caught in July are in the mail by today.

Try Two Wheels Instead of Four

All healthy Greater Victoria citizens will be encouraged to ride bycycles to work and leave their cars at home on Wednesday, Aug. 11, which comes midway through the city's first Bike Week, to be sponsored by the Youth Commission of Oak Bay.

Stewart Stark, chairman of the organizing committee of the week, estimates that there are 55,000 cyclists in Greater Victoria.

The week begins at 9 a.m. Sunday, Aug. 8 with a bicycle tour of the Saanich Peninsula. The tour will leave Centennial Stadium at the University of Victoria and is divided into fast and slow groups.

A bike forum sponsored by the Capital Region Safety Council will be held at 10 a.m. Wednesday. Those interested should call the council at 385-7241.

Slow bike races in which the last person across the finish line is the winner will begin at 7:30 p.m. Thursday.

Friday evening there will be a Safety Council forum and film program at the Hillside Mall.

Final event of the week will be a bike rally at 7:30 p.m. Saturday. It will move from Centennial Square to Beacon Hill Park, and awards will be presented in the park.

Federal Pollution Study

Pulp Research Placed On Grant List

B.C. Research was the only organization to receive a new grant in a list of pulp and paper research contracts announced this week by the federal environment department.

That contract valued at $50,000, will be used for a new project to investigate microbiological characteristics of pulp and paper mill effluents.

Eight other contracts valued at a total of $495,850 were for continuation of research begun in 1970.

Of these, three went to B.C. Research. These were $77,000 to study the sublethal effects upon fish of bleached kraft mill effluents; $23,500 to study the sources of toxicity and biochemical oxygen demand in the bleached kraft process; and $40,700 to study isolation of toxic constituents from bleached kraft pulp mill effluents.

A contract for $41,000 to study alkaline pulping processes without sulfide was awarded to MacMillan Bloedel Research Ltd.

Other grants included three worth $263,650 to the Pulp and Paper Research Institute of Canada and $50,000 to the Ontario Research Foundation.

The contracts are awarded from a federal fund established a year ago to encourage increased research into water pollution abatement from pulp mills.

The $500,000 allotted to the program in 1970 was increased this year to $1 million a year for five years contingent upon the pulp and paper industry increasing its private funding of such research by at least $1 million over the amount spent in 1970.

Warning Issued On Pill

Capsules called Orange Sunshine — being sold in the Victoria area as LSD — prompted a warning by Cool-Aid Monday.

Staff worker Rick Stamford said six people visited Cool-Aid over the weekend to complain of "bad trips" after taking the bright orange-colored sylindrical capsules, which are being sold from $1 to $3. None required hospital treatment.

Stamford said the capsules are being analyzed for exact content. "They could be very strong acid or mixed with something else," he said, explaining that methamphetamine (speed) or other drugs are often mixed with LSD, many times with bad results.

Debbie's Record Jump Latest Canadian Thrill

From Canadian Press

CALI, Colombia — Debbie Brill of Haney cracked the existing Pan-American Games record Monday with a leap of six feet, seven-eights of an inch to take the women's high jump and Canada's fifth gold medal in three days.

Miss Brill, an 18-year-old science and arts student, easily beat the record of five feet, 10 inches set by American Eleanor Montgomery at Winnipeg four years ago as she ended U.S. domination of the event.

Canada's brilliant women athletes took three gold medals in track and field events Sunday and flyweight Chinese-Canadian weightlifter, Chun Hon Chan, of Montreal, won a gold medal on Saturday.

Brenda Eisler of Vancouver set a new record in winning the women's long jump; Stephanie Berto, also of Vancouver, raced to victory in the 200 metres and Abigail Hoffman of Toronto took the gold medal in the 800 metres.

RECORD TOTAL

Miss Brill's gold medal enabled the team to exceed Canada's entire gold production of four years ago in track and field. At that time, Nancy McCredie of Brampton, in the shot put, Harry Jerome of Vancouver, in the 100 metres, and Andy Boychuk of Oshawa, in the marathon, were the only gold medalists.

The four gold medals are the best ever by Canada's track and field girls in the Pan-Am Games. Previous best total was three at the 1963 Games at Sao Paulo, Brazil.

LONE FAILURE

Miss Brill, who used what she calls the "Brill Bend" similar to the "Fosbury Flop" made famous by Dick Fosbury of the U.S. in winning the gold medal at the 1968 Olympics, failed in a try for the world record at 6' 3¼", held by Iolanda Balas of Romania.

Miss Brill jumps regularly at six feet and her coach, Lionel Pugh of Vancouver, says she should reach 6' 6".

Miss Eisler jumped 21 feet, 1¼ inches, four and-a-quarter inches better than the previous Games mark of 20' 9", set in Winnipeg by Irene Martinez Tartabull of Brazil.

Her nearest competitor was another Brazilian, Silvana das Gracas Pereira, who also surpassed the old mark with a jump of 20' 10".

PENNY LOSES ONE

Mariana Noble Samuels of Cuba was third with a leap of 20' 1¾", edging Penny May of Victoria out of the bronze medal by half an inch. Miss May jumped 20' 1¼".

The Victoria girl made up for this later, however, by taking the bronze medal in the 100-meter hurdles.

"I can't say I was expecting to win but I sure was hoping," said Miss Eisler, a 19-year-old education student at the University of British Columbia.

OWN RECORD MATCHED

Miss Berto, an 18-year-old Olympic veteran, spun off the blocks in the long sprint and fought a stirring duel with Fulgencio Romay to win in 23.5 seconds a clocking that equalled the Games record she set in the heats Saturday.

Miss Berto's team-mate, Patti Loverock of Vancouver, was eighth in 24.9. Miss Romay got the silver medal and Ester Stroy of the United States the bronze.

Miss Hoffman, 24-year-old veteran who has campaigned all over the world in her specialty, outdistanced an American and team-mate Peggy Werthner of Ottawa to win the 800 metres in two minutes, 5.5 seconds.

ANOTHER BRONZE

Miss Werthner, 19, won the bronze medal in 2:06.3.

Miss Hoffman, winner of the 800 metres gold medal in the 1963 Games, defended it four years later in Winnipeg and finished third behind gold medal winner Madeline Manning of the United states.

Sunday, the Americans had to settle for second place, won by Doris Brown of Seattle in 2:05.8.

UNEXPECTED SILVER

In the men's 1500 metres, Bill Smart of Vancouver won a silver medal with a surprising burst of speed in the final stretch.

Marty Liquori and Jim Crawford of the U.S. appeared to have the first two places clinched in the final 50 yards but Smart's sudden move split the two Americans and the Canadian miler took second place by an easy five strides.

Liquori won in a Games-record time of 3:42.1. Smart's 3:43.2 effort was also under the record of 3:43.4 set by American Tom Van Ruden in 1967.

Canada's seventh medal, a bronze, was won by Ain Roost of Toronto in the men's discus. Roost was particularly happy with his throw of 190 feet, 5 inches.

I'm very satisfied considering I haven't been in competition for quite a while," he said.

A FINE DAY

In team sports Sunday, the Canadian contingent didn't lose a game.

The baseball team bunched four of its six hits in the fourth inning to defeat Mexico, 2-1.

The soccer team overwhelmed the Dominican Republic, 4-0; in field hockey the Candians triumphed, 3-0, against Guyana; the men's basketball team defeated Colombia, 88-58, and the women's volleyball team beat Haiti, 3-0.

It was a different story for Canada in team sports Monday, however.

OUCH!

Colombia defeated Canada 2-1, in soccer; the United States downed the Canadian baseball team, 7-1; Brazil defeated Canada, 3-0, in men's volleyball and Mexico edged Canada, 64-61, in women's basketball.

Only the Canadian men's field hockey team came through with a victory by 1-0 over Mexico.

ISLANDERS STAR

Angie Radanovich of Nanaimo was top scorer for the Canadian women's basketball team with 15 points, while Mary Coutts of Victoria had 12 points.

In rowing, Brazil broke Argentina's domination by winning the paired oars with cox. The Canadian pair of Robert Cunliffe of Victoria and John Wilkinson of Kamloops, coxed by Glen Battersby of Delta, was fourth.

U.S. Boosts Lead Over Cuban Team

CALI, Colombia (CP) — United States athletes took three track and field gold medals and dominated the women's gymnastics Monday to finish with a total of five golds for the day and move well ahead of second-place Cuba in the medal standings at the Pan-American games.

BIG EDGE IN GOLD

After three days of competition, the U.S. now has a total of 33 medals — 13 golds, 12 silver and eight bronze.

Cuba has 28, including six gold, 14 silver and eight bronze.

Canada is in third place with 16 medals, including five gold, three silver and eight bronze.

American women won the gold medal for the team all-round gymnastics and then U.S. girls placed first, second and third in the individual championship.

Defending champion Linda Jo Metheny, who won five gold medals at the last Games in Winnipeg, was dethroned by winner Roxanne Pierce.

In track and field, the U.S. won gold medals in the 5000 metres and the men's shot put and climaxed the day with a gold in the decathlon.

Steve Prefontaine ran away with the 5000 metres, whipping his American team-mate, Steve Stageburg, by 75 yards. Mexico's Mario Perez made a game run in trying to catch the Americans and won the bronze medal.

Allan Feuerbach, a six-foot-one, 250-pounder, won the shot put gold, heaving the 16-pound iron ball 64 feet, 10 inches. Fellow-American Karl Salb, a six-foot-four, 290-pounder, beat out Canadian Mike Mercer of Toronto for the silver with a toss of 62' 8".

Mercer took the bronze with 59' 1".

DECATHLON WINNER

Rick Wanamaker from Des Moines, won the two-day decathlon. Veteran Russell Hodge of the U.S. was second and Jesus Mirabal of Cuba was third.

Wanamaker put on a strong spurt in the closing events to win it with a total of 7648 points. hodge scored 7314 points and Mirabal 7295.

Wanamaker won the high jump, javelin and pole vault to boost his total.

Vicettes Manage Vancouver Split

VANCOUVER — Victoria Vicettes split two Sunday games in the Inter-City Senior Women's Softball League.

Victoria Stays Unbeaten In Babe Ruth Tournament

Mike Squires' towering two-run homer gave Victoria Firefighters a 2-1 win over Trail Monday night and a berth in the Pacific Section winners' bracket final of the Babe Ruth 16-to-18-year-old baseball tournament at Royal Athletic Park.

The All-Stars from the Firefighters League will take on the powerful Northern California team from Fruitridge, a suburb of Sacramento.

In the equally exciting first game Monday night, Fruitridge edged South Bay from the defending champion Southern California region, 6-5, in eight innings.

It was the third straight victory for Victoria, who defeated Guam, 15-3, on the opening day of the nine-team, double-knockout tournament.

Firefighters downed Oregon's Crater Lake, 5-1, in one of four Sunday games.

The other three games were in the losers' bracket. Washington, represented by a team from Bellevue, shut out Guam, 11-0, and hammered the weak Alaskans from Ketchikan, 17-0.

In the other game, Oregon outslugged Carson City, 17-15, after losing a 14-4 lead when the Nevadans came up with a 10-run seventh inning.

LINN IN RARE FORM

Lefthanded Andy Linn shared honors with Squires in Victoria's Monday win, holding on in a tense pitching battle with right-hander Rick Babcock. An error preceded Squires' sixth-inning home run which brought a 2-0 lead.

Linn lost his no-hit bid and shutout in the Trail half of the sixth when Gary Picone and Terry McDougaul singled around a sacrifice bunt.

They were the only two hits off Linn, who struck out 10 and walked four.

TRIPLE KEYS WIN

A two-out triple by Larry Rodriquez led to Fruitridge's winning run in the eighth inning. Rodriquez raced home on a wild pitch by reliever Jeff Bennedetti, who came in during Fruitridge's three-run rally in the fifth inning.

Curt Matos, who was the winning pitcher in Northern California's 8-1 win over Bellevue Saturday, picked up his second victory. He came in to relieve in the seventh inning and struck out the side.

Bosox and Dodgers Win Series Openers

Boston Red Sox and Los Angeles Dodgers both closed in Monday as they opened series with the division leaders they are chasing.

Closest of the runners-up in major league baseball, the Bosox moved within four and a half games of the lead in the American League East by burying Baltimore Orioles, 7-4, with a 13-hit attack.

JUST IN TIME

And the Dodgers came up with a three-run ninth inning to get past San Francisco Giants and cut the margin separating them from first place in the National League West to eight games.

Orioles got off to a 4-0 lead in the first inning but Bill Lee came on to relieve Luis Tiant and stopped the leaders cold the rest of the way.

Boston won it with a pair of home runs in the seventh inning a two-run blast by Reggie Smith and a bases-empty clout by Carl Yastrzemski, who had been benched Saturday for weak hitting.

Charlie Fox of the Giants sort of managed himself out of the decision. When the Dodgers started a threat in the ninth inning, he called in Jerry Johnson, who promptly got two outs, to relieve starter John Cumberland.

Then Fox brought in left-handed Steve Hamilton to face the lefthanded-hitting Willie Crawford. But Crawford singled and Pete Garvie won it with a three-run homer.

Defeat came after the Giants had boosted their lead slightly and brought some hope for pursuers in the National League East by sweeping a four-game set with Pittsburgh Pirates.

FREE SWINGING

The sweep ended Sunday with a free-swinging doubleheader win, 11-7 and 8-3. A three-run homer by Willie McCovey and a two-run double by Willie Mays helped win the first game. Rookie Dave Kingman, brought in from Phoenix to give McCovey some rest, hit two two-run homers in the second game.

SIZEABLE GAIN

St. Louis Cardinals didn't get a chance to do anything for themselves on Sunday because they were rained out, but they made the gain a game and a made the gain a game and a half on Monday by taking San Diego Padres, 3-1, with the Pirates idle.

That left the margin only eight games.

In the other divisional race, Oakland Athletics moved 13½ games in front Monday by knocking off the runner-up Kansas City Royals, 2-1.

Laver Upset By Okker In Net Final

QUEBEC (CP) — Winning $20,000 in eight days can be a great feeling, tennis star Tom Okker of The Netherlands found out Sunday.

He turned the trick at the $50,000 Quebec international tennis open, defeating Rod Laver of Australia 6-3, 7-6, 6-7, 6-1 for the $10,000 first prize in singles. The win came right on the heels of a similar $10,000 prize last Sunday at the First National Classic in Louisville, Ky., and boosted the Dutch star's 1971 earnings to well over the $70,000 mark.

Laver, leading money winner on the $1 million, 20-city, World Championship Tennis tour with over $200,000, added $5,000 to that impressive total with his second-place finish.

Over 16,000 fans were attracted to the week-long tournament and saw superlative matches between 30 of the best tennis players in the world. The Quebec tournament was the 11th stop on the tour which travels through North America, Europe, Asia and Australia.

Tennis Seedings Pass First Test

Seeded players all won their way through to the second round of the men's and women's singles when the British Columbia Open tennis championships began at the Victoria Racquet Club Monday.

Seasoned American tournament players dominated the seeding lists in both the open events and the Pacific Northwest Seniors championships, being run in conjunction with the open.

IT WAS EASY

Top-seeded Mike Mullan of Philadelphia cruised past Barry Waters of Victoria, 6-1, 6-2, in the men's singles and top-seeded Hedy Jackson of Portland won by default over Carol Castell of Mexico in the women's singles.

There were some great first-round battles between visiting players.

Robert Benton of California went three tough sets before defeating Hank Moon of California, 7-5, 4-6, 7-6.

Mike Vacchina of Nevada defeated Jose Cambria, one of Spain's leading juniors, 6-4, 6-4, and Juan Ceron of Mexico went down, 2-6, 4-6, to Robert Campbell of Texas.

TOUCH STILL THERE

Veteran Dorothy Cheney, who as "Dodo" Bundy was one of America's leading players 25 years ago, showed she is still a force to be reckoned with as she brushed aside Celia Cousens of Victoria, 6-0, 6-0.

The tournament, sponsored by the B.C. Centennial Committee, ends Saturday.

Lawyer Says Sam Could Gain His Freedom

NEW YORK (AP) — The counsel for major-league baseball players said Monday the Sam McDowell contract dispute with Cleveland Indians must be resolved in court, and predicted McDowell will win his plea to become a free agent.

"The grievance procedure is for the purpose of resolving disputes which arise under the basic agreement between the Major League Baseball Players Association and the club owners," lawyer Dick Moss said.

"The basic agreement, however, specifically excludes individual salary negotiations from its coverage.

"The grievance procedure, therefore has no application, and the issue must be resolved in court where, in my opinion Sam will win."

Moss was commenting on the grievance the Indians filed during the weekend with the Players Association regarding McDowell's request that the Indians declare him a free agent following a breach-of-contract claim involving illegal bonus clauses.

HE'S WAITING

The ace lefthander who has a 10-10 record, had been suspended by the club for failing to report to games last Friday and Saturday.

"It is obvious that when Bowie Kuhn the commissioner of baseball ruled that the bonus provisions of Sam's contract were invalid, he should have required the Cleveland club to renegotiate a valid contract with same," Moss said.

"However, that's not what he's paid for. The clubs pay him to do what they want him to do, and that's what he does.

POINT IN QUESTION

"The question very simply was whether Sam was induced to sign on the basis of bonus promises of the club. If the answer is yes, then his whole contract is invalid because it was fraudulently induced."

On June 11, Kuhn ruled as illegal the bonus clauses by which McDowell's base salary of $72,000 could jump to $90,000 if he won 25 games this season and to $100,000 for 30 victories.

He also could earn an additional $2,000 for pitching 270 innings.

Furlong Leads Jockeys

Kevin Furlong, who did almost all of it on Saturday's card, is the top rider after two days of racing at Sandown Park.

The veteran has had four winners and finished second twice and third three times in 15 rides. And he has shown an ability to handle the quarter horses as well as the thoroughbreds, scoring twice in five rides on the former.

VENTRELLA NEXT

Al Ventrella, who has been coming to Sandown for some years, is next with three winners, all scored while piloting thoroughbreds. He also has two second-place finishes, one among the six thoroughbreds he has ridden and the other among his four quarter-horse mounts.

Seventeen riders have accepted mounts in the first two days, and the number is expected to be increased now that the Yakima Meadows meet has ended.

PALMER EXPECTED

Among the newcomers expected is Jack Palmer, who "rode the card" here last year during the experimental three-day quarter-horse meeting.

Racing resumes tonight with the first post parade at 5. Eight races, five of them for thoroughbreds, are scheduled. The feature event, the Henson Bulldozing Purse, will be run over three furlongs and the field includes thoroughbreds

Laver Upset By Okker In Net Final

QUEBEC (CP) — Winning $20,000 in eight days can be a great feeling, tennis star Tom Okker of The Netherlands found out Sunday.

He turned the trick at the $50,000 Quebec international tennis open, defeating Rod Laver of Australia 6-3, 7-6, 6-7, 6-1 for the $10,000 first prize in singles. The win came right on the heels of a similar $10,000 prize last Sunday at the First National Classic in Louisville, Ky., and boosted the Dutch star's 1971 earnings to well over the $70,000 mark.

Laver, leading money winner on the $1 million, 20-city, World Championship Tennis tour with over $200,000, added $5,000 to that impressive total with his second-place finish.

Over 16,000 fans were attracted to the week-long tournament and saw superlative matches between 30 of the best tennis players in the world. The Quebec tournament was the 11th stop on the tour which travels through North America, Europe, Asia and Australia.

Furlong Leads Jockeys

Kevin Furlong, who did almost all of it on Saturday's card, is the top rider after two days of racing at Sandown Park.

The veteran has had four winners and finished second twice and third three times in 15 rides. And he has shown an ability to handle the quarter horses as well as the thoroughbreds, scoring twice in five rides on the former.

VENTRELLA NEXT

Al Ventrella, who has been coming to Sandown for some years, is next with three winners, all scored while piloting thoroughbreds. He also has two second-place finishes, one among the six thoroughbreds he has ridden and the other among his four quarter-horse mounts.

Seventeen riders have accepted mounts in the first two days, and the number is expected to be increased now that the Yakima Meadows meet has ended.

PALMER EXPECTED

Among the newcomers expected is Jack Palmer, who "rode the card" here last year during the experimental three-day quarter-horse meeting.

Racing resumes tonight with the first post parade at 5. Eight races, five of them for thoroughbreds, are scheduled. The feature event, the Henson Bulldozing Purse, will be run over three furlongs and the field includes thoroughbreds

Strathconas Snag Opener In Lower Island Playoff

Strathcona Hotel, the patsies this season in the Victoria Major Men's Softball League, surprised Seaboard Construction, 3-2, Monday night at Central Park in the opener of the best-of three Lower Island Senior "B" playoff.

Second game of the series, which leads to the provincial tournament, will be played Wednesday night at Central Park starting at 6:45.

Strathconas, losers to Seaboard in 11 of 13 league games, scored twice in the fourth inning to go ahead, 2-1.

Steve Bishop drew a leadoff base on balls, Bob Reid singled and both runners advanced on Roy St. Denis' sacrifice. Glen Kilduff drove in Bishop with a sacrifice fly, moving Reid to third base and Darold Mills followed with a run-scoring single.

WINNING RUN

Wayne King scored what proved to be the winning run in the fifth inning when he singled, took second base on a passed ball and scored on Bishop's double.

Brian Grexton closed the gap in the last inning, leading off with a single and scoring on Dave Low's single after taking second base on a wild pitch.

On Sunday, Bate Construction completed a three-game exhibition sweep over Everett Olys with 3-1 and 5-1 wins at Central Park.

WINNIPEG (CP) — Barry Ardern picked off a Don Jonas pass and ran for an Ottawa touchdown in the fourth quarter as the Rough Riders defeated Winnipeg Blue Bombers, 28-22, in a Canadian Football League interlocking game Monday night.

It was the second Ottawa touchdown in 27 seconds, breaking a second-half pattern of defensive football. The two clubs alternated punts throughout the third quarter until Gerry Organ kicked a 10-yard field goal at 12:59 of the quarter, pulling Ottawa to within two points of the Bombers, 15-13.

RUNNING DID IT

But quarterback Gary Wood went to his running game, which included numerous keepers by the running signal-caller, to march for Ottawa's go-ahead touchdown midway through the final quarter. The Eastern Conference club marched 89 yards in eight plays climaxed by Wood's five-yard romp around right end for the score that gave Ottawa a 20-15 lead.

On the first play from scrimmage after the kickoff, Ardern grabbed off Jonas' pass on the Winnipeg 33-yard line and outraced the quarterback to the end zone.

The line was crossed at 9:03, and the Bombers couldn't get anything started until after Riders added their last point on a punt at 13:47.

Jonas got his team cranked up and then completed four passes, the last one for 26 yards to Jim Thorpe for a touchdown. But there was only 10 seconds remaining and Bombers never got the ball back.

Bombers got off to a great start with Jonas and Bob Larose combining for a 70-yard scoring pass in the fourth minute of play. Jonas converted and kicked a single to put his club ahead, 8-0, midway through the first quarter.

But, at 9:52, speedy Hugh Oldham crossed the Winnipeg line after taking a pass from Wood to score a 67-yard touchdown and the convert made it 8-7.

LEAD REGAINED

Organ got his first field goal in the second minute of the second quarter to put Riders ahead, 10-8. But it was 15-10 for Bombers at half time after Jonas got a point from a field-goal try before throwing a two-yard touchdown pass to Mack Heron.

Bombers got only 18 yards rushing in the second half, and while yielding 122 passing yards in the last two quarters, 74 of them came in that last-seconds thrust which brought the third Winnipeg touchdown.

Several Changes In Lions' Lineup

VANCOUVER — B.C. Lions will have one change on offence and could have as many as three defence newcomers when they meet Edmonton Eskimos in Edmonton on Wednesday night.

Since losing the Canadian Football League opener to Saskatchewan Roughriders, coach Eagle Keys has brought in two imports who played for him last season in Saskatchewan. And he plans to use both against the Eskimos.

HE COULD HELP

Moving in at tight end is Dave Denny, six-feet, three inches and 230 pounds. The former Missouri Southern star is expected to provide the blocking the Lions didn't get from the position in their 10-14 setback. He played well for the Riders and barely lost out to Nolan Bailey.

Inclusion of Denny on offence has moved Jim White back to defensive end, the position he played while starring at Colorado State University.

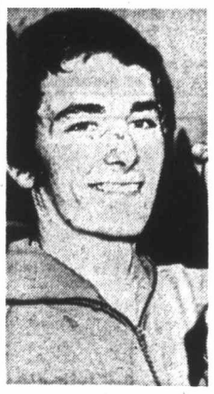
Joining him on the line will be Jim Duke, a six-foot, four-inch 250-pounder who was one of the last players cut by Riders.

Where Duke makes his debut depends on the condition of Gary Robinson's injured foot. If the Canadian end is ready to play, Duke will play tackle alongside Garrett Hunsperger. If Robinson is unable to play, Duke will be at an end position and Bruce Taupier, a 265-pound Canadian who started the season with Montreal Alouettes, will move in at tackle.

SORRELL LOSES

To make room for Denny, claimed last week on waivers, the Lions released tackle Larry Nels, a one-game successor to John Stucky. The decision to use Duke, made Monday, resulted in the release of Henry Sorrell, former Hamilton Tiger-Cat, who played well as a corner linebacker against Saskatchewan but lost out to Cliff Powell, outstanding rookie from Arkansas.

George Anderson, a Canadian rookie from Simon Fraser University who played at end against Riders, will take Sorrell's place at linebacker.



Everton Trial

Bob Bolitho's fine play with Victoria Royals of Western Canada Soccer League and Victoria United of Pacific Coast League hasn't gone unnoticed. The 19-year-old forward is being given a tryout by Everton of the English League's first division. Bolitho, a member of the B.C. high school team which toured Britain earlier this year, will leave Victoria in about three weeks.

Island Team Unbeaten B.C. Champs

SURREY — Cordova Bay Stockers went through the six-team, double-knockout B.C. juvenile girls' softball tournament undefeated to capture the title.

Stockers, who finished the season with a 30-1 record and two ties, trounced Woodfibre on Saturday, 16-1, and got superb pitching from Audra Sinclair on Sunday to beat Nanaimo, 11-0, and Surrey Gilford, 6-0, in the final game. Miss Sinclair had a string of 18 scoreless innings in the tourney, winning all three games for Cordova Bay.

Langford Drywall may have clinched the Stuffy McGinnis Softball League pennant Sunday but there is still an argument about second place.

Bell's Men's Wear guaranteed themselves at least a tie for the runner-up spot Monday night, making three double-plays on the way to a 6-1 win over last-place William Head Steelers at Heywood Avenue Park.

JUST MADE IT

Langford, beaten by Century Inn, 6-2, earlier Sunday, locked up first place by edging Gilmour Construction, 6-5.

Fifth-place Labatts, out of the race for a playoff berth, upset fourth-place Colwood Inn, 4-3, in Sunday's other game.

Third-place Century Inn are four points behind Bells with two games remaining while Bells has one game left — against Langford. The playoff format has first meeting third and second meeting fourth.

Bells pulled off double-plays in the third, fifth and seventh innings while Bob Haldane, pitching his first game this season, allowed four hits before getting last-out relief from Eric Peterson.

Darrell Lorimer drove in three runs with a triple and single.

Royals Again Outscore Spartans

Unbeaten Streak Now Nine Games

VANCOUVER — Victoria Royals stretched their unbeaten streak to nine games Sunday by holding off a determined second-half rally by Vancouver Spartans to post a 4-3 Western Canada Soccer League victory.

It was the fourth win for the Royals in six clashes between the teams this season. Two games were drawn.

Royals, their short-passing game working well, dominated play throughout the first half but could manage only a goal from a penalty kick by Peter Robarts for a 1-0 lead at half time. Centre-forward Ash Valdal made it 2-0 only 17 seconds into the second half with a 20-yard drive and George Hyne got the third goal a few minutes later as Royals continued to attack.

But Spartans, who fought back for a 2-2 tie at Royal Athletic Park a week earlier, again made a spirited recovery with Victor Kodelja and Jeff Hastings scoring to narrow it to 3-2.

However, Jan Bentley made a comeback a tougher proposition for Spartans when he scored to widen the gap to 4-2.

Former Victoria player Ike MacKay scored Vancouver's third goal 10 minutes from time.

Saturday, Royals take on the Prairie Division leaders, Edmonton Eagles, at 7:15 p.m. at Royal Athletic Park. Royals have defeated the Eagles three times, once in Victoria and twice in Edmonton.

A game with Winnipeg Blues of the Prairie Division, scheduled for Sunday at Royal Athletic Park, has been cancelled.

Another Team Title Comes Easily

For Palmer-Nicklaus Partnership

LIGONIER, Pa. (AP) — Arnold Palmer and Jack Nicklaus combined their awesome talents for an easy six-stroke victory Sunday in the successful defence of their title, in the National PGA team Championship with the weather offering the major share of the opposition.

Rain washed out one round Saturday and threatened Sunday to make the waterlogged Laurel Valley Golf Club course unplayable.

The defending champions, who put together Sunday rounds of 65 and 66 for a 72-hole total of 257, were wire-to-wire leaders and were never really threatened, as they finished 27 under par.

Each picked up $20,000 from the total purse of $200,000 as each scored his fourth victory of the season.

Palmer and Nicklaus have an unmatched history of success in team play. Sunday's victory was their third in the last four years of the event and they've combined to win four World Cups for the U.S.

On Sunday, Palmer reeled off three birdies in a four-hole streak on the front nine of the last round, then Nicklaus closed everyone out for certain with birdies on the 10th and 11th holes.

Only 51-year-old Julius Boros and 42-year-old Bill Collins could keep the winners in sight during the morning round, with the National Seniors champ and his partner firing a 63 that cut the Nicklaus-Palmer lead to three strokes.

The long grind caught up with them however. They faltered at the finish and closed with a 69 for a 263 and a tie for second with Australian Bruce Devlin and New Zealand left-hander Bob Charles.

The Devlin-Charles combo had a final 66 in this event in which scoring is based on the better ball of each two-man team on each hole.

A pair of non-winning tour regulars, John Schlee and Bob Smith, tied with Texas-veterans Don January and Miller Barber four fourth place. Both pairs finished with 65 for a 264.

Mike Hill pitched in from about 30 yards on the final hole for a 65 which gave him and his brother, Dave, a 72-hole total of 265 and sixth place.

Nicklaus has now earned $187,763 from 1971 tournaments while Palmer's winnings amount to $184,799.

Slugger Harrelson

Whiffs with Putter

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Ken Harrelson battled a balky putter and struggled to a 76 in his first brush with pro golf Monday, but baseball's erstwhile Hawk promised a subpar round Tuesday.

"I'm going to shoot 68 or 69 tomorrow. I feel super," said Harrelson after the first round of the $20,000 Little American Golf Classic, part of the satellite tour.

Harrelson, who quit Cleveland Indians in June and left a $75,000-yearly baseball salary, ran into three three-putt greens on the par-72, 7,110-yard Firestone North layout.

"My putter was just horrible," said the 29-year-old Harrelson. "That's usually the best part of my game."

NOT TOO STEADY

Harrelson admitted he was "very nervous on the first hole." Starting on the 365-yard 10th, he rammed in a 10-foot putt for one of his three birdies. He also birdied the second and 15th but was over par on the first, fourth and seventh and two over on the par-four ninth.

Harrelson, whose biggest baseball year came with the 1968 Boston Red Sox when he hit .275, hit 35 homers and knocked in 109 runs, drove the ball in the 270-300-yard range all day.

"Playing the way I did today was like going 0-for-4 in baseball," he said. "You've got to come back tomorrow and get them."

Thorne Wins Easily

Charlie Thorne of the Victoria Evergreen Track Club took the "half marathon" event Sunday, running the 13-mile course around Elk and Beaver Lakes in one hour, 18 minutes and 13.7 seconds.

Jim Conway of the Vancouver Olympics was 23.3 seconds behind Thorne while his clubmate, Jack Burnett, was third in 1:19:46 hours. Dr. Wolf Schamberger of Duncan was six seconds behind Burnett.

Of the 15 competitors who started, 13 finished, including Charlie Thorne's brother, Jim, who finished eighth and won the high school award. Ruth Trelawney, in the shorter seven-mile race, was the first woman and first veteran to cross the finish line.

The races were jointly sponsored by the Canadian Legion and the Victoria District Track and Field Association.

Firemen Qu In Heart Ca

Use of a defibrillator and two drugs by firefighters who operate the Saanich fire department's ambulance was unanimously approved Monday night by Saanich council.

The defibrillator and therapy, involving use of the drugs atrophine and xylocaine, could be administered by firemen on their way to hospital with a patient suffering an acute coronary heart attack.

A defibrillator changes an abnormal heart pattern to a normal one by electrical shock.

Council also passed a motion commending Saanich Fire Chief Joe Sutherland for his advice and assistance throughout the training program.

In a letter to council, Dr. George Woodwark, an instructor in the course, said the firemen are proficient in the use of the defibrillator and drugs.

The Saanich municipal ambulance crews now are trained to the level of a nurse who works in a hospital's heart ward — that is to say, they are prepared to cope with almost any type of cardiac emergency without the immediate supervision of a doctor.

In that respect, the Saanich ambulance service is the first in Canada.

Two years ago, the municipal ambulance was equipped with an electrocardiograph that radios patterns of the patient's heart behavior to Royal Jubilee's coronary care ward. Hospital staff was able to make an early diagnosis of the illness and thus have the correct drugs and equipment awaiting the patient's arrival in the emergency ward.

The electrocardiograph is so compact and portable that it can be taken right into the patient's home. Once the electrodes have been attached to the chest, they start sending signals to a receiver in the ambulance, where another transmitter amplifies the signal for reception at Jubilee.

There were questions raised about the legal liability of the municipality of Saanich. It was asked: To what degree would Saanich be responsible if someone claimed he was inadequately or improperly cared for?

However, in recent one legal opinion t been offered suggests would be liable, now has the trained perso the equipment, if it provide such care.

A Jonah Confesses

The Curse of Kitchener

By DON COLLINS

You heard the rumble of thunder over Victoria Sunday, of course

Doesn't happen often in these parts. So everyone hears about it and talks about it and laughs or cries (depending on how they feel about the roll of Mother Nature's drums).

Well, there's one guy who talks about it before it happens.

Me.

That's right.

Saturday afternoon I turned to Jim Brahan, a veteran reporter and seaman who knows a lot about the weather and I told him I could feel a thunderstorm coming — probably by Sunday.

He paid me no heed. Which is usually the best way to treat people who say insane things.

For everyone knows you aren't likely to hear thunder in Victoria more than once every two or three years.

When Brahan heard the first crack of thunder Sunday he thought of me immediately.

"Stay away from me," he said Monday. "You're spooky."

I guess maybe I am. Where the weather is concerned, anyway.

Somehow or other there has long been something between the elements and me that defies explanation. A sort of frightening connection.

It showed itself first when I was very young and was dragged off to a picnic against my will. I had wanted to stay home and play ball with the other kids.

It was a beautiful day. Not a cloud in the sky. But to be spiteful, I told my parents it would rain as soon as we drove the 30 miles to the picnic site.

As soon as the food had been passed around there was a loud crashing sound in the heavens and a river of rain sent everyone scurrying for cover.

"You'll have to do something about that awful child," a relative said afterward to my mother.

Years later strange things began to happen each time I wrote a weather story. I became known as the curse of Kitchener, Ont.

Each time I quoted the weatherman, the opposite would occur. If he said the weekend would be sunny and a treat for holidayers, storms would wash out their tents and ruin their food.

On other occasions the weatherman would tell me there was no snow expected and motorists would become trapped by blizzards.

Things like this, repeated almost daily, cause people to become ill-tempered. There were times when I received threatening phone calls. No one thought of blaming the weatherman. They looked on me as the real culprit.

Then I moved to the West Coast and looked forward to my first winter in Victoria, where snow is seldom seen.

Just before the Christmas holiday, I jokingly told a couple of fellow workers: "Lock your doors — you're going to be snowed in."

Two days later — Boxing Day, 1968 — 18 inches of snow buried Victoria, a record unmatched even in some northern towns.

Some people laughed about my funny prediction. Others, with cars stuck on the side of the road, suggested I get out of town..

I guess that's the way it will always be with me.

Now, about that earthquake . . .

Extension to Royal Oak

Approval in Principle Given Sewer Proposal

Expansion of Saanich's sewer enterprise area into the Royal Oak district was approved in principle Monday night by Saanich council.

However, the motion was passed with the understanding that other areas which Saanich has been committed to servicing would be sewered first. No date was given for the Royal Oak work.

Municipal planner Tom Loney, describing the Royal Oak area to council, said 750 acres of the area is planned for residential development while 330 acres is planned for development other than residential.

Loney said about 1,000 persons live in the areas of Royal Oak where sewerage extension is proposed.

He said the planning department estimates an additional 13,000 persons could eventually live in the areas slated for sewerage.

Boundaries for sewerage, it was pointed out by Loney, would later have to be decided by committee.

Commerce Sought

Loney said roughly 168,000 persons could be accommodated by Saanich's existing sewer enterprise area. Fifty-five thousand persons currently live in the area, he said.

Speaking for the motion, Mayor Hugh Curtis said: "The time has come to make an extension into the Royal Oak area to take advantage of attracting commercial development there.

"We must start to broaden our tax base which we all know has been so narrow and so costly for Saanich residents.

Need Projected

"The present sewer enterprise is on or ahead of schedule.

"We don't want to move in the Royal Oak area at the expense of other areas. It must wait its turn . . ." Curtis said.

The sewer enterprise area was established by a Saanich bylaw as a result of a referendum held during 1968. It is the area within which the municipality has undertaken to provide sewers within a five-year period.

In a recently-published report on residential development, the Saanich planning committee said: "It (the sewer enterprise area) can be readily extended to meet future demands as its main trunks are based on the anticipated demand for a 50-year period.

Project Excluded

"In view of the large supply of land within the sewer enterprise, a decision to expand should not be taken prematurely," the report said.

The area to be sewered under present plans stops just short of Royal Oak.

It does not include the 713-acre Broadmead housing estate and its $13.1 million regional shopping centre which is destined for the east side of Patricia Bay Highway.

Nor does it include the existing commercial areas of Royal Oak, or the site of a planned $10 million shopping centre at Glanford and Patricia Bay Highway.

Council and its public works committee have discussed several times the question of sewer expansion in this area which is the key to a number of future developments.

There were questions raised about the legal liability of the municipality of Saanich. It was asked: To what degree would Saanich be responsible if someone claimed he was inadequately or improperly cared for?

However, in recent months one legal opinion that has been offered suggests Saanich would be liable, now that it has the trained personnel and the equipment, if it did not provide such care.

There also have been suggestions that residents of Greater Victoria in addition to those of Saanich might consider cardiac ambulance care as a legitimate service. However, this is a question that has not been raised at any other municipal council or at the Capital Regional Board.

Lightning Blazes

One forestry official terms the recent outbreak of fires at Lake Cowichan "the biggest since 1963."

More than 15 lightning fires were reported Saturday and Sunday. Ten were controlled by the Lake Cowichan forest service while the remainder was turned over to Port Alberni, Parksville and Duncan.

Ten fires in the Lake Cowichan district did not cover a total of more than one acre.

"Three were patrolled from the air and extinguished themselves; six have crews working on them now, and the other was extinguished by a forest service airplane," said the spakesman Monday.

Missing Boats Part of Plot?

Is there a stolen boat ring operating in the Sidney area?

Speculation about such an illegal operation arose Monday after the RCMP reported two boats stolen from the Lands End Road area and said one apparently was used to tow away the other, as happened during the July 17-18 weekend when two boats were taken from Breakwater Marina at the foot of Beacon Avenue.

More valuable of the two taken this past weekend was a $5,000, 17-foot inboard-outboard Glascraft vessel with a full canvas top. It has a white hull, cream top, 155-horsepower motor and number 14K19274. The owner is David Duncan, 822 Lands End.

The other was a $300 yellow glass fibre catamaran, which has no motor and is owned by Alfred Deans, 1565 Lands End.

The pleasure craft taken July 17-18 were a 17-foot Thermoglas vessel and an 18-foot cabin cruiser, worth a total of $6,500. That, with the two taken more recently, makes a total loss of $11,800.

Sidney RCMP said an RCMP boat made a thorough search of the Sidney area Monday without success. They said the two boats taken earlier were still missing and declined to speculate on whether stolen boats were being taken to the U.S. or to another part of B.C. — but they asked that any information be phoned to their office at 656-3931.

Talks Continue

Settlement Hopes Rise For Police

By BRUCE LOWTHER

Hope for an early settlement of the long-deadlocked Victoria police contract dispute rose Monday when the two sides spent more than seven hours talking to a B.C. mediation officer, then agreed to continue the talks later this week.

Mediation officer Clark Gilmour spent the time shuttling between two offices in the Victoria police station, with a six-member group in one representing the police union and four men in the other representing the police commission.

When it was over, commission spokesman Edwin E. Pearlman and union official Kenneth Horsman issued separate statements which said the same thing — various areas were explored as a basis for settlement, most of them wages, and the talks probably will continue Wednesday.

Gilmour is scheduled to conduct a similar shuttle service the same day between the Saanich police association and commission.

Pearlman said no wage offers were made by the city group but no other details of the talks were given.

Wages are the key to the dispute, with all four police unions in Greater Victoria seeking pay parity with Vancouver-area police and independent arbitration rather than the B.C. Mediation Commission, if Gilmour can't work out settlements acceptable to all.

Victoria's last offer was a two-year pact, twice as long as the union requested, with a 5-per-cent raise each six months. The last Saanich proposal was 5 per cent each six months for 18 months. The contracts will be retroactive to last Jan. 1.

'Telling About Jesus'

Several people in a car were driving by 4973 Old West Saanich Road in Saanich Monday morning on their way to a funeral when five people with two dogs suddenly ran out of the driveway there and blocked the vehicle.

Those facts were given Monday afternoon in Victoria Provincial Court to Judge William Ostler by prosecutor John Macintyre after one of the five, Randy Cummins, 24, of 4973 Old West Saanich, pleaded guilty to a charge of causing a disturbance by impeding other persons.

Cummins' explanation of what the prosecutor called a bizarre case was : "We were out there stopping traffic . . . we were trying to tell the people about Jesus."

Macintyre said a girl stood screaming and waving her arms in front of the car while Cummins "climbed in to the car on top of the driver, shouting, swearing and waving a Bible in one hand."

'Souls Safe'

He said the people in the car pleaded to be allowed to go and the driver eventually worked loose and called police. Before Cummins was subdued in a struggle, said Macintyre, he was seen by police instructing an Alsatian dog to "attack" and "kill."

Cummins told the judge he and the girl "felt those people's souls were on the way to destruction and we wanted to stop them, tell them."

He added: "I believe the people that know Jesus Christ, their souls are not on the way to destruction. Their souls are safe. I know if they (those in the car) had found that way, I was hoping they would be there with me, trying to tell others."

Ostler remanded Cummins to today for sentence and asked for a doctor's report. He did this after telling Cummins:

"You see, any cause, no matter how worthy or how much one believes in it, does not justify breaking the law or disturbing other persons in this way."

Un-Agency Workers Aid By Listening

By BARBARA McLINTOCK

Victoria's new crisis telephone line, Need, handled 900 calls in its first 80 days of operation, co-ordinator David Stewart said Friday.

Stewart told a meeting of Victoria Parents without Partners Group that most callers were between the ages of 22 and 60 with high concentrations in the age groups 40 to 60, and 22 to 30.

Teenagers and young people have been skeptical of the service, officially called the Crisis Intervention and Public Information Service of Greater Victoria. He said he felt this was because people of that age were generally suspicious of anything that smacked of "structure" or "social agencies."

"We call ourselves an un-agency," he said, adding he felt they differed from other social agencies in that they were available 24 hours a day, seven days a week, and allowed anonymity if the caller wished.

About 40 per cent of their clients have identified themselves and have been referred to other social agencies, Stewart said. Sometimes crisis line volunteers have made the contact for clients who were nervous about approaching social workers.

The crisis line serves as "a point of human contact for anybody who needs it," he said.

He explained that people have five different types of need, each of which must be satisfied before a person can go on to seeking satisfaction on the next highest level.

Most basic needs are phsiological, he said, such as food, shelter, warmth and sex. When a person has satisfied those, he begins to look for safety and for people he can trust, he said.

The next level of need is the need for belonging and acceptance; then the need for achievement, esteem and need to become a self-actualizing person, which usually involves trying to become like some person one admired.

Main duty of the Need volunteers is to be active listeners and sounding boards for the telephone callers, Stewart said. Volunteers never give callers their last name, nor do they ever meet them in person.

They do not give advice or tell a caller what to do but they may help him see what his alternatives are. They always give "concerned personal attention," he said.

The volunteers do not consider there to be such a thing as a "crank call," he noted. They assume that even the crank callers really want to know what would happen if they had a problem.

A total of 70 volunteers a week man the telephones at the centre, each for about four hours. They work in pairs and always have a list of phone numbers they may call for help or advice if they need it.

Volunteers are carefully screened and trained before they begin work, then receive on-the-job training with supervisors listening to their conversations.

In-service training programs are also held monthly for all volunteers, who range in age from 18 to 65.

During the summer students being paid from an Opportunities for Youth grant are manning the phones from midnight to 8 a.m.

The grant is also paying other expenses for the crisis line but after September its sole source of income will be private donations.

The crisis line number is 386-6323.

Rehabilitation Hospital Volunteers

Helpers Need Push

MONTREAL (CP) — Riding herd on hospital volunteers is anything but the relaxed Junior League-type job it might appear to be, says Ruth McBride, director of volunteers at the Montreal Rehabilitation Institute.

"You've got to be tough, discreet and diplomatic all at the same time," she explained in an interview.

Mrs. McBride recalled with a chuckle an incident when several volunteers were late and she went into the cloakroom to tell them to start hustling.

"As I walked in, I heard one of them mutter under her breath: "There's that damned sergeant-major again."

"Once a woman begins volunteer work, we have to emphasize to her that the hospital staff suffers if she doesn't show up for work regularly."

Absenteeism is one of the major problems facing directors of volunteers.

"I know they try desperately to get here and they always have good excuses," Mrs. McBride said with a smile, "but that doesn't help when the coffee shop is scheduled to open at 9:30 and two volunteers call in at 9 to say they can't make it."

At present there are 157 volunteers, including two men, on the roll at the institute. Many of them are teenagers who couldn't find paying jobs.

Year-round adult volunteers are expected to work one-half day a week but the teenagers put in two full days.

Most of the institute's patients are mobile and undergoing intensive physiotherapy or occupational therapy.

"There is one thing I have to watch closely," Mrs. McBride said. "The patients are encouraged to wear shorts and I have to try to make sure, during the interview, that the volunteer isn't going to be overly-sensitive about the disability.

"I had one volunteer working in the coffee shop that both staff and patients use. One day a patient who had been badly burned came in for coffee. The volunteer told me she just couldn't stand it any longer."

As Mrs. McBride, who has lost both legs and works from a wheelchair, said: "Everytime I go up there to the therapy rooms, I stop and think 'My God, how lucky I am'."

There is a constant need for more volunteers in just about every hospital. While some of the tasks may not be exciting, most volunteers enjoy working in gift shops and libraries.

Not wanted, however, are frivolous volunteers who consider themselves free to come and go as the mood strikes them.

"I have rules and regulations," Mrs. McBride said, "I have to. Being director of volunteers is a challenging and responsible job."

Aged Housed

TORONTO (CP) — Metropolitan Toronto's program to house elderly people in private households has proved to contain "good potential" for providing care for the aged, Metro Housing Commissioner Arthur Varcoe said. The program has placed 40 people aged 65 and over in private households at $140 a month.

Ugly Girl No Loser

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: May I say a word to "Star Crossed," the woman with the homely daughter? I'm something of an authority on the subject, because I too had a homely daughter. But worse yet, I had a gorgeous son. Wherever he went, heads turned, people raved. Everyone gave into him, he never had to do anything — just stand there.

The girl, God love her, was so plain I couldn't believe she would ever be presentable. The poor thing didn't have a single redeeming feature. I really worried that she would be miserable and lonely because she was so unattractive. When the two kids were together people just shook their heads. I knew what they were thinking.

Today, they are both teenagers. The boy is more gorgeous than ever — spoiled rotten, lazy and conceited. He just gets by in school and is still standing around letting people feast their eyes on the local Adonis. The girl is a straight A student, an excellent musician, and an outstanding swimmer. She has a winning personality and a world of friends. Her looks? Nobody pays any attention. Her warmth and personality take over. We will never have to worry about our daughter making it in this world. Our beautiful son, I'm afraid, is going to have a very rough time — Mama in San Antonio.

Dear Mama San: Your letter is proof that good looks can be a handicap — and the absence of beauty can be a blessing. Your daughter might not have been such an accomplished young lady had she been a beauty. And your son — well, you know the score there, dear, so I won't rub salt in the wound. If the boy is lucky, some plain but special girl (like his sister) may marry him and help him make his way in the world.

□

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a middle-aged widow. I spent 20 years with a drunken nut who made my life hell. After he died I swore I'd never look at another man.

A few months ago, out of the clear blue sky, I met a fine gentleman, who is everything I've been dreaming about all my life. I fell head-over-heels in love and the feeling is mutual. Now for the hair in the gravy. He's married.

He tells me his wife means nothing to him. He never gets a decent meal at home, let alone love. She is a slob and a bore. The problem is he doesn't know how to go about telling her he wants out of their marriage. You are awfully good with words, Ann. Will you put together the right ones? Thank you. — Dynamite Lil.

Dear Lil: You want me to put together some words so you can give them to your married lover so he can present them to his wife? Sorry, dear — you rattled the wrong cage. If Mr. Everything wanted to marry you he'd have no trouble finding the right words.

Canadian Births Hold Line

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's birth rate in the last 12 months has held almost steady compared with the previous year, Stastics Canada has reported.

The rate for the 12 months ending with June, 1971, was 17.4 per 1,000 of population, down only marginally from 17.5 in the previous 12 months. In the 12 months ended June, 1969, it was 17.7.

The agency reported that 32,477 births were registered in provincial offices in June this year, compared with 32,146 a year earlier. Because of the slightly larger total population, the birth rate for the month remained unchanged at 18.3.

The agency also reported that 17,343 marriages were registered in June this year, down from 17,557 in June last year. There were 13,242 deaths recorded, up from 12,910 in June, 1970.

Heritage Study

TORONTO (CP) — Nearly 200 high school students from Ontario are travelling across Canada this summer — and they are not hitch-hiking. The Society for The Study of the Heritage of Canada, assisted by a government grant, is taking the students in two groups across Canada by bus, camping and staying at university residences along the way. The fare is $189.

Opera Singer Dies

LONDON (CP) — The British opera world has been saddened by the death at 32 of Canadian soprano Annon Lee Silver, described by organizers of the Glyndebourne opera as one of the most promising singers of her generation.

Miss Silver, a native of Glace Bay, N.S., died of cancer July 28 in a London hospital. She had been ill for several months and her last appearance was at an invitation concert in a London church last April. Her body will be flown to Canada Tuesday for burial in her home town and there will be a memorial service later in London.

Officials at Glyndebourne, the sussex County mansion where a summer opera festival is staged each year, said the Canadian girl was "on the threshold of a very fine international career."

The Times incorporates the Glyndebourne tribute in its obituary of Miss Silver published today, adding that she had a voice of "unmistakable individual quality" and an "endearing personality."

After graduating from Mount Allison University in Sackville, N.B., Miss Silver won a Canada Council grant and a Beaverbrook scholarship to study at London's Royal College of Music.

She made her debut at Glyndebourne in 1963 in Monteverdi's L'Incoronazione de Poppea, singing the role of Amor. After several successful seasons in Sussex, she created the role of Atalanta in the 1970 British opera The Rising of the Moon by Nicolas Maw — a part she was to have sung again in this year's festival.

Miss Silver appeared at Expo 67 with the Montreal Symphony and made several recordings for Canadian radio and TV.

She sang with many distinguished musical figures, including violinist Yehudi Menuhin and veteran conductor sir Adrian Boult.

She was married to London pianist Ronald Lumsden and leaves a son, Gavin, 5.

Miss Began will meet with bureau of Indian affairs officials at Washington for several weeks this fall, then travel to various Indian communities.

Wage Laws In One Act

Chabot's Stand Appalls Women

Minimum wage laws for males and females in B.C. will likely be combined into one act quite soon, Labor Minister James Chabot said Monday.

Chabot made the prediction as he met with representatives from Victoria Voice of Women, Victoria Women's Caucus and Thomas More Centre.

Already, he said, wages are comparable for both sexes in B.C. and although the men and women are listed under separate acts, there are not separate standards. Linda Sproule-Jones, one of VOW representatives, alleged, however, that more categories of women were excluded from the laws than categories of men.

The women, Mrs. Sproule-Jones, Kathleen Ruff, also from VOW, Fiona Gow from the Women's Caucus, and Mary-Jo Dixon from the Thomas More Centre, met with Chabot in his office for about 50 minutes to discuss the Sandringham hospital strike situation and other problems of women in the labor force.

The four women, said after the meeting they were "extremely disappointed ... appalled ... flabbergasted" by the meeting and by Chabot's attitude

"He showed no understanding of the human element involved and no sympathy to the problems of working women," said Mrs Ruff.

Chabot had reiterated his stand that he has no authority to intervene in the strike of 28 nurses' aides at Sandringham private hospital at 1650 Fort.

As well, he said, he did not believe in compulsion and what the women wanted him to do was force the owners to sign a contract.

He would, he said, ask Health Minister Ralph Loffmark to investigate recent charges of mismanagement and inefficiency at the hospital.

During the meeting, Mrs. Ruff said the Sandringham strike was an example to all the women of B.C. who were providing a "cheap labor supply" not to try to organize to improve their lot, not to have hope they could better their condition. It was obvious they could not, she said, because the government would not support them against the employers.

After the meeting, Chabot said he had found it "productive."

"Any exchange of ideas is always productive," he said.

Mrs. Ferro does repair job on racing car

'I Do Body Work Too, But Enjoy Engines More'

Mom's Life a Drag Strip

Colonist-Los Angeles Times Service

GARDENA, Calif. — After Charlene Ferro finishes the dishes and puts the kids to bed at night, she heads for the family garage to work on her racing car.

After Charlene's husband Ed goes to work in the morning, she tidies up their Gardena home and heads for the garage to work on HIS racing car.

On Sundays, she and Ed and children Danny, Debbie, Diane and Dawn Dee go racing. Charlene in the Women's Racing Association oval races and Ed in the rough-and-tumble figure 8 criss-cross at nearby Ascot Park. The children, ages five to 11, form a private cheering section and collect the trophies.

"Ed pretty well leaves me alone with my car," said Mrs. Ferro setting aside her welding torch. "You can see, I do the body work, too, but I enjoy working on the engines more.

"I rebuilt Ed's engine myself while he was building another car after his was 'totalled' in an intersection crash at Ascot. I'd never done anything mechanical like this before we were married, but I picked it up watching Ed.

"It sure beats sitting around at home. I used to sit in the house, wondering what to do, while Ed was working in the garage. So, I joined him."

Apparently her mechanical and driving aptitudes mesh, for Mrs. Ferro is the current association point leader with 10 main event victories in her last 13 starts. Ed is leading in the expert division of the figure 8s.

The women race 20-lap main events and eight-lap heat races on Ascot's quarter-mile dirt oval, hitting speeds of about 70 miles per hour on the short straightaways before sliding through the turns.

Both Charlene and Ed race '65 Chevelles, but on the occasions when Ed runs in a NASCAR race, guess who's car he drives — his wife's.

"Her car runs faster and is set up better for oval races," said Ed with unblushing pride in his wife's accomplishments. "She can take an engine apart and rebuild it from start to finish.

"She started out doing little things to help me and she learned quickly. One day, about four years ago, I left a torn-down engine on the engine stand when I went to work. When I came home she'd pulled the pan, put in new rod bearings and replaced the pan. Since then, she's learned to do it all."

Charlene also is chairman of the association, a group of about 25 women who race twice a month at Ascot.

They race for purses of about $500 a program, with the winning driver getting from $55 to $85.

"It's not a lot of money, but if you're winning, it's a nice way to pay for your hobby," explained Mrs. Ferro. "And, like I said, it keeps me occupied, and keeps the kids interested in what the family's doing."

One thing she isn't interested in — women's lib. She has no ambitions to compete against men at the racetrack.

"The men have problems enough without women trying to move in on their races," she believes. "I don't like to see women pushing their way in. We women have our fun, with our own racing, and I think that's plenty good enough."

Centennial Dahlia Garden Open to Public Wednesday

Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis will officiate at dedication ceremony of the display and trial dahlia Garden in Saanich at 7 p.m. Wednesday.

Several Saanich aldermen, members of the Greater Victoria centennial committee and other invited guests will also attend the public ceremony at the garden in Lambrick Park.

The garden is the centennial project of the Victoria Glad and Dahlia Society. It is hoped it will eventually be a trial garden where any dahlia grower on the North American continent may ship his seedlings to be grown for trial purposes under local weather conditions.

It was hoped the dahlias would be in full bloom by the time of the dedication ceremony, but Mrs. Dorothy Eveleigh, president of the society, said Monday the late summer had slowed down the growth.

However, she said, some were blooming, and society members were putting in some last-minute work on the garden this week to have it looking as nice as possible for the ceremony.

Bill Kempster, of 730 Greenlea Drive, Saanich, is garden superintendent, assisted by Tom Leslie.

Castillo-Cavinet feature skin-tight Bermudas shown under trench coats, swing coats or bathrobe styles in wonderful reversible wools. The coat fabric is exploited for the corselet bras and pants or skirt.

The collection is largely based on Bermuda jumpsuits and changeable tunics. Bishop sleeves are for day, batwing for evening, except in an excellent daytime great coat with a cuffed hemline. Upright spreading cape collars are sometimes deeply pointed.

A flight of fancy inspires an all-fur Bermuda suit. The tailored cropped jacket tops skin-tight lamb Bermudas.

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Representative Shirley Chisholm (Dem.-N.Y.) said Saturday she is considering running for the United States presidency in 1972.

The second-term congresswoman, a member of the House of Representatives black caucus, said any final decision would "be dependent on what happens with the coalitions we are developing to change the direction of the Democratic party."

"If certain developments do not occur," she said, "I may be a mover for a third party ... The only thing I'm going to say at this time is that we're working to bring about some coalitions ... which can perhaps work within one of the parties to restructure the whole system."

Olympic Games Not Romance Princess' Aim

LONDON (AP) — For the moment, it looks as if horses are more important than men in Princess Anne's life.

The princess, who will be 21 Aug. 15, was joined by 100 of her friends Monday night aboard the royal yacht Britannia for a pre-birthday dinner and dance.

But riding in the Olympics next year — not socializing — is her main aim right now.

Anne began riding at three and has loved horses ever since. For three years she has been training intensely in jumping.

Allison Oliver, her coach, comments: "Even if her name was Anne Bloggs, I wold say that she is good enough to ride for Britain in top international events."

Officials say that if she is selected for Britain's equestrian team it will be on the basis of her ability, not her blue blood.

Anne lives in the goldfish bowl. British publications record her merest frown or gaffe.

The treatment can upset boy-friends. The princess went to see the musical Hair with London sugar broker Sandy Harper, 22. She made headlines by jumping on-stage to dance with the cast.

Harper later dropped out of view because, friends said, of the strain of squiring a princess who is constantly under reporters' eyes.

Another friend is 32-year-old Richard Meade, an equestrian gold medallist for Britain in the 1968 Olympics.

Anne once said that she "might just fall in love at first sight."

Bruce Lowther

I found out something quite interesting last week when I was the guest speaker at the Oak Bay Kiwanis club's weekly dinner.

The topic of my first-ever formal speech was supposed to be humor but I must admit I laid an egg. But after the funny lines bombed, I got some serious questions from the audience of 25 intelligent gentlemen.

The interesting thing is that the questions weren't about TV or any other aspect of show biz — the gentlemen wanted to know about the newspaper business and were quite serious about it. My conclusion is TV may not be as powerful an influence as many think it is and newspapers may be more influential than many will concede.

PS: My other conclusion is that both the company and the food were excellent.

BUREAU OF USELESS INFORMATION: Saturday's answer — A famous group of wits in New York during the 1920s which included such names as Woolcott, Parker, Benchley, Kaufman, Broun, Adams and Harpo was known as the Algonquin Round Table from the hotel where they dined and pokered. A wild bunch.

Today's question begins a good-music week. Test your memory my dearie: who wrote Golliwog's Cakewalk, Chocolate Soldier and Dance of the Sugar Plum Fairy? The answer, which names three different composers, will be provided here Wednesday.

"Stop changing channels through me when I'm talking!"

Tuesday Highlights

NOTE: No specials are due from Apollo 15 today but frequent reports can be expected on most stations, especially in newscasts.

C-10:00—CBS News repeats an interesting special on Roman Catholicism—7, 12.

Tuesday Movies

9:00 a.m.—Jeopardy (1953 suspense, not much then or now), Barbara Stanwyck, Ralph Meeker. I might as well admit at the start that we have 11 movies today and, if there was one more, we'd have a dozen lemons—4.

C-12:45 noon—That Funny Feeling (1965 Bob Darin and Sandra Dee). They're about as funny as Mr. and Mrs. Attila the Hun—6, 8.

4:00 p.m.—Flight for Freedom (phoney 1943 Amelia Earhart phable), Rosalind Russell, Fred MacMurray. And they get worse from here—7.

5:00—Jungle Man (1941 Buster Crabbe)—13.

11:00—Delinquent Parents (1938 stinker)—13.

11:50—Amorous Corporal (1961 French fantasy), Anouk Aimee, Claude Dauphin—2.

1:05 a.m.—Shocking Miss Pilgrim (utterly unshocking 1947 Betty Grable antique). Come to think of it, if Transylvania had an ombudsman, he'd be a vampire empire umpire—12.

Tuesday Radio

Boat Explodes

Angler, Vessels Rush to Rescue

By MILDRED KURTZ

PARKSVILLE — An explosion and fire on a 21-foot pleasure boat sent a man to hospital suffering from burns and shock, following a boating accident just off Parksville at the weekend.

Len Porcella of Ladysmith was the lone occupant of the cruiser when the accident occurred, it was reported.

Prompt action of a sport fisherman angling in the area resulted in the rescue of the injured man within a few minutes of the mishap.

At the same time, the Parksville volunteer fire department arrived at French Creek boat harbor with the inhalator and first-aid equipment.

Following emergency treatment at the dock, Porcella, 37, was taken to Nanaimo Regional Hospital. Late Monday, hospital officials reported Porcella was in satisfactory condition with first-and-second-degree burns.

Officials reported the sea rescue was carried out by Bill Norman, address unknown.

Although the cruiser was some distance out from Parksville, the spectacular blaze was clearly visible as the boat burned to the waterline and appeared to sink.

The doomed vessel was surrounded by assorted craft which had come to offer aid.

A number of attempts was made to tow the flaming boat to shore, but all proved unsuccessful.

Parksville beach was thronged with spectators, many of them vacationers and weekend visitors, who watched with horrified fascination as columns of black smoke rose from the boat, which had burst into flames in seconds.

The sea was calm, which made the rescue less difficult than it could have been.

Grade 12 Exams

Duncan Student Captures Bronze Medal

A 16-year-old Shawnigan Lake student attending Cowichan high school in Duncan has been awarded the Governor-General's bronze medal as the second-ranking student in B.C.'s Grade 12 scholarship examinations.

Gary Bruce Little, winner of the award, achieved a 98.5-per-cent average in physics and chemistry.

The silver medal went to Hilary Maddison Powell, of Vancouver, the top-ranking student in the examinations.

Miss Powell, who attended Crofton House School in Vancouver, earned a 99-per-cent average on her English literature and Latin papers.

Education Minister Donald Brothers said he was pleased the top award went to a student in the humanities subjects. The award is usually won by a science student.

Brothers also announced that 2,013 students will qualify for scholarships. The assistance goes to those getting more than 70 per cent on the scholarship exams provided the number doesn't exceed 17 per cent of total enrolment in Grade 12.

MLA Projecting Jumbo Thoughts

NANAIMO — MLA Frank Ney has requested Highways Minister Wesley Black to put jumbo ferries on the Nanaimo Horseshoe Bay run.

Ney said the increased capacity is necessary because of record traffic this year and consistent summer overloads, even during the week.

A jumboized ferry has a capacity of about 200 cars where the ordinary ferries on the Nanaimo run now take an average of 130 cars. Ney estimated it costs about $2 million to jumboize a ferry.

There are two jumbos on the Tsawwassen-Swartz Bay run, and three ordinary size. Four ferries make the run between Nanaimo and Horseshoe Bay.

Ney said ferry traffic is increasing by about 10 per cent per year.

There are nightly lineups for the ferries leaving Nanaimo, and Fridays and Sundays many tourists have longer than the normal two-hour wait when they miss a ferry.

Another point to be considered is that while more and more ferries are being stretched — jumboized — on the Swartz Bay-Tsawwassen run, the opposite has been true for the Nanaimo-Horseshoe Bay link.

But even with the stretching, the Swartz Bay-Tsawwassen route has had some dandy pileups of traffic this summer.

Visitors' Bureau

Funds Battl May End With Closur

Defici Grows Bigge

The long-standing controversy between the city of Victoria and the Victoria Visitors' Bureau has reached a deadlock and if the city makes good its threat to cancel the annual grant, the bureau may have to fold.

The latest in a series of events placing the bureau's future in doubt came Monday when Sam Lane, bureau president, informed the city that the organization's attempts to raise more money from its members had failed.

Last year, when council grudgingly approved the bureau's request for a $60,000 grant, aldermen stated emphatically this would be the last grant.

In a letter to the city, Lane said failure of the city to continue its grant would "lead to the complete demise of the entire organization."

The letter said Victoria businessmen felt they pay enough in business taxes and licences, property tax and parking structure assessment.

Last year, the bureau's members contributed $17,500 in membership fees and the city felt they should do better.

Acting Mayor Ald. Tom Christie, who voted against the grant last year, said Monday he is sure the bureau could raise more money if it tried hard enough.

Lane said the bureau has tried everything, but couldn't improve the financial situation through membership contributions.

For years city council has approved the grant under protest. Mayor Courtney Haddock, long before he became mayor, advocated the bureau's closure on the grounds that it had become outdated.

Deficit Grows Bigger

VANCOUVER (CP) — Greater Vancouver Visitors and Convention Bureau reported a deficit this year for the second consecutive year in its 70-year history.

A spokesman for president Jack Barber, who is in hospital, said Sunday that last year's deficit was $21,000 and while no figures are yet available for this year, the deficit will be larger.

Bureau general manager Jim Bensley resigned last week. On July 15, membership relations manager Rich Antonson quit, saying the bureau had no money to pay him.

A spokesman for James Lovick Ltd. public relations firm said the bureau owes them $100,000 for a publicity program earlier this year in which more than a million pieces of promotional material on Vancouver were distributed world-wide in several languages including French, Japanese and Spanish.

The bureau spokesman said its yearly budget is about $300,000, of which $134,000 comes from member cities and municipalities, including $100,000 from Vancouver. Memberships raise about $86,000 and the remainder is made up from money raised through advertising and promotion.

Guitarist and Trio

Concert Series Well Launched

By BILL THOMAS

The B.C. International Festival opened a series of summer concerts Sunday afternoon in the McPherson Playhouse with highly successful recitals by guitarist Sebastian Maroto and the Czech Foerstrovo Trio.

The Spanish-born Maroto presented a delightful contrast to some recent guitarists who have played here in that he took a completely intellectual approach to the music. His music was totally controlled and devoid of any flamboyance.

His fingering and agility on the finger board was that of a perfectionist. Maroto selected guitar literature from the 16th century to contemporary compositions of his own.

While it is true his playing was cerebral rather than theatrical it didn't lack in emotional quality. He uses an intense restraint that communicates well.

Maroto excels in the intricacies of such works as the Bach Gavotte and is equally assured when playing his own variations on a Russian song.

On a hot humid afternoon Maroto supplied just the right music and feeling of tranquility to satisfy the audience, which called him back for an encore.

The second half of the program was played by the Foerstrovo Trio which offered works by Mozart and Smetana.

The Mozart chosen was a late period trio in E Major. The playing proved a happy combination for the piano, cello and violin.

Pianist Ales Bilek did wonders with the andante. His playing was in the true classical style and he showed an instinctive feeling for the dynamic quality of the movement. The same was true of Stanislav Srp, violin, and Vaclav Jirovec on cello.

The trio has an excellent integrated sound, well suited to the Mozart.

It could be national enthusiasm which sparked the reception of the Smetana for the trio obviously enjoyed its own performance. The work chosen was the G Major and from the sound the three men produced it would seem they have played it many times. They were rewarded with an ovation from the appreciative house.

The artists playing the concert are in residence at the festival and summer school of the arts at Shawnigan Lake. Next Sunday at 2:30 p.m. violinist Ruggiero Ricci will play at the McPherson Playhouse.

Connery Catches A Cold

Matthau

Connery

The electronic age really comes into its own in the Anderson Tapes, a film that combines all the horrors of Orwell's 1984, with closed circuit television, hidden microphones and sneak camera sequences.

The picture, by director Sidney Lumet, now playing at the Haida theatre, stars Sean Connery who must have been a lot happier playing James Bond.

He gets involved in a few British situations but is not surrounded by the usual gaggle of gals. He has to content himself with Dyan Cannon who plays a high-priced call girl in a stylish apartment block.

Connery gets himself some cash backing from the kings of organized crime in New York to clean out the art treasures and antiques in his girl friend's block.

The Mob negotiator is played by comedian Alan King who does it straight. This is not really a film for the sophisticated viewer who asks all kinds of questions and wants them answered on the screen.

It doesn, however, have some moments of real suspense and some good photography.

The sequences where the police are tipped off to the caper and move from rooftop to rooftop to infiltrate the apartment are tense and dramatic.

In the end there is a truck-crashing episode that could delight stock car racing fans.

The difficult problem is to determine if Lumet is trying to show that the way governments spy on citizens is as evil as the crimes some citizens commit. Perhaps he is saying that if you get a criminal record it can't be erased but if you make an illegal tape or wire tap it can be erased at a flip of the switch.

The Anderson Tapes is quite exciting and entertaining but it is by no means an ideal medium for James Bond — sorry, Sean Connery.

Matthau Movie Straight Stage

By BILL THOMAS

Plaza Suite is another of those Neil Simon stage plays which has been lifted almost intact to the screen. This time it is former Canadian Arthur Hiller who has turned the trick on to the film now showing at the Royal Theatre.

What in fact has happened is that Hiller has transferred the stage play intact with just a few outdoor shots to help in the transitions.

Plaza Suite is a trilogy of sex and marriage playlets which all star Walter Matthau in the same hotel suite. The women in the routines are Maureen Stapleton, Barbara Harris and Lee Grant. This is a departure from the Broadway play where Miss Stapleton played all three roles.

One of the problems Hiller has not solved is that of transferring the stage dialogue to suit a film script.

In the first routine Matthau is a middle-aged business man who can't respond to his wife's yearning to recapture the feelings they enjoyed on their honeymoon in the suite. Miss Stapleton gets her funny lines off beautifully but it's still very stagey. Matthau admits he is having an affair with his secretary and exits on that note.

In the second epic Matthau is a successful Hollywood producer in New York to sign up Lee Marvin for a film but as he is not busy for two hours he calls up his girl friend of 15 years back and makes a successful pass.

In the final portion of the picture, Matthau and Lee Grant are a couple trying to get their daughter, who has locked herself in the bathroom, down to a reception room in the Plaza Hotel for her wedding.

Hiller directs the last act for all the slapstick laughs he can get and there are plenty but this segment of the film also sums up Simon's bitter approach to middle-class and upper-middle-class morality and behavior patterns.

The Plaza Suite may have lost some impact in the transition from stage to screen but there is still plenty left to make it worth a visit.

Rodeo Bull Kills Tot

HELENA, Mont. (AP) The gala atmosphere at Helena's Last Chance Stampede ended Sunday when a bull jumped a gate, ran into the crowd and trampled to death Jeff Ross, 3-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Keith Ross, of Great Falls, Mont.

Paul Anka Fetes 30th

MONTREAL (CP) — More than 3,000 Montrealers were on hand at Man and His World Saturday night to help Paul Anka celebrate his 30th birthday.

Accompanied by a good-sized orchestra as well as his own five back-up musicians, Anka sang his old hit Diana, the song that sold eight million 15 years ago and made the boy from Ottawa a teen-age idol.

Birth of Quadruplets Comes After Rescue

HITCHIN, England (CP) — Feline mother-to-be, Puss Puss, became the centre of attraction in this Hertfordshire village when she got stuck in a ventilation pipe.

"At one time seven firemen and two policemen were frantically pulling up floorboards and knocking down part of the wall," owner Sue Watson said afterwards. Puss was rescued just in time — minutes after the drama she gave birth to four kittens.

Carr Poorly Done

By BILL BARRINGER

Emily Carr was a magnificent and indomitable human being, true to herself and her visions, confused, fussy, eccentric, sometimes desolated, sometimes triumphant, God-drunk, proud, not nearly as talented as she thought she was but far more important than she could have ever imagined.

And somehow — for all those contradictions and the predicament they must present to any biographer — writer Bill Thomas has assembled a brilliant hour-long glimpse of the human being that Carr was.

Entitled Emily Carr - A Centennial Portrait, the combination slide-show (of Carr paintings) and dramatic reading was presented Monday night before a full house at the University of Victoria's MacLaurin Auditorium as part of this summer's Victoria Fair.

The Carr genius prevailed despite poor performances by Lillian Carlson as Emily, who read her part with a hushed reverence Carr would have ridiculed, and narrator Roy Brinson, who managed to suffocate many of Thomas insights in accents of pseudo-British cultural bombast when not busy portraying Indians as slow-witted idiots.

"The inevitable is coming," said Emily. "it is surging over all. Stupendous things are happening moment by moment, terrific forces are at work. The old world is being smashed and ground and powdered. I don't think we should mourn it so much."

Nor should we mourn an inadequate performance of a fine human and a fine look at her — better to simply hope it will be done again sometime as Thomas intended.

With life.

You Need Both

Every time I accept an invitation to a cocktail party or attend a reception, some stranger with a gleam in his eye backs me into a corner and proceeds to pick my brains.

"Tell me, Mr. Chestnut," he says, "I've been wanting to ask you this for a long time: which is best for your lawn — to order a load of top dressing or to buy a bag of fertilizer?"

This, to me, is like asking which is the more important factor in sustaining human life, air or food. Both are needed, they fill two entirely different needs and neither one is much good without the other. And so it is with fertilizer and top dressing.

Chemical fertilizer is the cheapest, easiest and most convenient way to supply your lawn grasses with food but because it is concentrated and lacks physical bulk, it doesn't do a thing to improve the soil texture.

Bulky top dressing, on the other hand, is nothing like as rich in plant food, but because of its sheer bulk, it creates a soil texture congenial to the roots, and this is just as important as food.

★ ★ ★

Top dressing should be used in addition to chemical fertilizer, not as an alterntive. As I have so often said, each complements the other and they go together like ham and eggs.

We have a fairly wide choice of materials for top dressing the lawn. Really first class loam topsoil is good. Very old rotted manure, so well decomposed as to be almost unrecognizable as manure, is grand stuff for this job, or you can use a mixture of topsoil and manure.

A lot of folks worry about weed seeds in manure or topsoil and chances are you will get quite a flush of weeds after spreading the stuff but I wouldn't lose too much sleep over this.

On an established lawn, weeds are easy to control with selective chemical weedkillers and you should have no hesitation in using these preparations; 2,4-D is not poisonous and is not a pollutant.

★ ★ ★

Other good top dressings are peat moss, fir bark, vermiculite, perlite and a calcined clay known as arcilite and sold under the name of Turface. These are all excellent soil conditioners, all weed-free, but considerably more expensive than topsoil or manure.

Under certain conditions, coarse sand is a good top dressing for a lawn. If your lawn soil contains a high proportion of clay, horrid cracks will appear in dry weather as the clay shrinks. There is no better way to combat this tendency than to brush quantities of sand into the cracks, spreading more of the same on the surface.

With manure or topsoil, or a mixture of the two, it is best to buy it pulverized and sifted, or sift it yourself through a half-inch sieve.

Sifted material is easier to spread evenly, and it works itself down nicely between the blades of grass. Besides, sifting takes out sticks and stones and this is becoming increasingly important in this day of the rotary power mower.

★ ★ ★

While I am on the subject, I would like to repeat a warning issued by the Canada Safety Council: If you have small children, keep a careful eye open for their plastic toys left on the lawn.

Of all accidents caused by foreign objects thrown out by power mowers, over half are from the jagged, shrapnel-like fragments of plastic toys lying unnoticed on the lawn.

I don't think it matters much what time of year a top dressing is applied, although the drier the weather and the drier the material, the easier it is to spread it evenly. I have a slight preference for an autumn dressing, for we get periods in the fall when the soil freezes by night and thaws by day and this tends to work the dressing well down into the soil.

China—Up to Here!

WASHINGTON — One of the greatest penalties the American people will have to pay for any detente with Red China will be sitting through hours of television film and reading hundreds of articles by American correspondents who have been lucky enough to get a Chinese visa.

Since we have had no reporting from China in 20 years, the media is going to make it up to us in one big gulp and we'd better be prepared for the results.

★ ★ ★

These are some of the exciting things we can expect to learn about China in the next year — over and over again:

The Chinese people have enough to eat and seem to be well-clothed though there is no variety in their choice of clothes.

The children smile a lot and looked very happy in their schools.

The great wall of China is breathtaking and goes on for miles.

The factories are primitive but are producing goods.

★ ★ ★

The complexion of Chinese girls is healthy, particularly those who work in the fields.

The streets are very clean.

Foreigners are considered a curiosity.

The Chinese have an abiding fear of the Soviet Union.

There are many parks in China where families go to picnic.

There are no rickshaw boys in Shanghai.

Chinese people like to go to the movies.

The cultural revolution was responsible for many changes in the country.

You see a lot of soldiers on the streets.

Chinese footwear does not compare to anything in the west, but is adequate.

Mao Tse-tung is given credit for the Great Leap Forward.

Chinese government officials are polite, but do not open up to western correspondents.

Ping pong is the number one sport in China.

Hotels and restaurants in Peking are surprisingly cheap.

You can't take photographs of military installations.

★ ★ ★

While the Chinese like Americans personally, they fear the imperialism of the United States.

Chinese trains and planes are very clean.

There are loudspeakers everywhere blaring out the best thoughts of Mao.

Tipping in China is forbidden.

The Chinese are very honest people and you can put your camera down and come back an hour later and find it.

The Chinese have very poor quality toilet paper.

The telephone system doesn't work very well.

You don't see many cars on the roads.

The Chinese do a lot of exercise in the morning.

There are no prostitutes in Peking.

★ ★ ★

The streets are much safer in China than they are in America.

This gives you just some idea of what the American television viewer and newspaper reader will have to put up with as each new correspondent makes his report on the inscrutable and mysterious People's Republic.

I suppose it's a small price to pay for a free press. But I'm warning the media right now, there are just so many pictures of the Great Wall that the American people can take, and the main danger of this is we may all turn off on Red China before President Nixon even gets there.

Ethel, Andy—No-No

MARILYN BECK

This is bound to confuse those who have him on the verge of marriage to Ethel Kennedy, but Andy Williams assured me he has no intention at this time of entering into marriage with anyone. His intentions at this moment, it would seem, are to strengthen anew his relationship with almost-ex Claudine Longet and their two young'uns. The foursome had such a lovely time on a recent get-away weekend, they've made plans for a Christmas get-together. So much for the Ethel-and-Andy matchmakers. Andy's fans will be happy to learn he has been in serious huddles with network executives about returning with a regular TV series for the 1972-73 season.

★ ★ ★

Added to the hectic pressure of starting his The Man and the City series for ABC, Anthony Quinn had to take time from work to find a camp for his three young sons. His wife, Yolanda, Tony explains, does not drive.

★ ★ ★

Word from the New York location of Such Good Friends is all to the good now. Which is something of a surprise. Dyan Cannon and Otto Preminger didn't start the project as such good friends, let me assure you. In fact, producer-director Preminger, who is not noted for his tact, and Dyan met head-on about the interpretation of her role, and things were frigid there for awhile. They've settled their differences, and the production is running smoothly, at least for the moment.

Dyan, incidentally, has assigned choreographer-director Walter Painter the task of creating a nightclub act for her around several songs she'll test on various variety shows. Her dream is to make a Vegas club debut, and she thinks Walter's the guy who can help her do it in style.

★ ★ ★

Twiggy sent me word from the Blighty location of her MGM The Boy Friend starrer that her modeling career had one thing over being a movie star. Complained Twiggy, "I have no time for anything. I don't even go shopping any more. I haven't bought a dress for six months, and I've put an inch on my leg." She doesn't mention which leg, but that inch, she pointed out, is sheer muscle, from all those fancy steps she's been doing for her dance numbers.

★ ★ ★

Rose Marie reported it's all over between her and Chicago businessman Alan Weber. Weber might be interested to know it's producer Vincent Miranda. Rosie's seeing these days.

Agents Provocateur

Not one citizen in a thousand, perhaps, knows what is meant by the French phrase, agent provocateur — although most Europeans have been aware of it for long and cynical years.

Most people who have heard of it think merely that an agent provocateur is some sort of spy or secret agent planted amongst an enemy group. But he is far more than this. He is a man in the employ of the police or the military or the intelligence agency who penetrates a "suspicious" group and tries to make it act worse.

★ ★ ★

The agent provocateur does not merely become a member of some dissident organization and pass back information to his employers; he becomes the most violent, extreme and revolutionary member of the organization, and tries to involve it in incendiary plots which will enable the officials to crack down on the group.

★ ★ ★

This has long been a favorite trick of Hitler, Stalin, and other such despots — using their own man as a Judas-goat to lead opponents to slaughter. The famous Reichstag fire, which gave Hitler his rationale for seizing power, was set by a Nazi agent purporting to be working for "the communists."

Ghere should be no place here for such nefarious activity. Surveillance of extremist groups is one thing — and even here, we need the most scrupulous definition of such groups — and inciting groups to criminal action is another. Such incitement should itself be liable to criminal prosecution.

Most dissident groups are by their very nature unstable, ill-organized, susceptible to emotional appeals, because their members feel so deeply on the political and moral issues involved.

One firebrand can steer the organization into a violent action it might not take if calmer heads prevailed. When officials provide such a firebrand, are they not engaging in a conspiracy to break the law themselves?

One obvious reason they do this is to persuade the citizens that such groups are truly dangerous, to point up the "need" for increased security measures, and thereby to obtain more funds and support from a frightened public and a concerned legislature.

★ ★ ★

It is like putting a puncture in an automobile tire to convince the motorist he needs to buy a better set of tires.

The agent provocateur is an importation of the worst of European totalitarianism. To use it to "combat" extremist groups is to fall victim to their own repulsive practices and to become the mirror-image of one's enemies.

Lab Licence Proposals Form Appeal

By JOHN MATTERS

VANCOUVER — The B.C. Medical Association will make one more appeal to the government for amendments to the laboratory licensing regulation that has inflamed doctors.

It was learned in Vancouver Monday that a committee of the BCMA has gone over the regulations to the Medical Services Act — adopted by the cabinet on June 24 — and proposes changes in almost every section.

The committee was composed of pathologists, radiologists, general practitioners, internists and neurologists — all specialists that heavily rely on pathology, x-ray and electrodiagnostic aids.

The BCMA's proposals will be taken to Victoria as soon as an appointment can be made with Provincial Secretary Wesley Black, the minister responsible for medicare, and the B.C. Medical Services Commission.

Ten days ago, the BCMA asked doctors to boycott the regulations that require all medical laboratories to be licenced by the government before they can qualify for medicare payments. The regulations also state that any doctor must send a patient requiring a test or x-ray to a hospital instead of a privately-owned medical laboratory whenever possible.

The regulations say applications for licences — and any lab without a licence after Oct. 1 may not collect under medicare— must be in 60 days before that deadline.

That means the deadline for applications was Sunday.

There was no word on how many applications have been forwarded to the Medical Services Commission in Victoria. However, it is understood that most hospitals sent in the material the government wanted.

A private medical laboratory in Vancouver also had its application in the mail before the BCMA suggested the boycott. Sources say it got a licence back from Victoria within three or four days.

The BCMA objected to the laboratory licensing and utilization regulations because it said there was no guarantee that it would provide a standard of care equal to or better than that already available.

Instead, said the doctors, patients would be sent to hospitals that neither have the space nor staff to handle the workload normally done in private laboratories.

The BCMA also said the regulations could be the first step toward the government licensing other specialties within the profession. The association pointed out that licensing by law has been a responsibility of the College of Physicians and Surgeons as administrator of the B.C. Medical Act.

Elevator Sticks, Traps Two Boys

Two 12-year-old Victoria boys were trapped for about two hours Saturday afternoon in an elevator that stuck near the sixth floor of the new 12-storey Bank of Commerce building at Douglas and View, Victoria fire department officials said Monday.

They said Douglas Broden, 1225 Rockland, and Christopher Poole, 1271 Monterey, became trapped after the elevator went off balance and they were removed by an elevator workman. The elevator has a safety feature that cuts controls if it won't level, stopping the doors from opening.

Ad Ban Skirting Will Halt Liquor Orders

Premier Bennett has said he assumes any brewery which tries to get around the liquor advertisement ban effective Sept. 1 by advertising on U.S. television will "automatically" receive no more orders from the Liquor Control Board.

On Monday Bennett told reporters before entering a cabinet meeting he was pleased with the Financial Post story in which he was quoted as saying there would be "no orders" for breweries guilty of infractions. But the premier refused to elaborate on his stand for B.C. news media.

The interview, published in the current issue of the financial and business publication, included this question: "What will stop the breweries from hopping across the border and advertising on U.S. television?"

Bennett: "No orders."

Question: "From the liquor board?"

Bennett: "Yes."

Question: "This is a definite policy?"

Bennett: "Oh, no. I haven't heard it discussed, but I should think that would be automatic. If they try to get around the expressed will of the people of British Columbia through their legislature, I should think the orders (from the liquor board) will be slow in coming."

The board is the sole outlet for liquor, wine and beer sales in the province.

Provincial COURT

A book entitled Strategy was one of four items shoplifted Saturday by a 19-year-old Ottawa youth who pleaded guilty Monday in Victoria Provincial Court to a two-count charge of theft involving less than $50.

The youth, Michael Marcil, was fined $250 by Judge William Ostler on one count and given a suspended sentence and 8-month probationary term on the other.

A security officer from The Bay said Marcil took two games and one package of incense, worth a total of $14.50, from the store Saturday. A Victoria policeman testified the youth admitted after his arrest that he had also taken the $3.95 book from Munro's book store at 753 Yates.

Marcil said he was a university student working in the area during the summer. He said he belonged to a big family, had to pay his own way through college and hoped to take home "a few presents."

□

Raymond Marshall Carroll, 43, of 948 Shearwater, was fined $100 after Ostler found him guilty following a trial July 19 and last Thursday on a charge of theft involving less than $50 — removal of home heating oil June 28 from a tank behind the other half of the duplex in which he lived.

When Carroll greeted the verdict with the statement that he did not take the oil, the judge replied: "Well, there is one good thing about the judgments in this court — they can always be appealed."

Artist Wants Parade

Bid by a Victoria artist to stage a sculpture parade through downtown streets at 6 a.m. some Sunday this fall has been received by city hall.

Glenn Howarth has asked permission to hold a parade of "conceptual art" when traffic will be virtually non-existent and there will be few spectators.

In a letter to the mayor's office Howarth said other members of the local art community will be invited to participate.

Council has not yet made its decision.

College of Physicians Official:

Doctors Apprehensive About Moving to B.C.

VANCOUVER — Doctors elsewhere in Canada have already expressed apprehension about moving to B.C. because of the provincial government's move to intervene in hospital privileges, an official of the B.C. College of Physicians and Surgeons said Monday.

Dr. W. G. McClure, registrar, explained that an example was a specialist — he did not state the specialty — who had already paid his registration fee and was getting ready to move to the province when Health minister Ralph Loffmark's amendment to Hospital Act regulations became public a week ago.

The doctor at once telephoned the college and is now reconsidering his decision.

"There is no question that this province depends on doctors from other parts of Canada," said McClure, explaining that the University of B.C.'s medical school graduates 60 doctors each year but the college registers about 250.

In another development here Monday, the B.C. Hospitals' Association, which represents 104 hospitals, held a meeting of its board of directors and the cabinet order was one of the topics.

T. C. Marshall, president, was asked whether a hospital board of management would be legally responsible for the standard of care given by a doctor whom it was "instructed" to add to its medical staff.

"That is one of the many ramifications of the order that we are considering," he replied.

Marshall said hospital boards have traditionally been autonomous in deciding which doctors should have privileges in their institutions. It has worked well and there have been very few cases of abuse.

"Only one month ago the minister reaffirmed to me that he was satisfied with the existing system. He said boards were doing a good job and he complimented us for having one of the best hospital systems in Canada," said Marshall.

"Subsequently it was with shock and bewilderment that we learned he would be centralizing the control of privileges in Victoria."

The cabinet order means virtually no medical staff appointments can be certain until they have been approved or denied by the minister himself.

"Of course, the doctors are now faced with grave problems, if the cabinet order is carried to the extreme, the minister will be able to tell them where they must practise ... where they must live."

Marshall said the cabinet order means that if a hospital board refused to grant privileges to a doctor, that doctor could take his complaint directly to the health minister, who would be the arbiter.

The BCHA president said the clause of the order that gives a hospital board the right to appeal the minister's ruling to the cabinet was "not reasonable."

Health Minister Ralph Loffmark said last week that the order was aimed at correcting an uneven distribution of doctors in B.C. He hoped that, after denying doctors hospital privileges in one of the more favored parts of the province such as Vancouver, Victoria or the Okanagan, they will elect to practise in a rural area.

But the B.C. Medical Association Monday reiterated statements that there is a better distribution of doctors in B.C. than ever.

Dr. A. C. Waldie, president of the B.C. College of Physicians and Surgeons, and McClure reported that two years ago they suggested a system that would encourage doctors to rural areas. It involved guaranteeing a specified annual income for a doctor, similar to a scheme in Ontario that guarantees rural doctors $26,000 a year.

However, said the College officials, Loffmark said the doctors themselves would have to make such guarantees because the government, "didn't have that kind of money."

Dr. W. J. Corbett, president of the B.C. Medical Association, said it wasn't the first time he had heard of the government finding itself in such an embarrassment.

He explained that doctors on salary with the provincial mental health services have told him the program is deteriorating because the government is not paying enough to attract and hold competent staff.

Corbett said he toured northern B.C. last spring and in none of those areas did he hear complaints of doctor shortages.

'Better Than Transplants'

Artificial Hearts Near

By JOE ALEX MORRIS Jr.
Colonist-Los Angeles Times Service

ROSTOCK, East Germany — In the future, a man with a bad heart will be able to drop it off at a clinic for repairs while he goes his merry way fitted with an artificial substitute.

This is the fantastic and confident prediction of East Germany's leading organ transplant specialist, Dr. Horst Klinkmann. The artificial heart will be ready in three years and will be in clinics within five years, he said in an interview.

He is confident that for moral as well as practical reasons, the artificial heart will win out over the transplant of human organs on either a temporary or permanent basis. "The heart is a relatively simple organ, and using polyurethane as the construction material, there is no problem with rejection at all," said the 36-year-old specialist, who is the first East German ever to get an American professorship.

Most of the patients given heart transplants have died because their bodies ultimately rejected the foreign organ.

Klinkmann returned to Rostock University last year after a year in residence at the University of Utah. While there, he delivered guest lectures in 24 American universities.

He is best known for an artificial kidney he developed in co-operation with Dr. Hans-Juergen Wilke. The membrane employed, which they produce on sausage skin-making machines, is regarded as the best and is now being bought by U.S. firms.

Klinkmann believes medical science has now reached the threshold of its most dramatic era. "Medicine is now developing the way physics and chemistry did at the beginning of the century," he said.

His optimism about the heart is based partly on the fact that it is a muscle, and not a complicated biochemical organ such as the liver or the kidneys. An artificial pump can be built, and the problem or regulating it has already been solved with the Pacemaker.

The great advantage with the artificial heart is that it will allow doctors to remove the natural heart, freeze it, and make the necessary repairs, he said.

" . . . In two-thirds of the cases, the original heart could be returned after it was repaired," he said. "In the other one-third, the people could survive with artificial hearts in their bodies."

Pressure Leak?

Hitch Slows Jettisoning

By JOHN BARBOUR

HOUSTON (AP)—The Apollo 15 astronauts rocketed off the moon Monday with bags full of lunar secrets, linking up with their mothership in orbit around the moon for the first step home, but they ran into temporary trouble.

On the verge of jettisoning their faithful lunar lander Falcon, the same craft that had carried them to the moon and back again, an odd pressure reading was noted between the chambers of the spacecraft.

It posed the question, was there a pressure leak? And where?

Mission Control delayed the jettisoning of the lunar lander for two hours while the crew — astronauts, David Scott, Alfred Worden and James Irwin — performed checks. When no leak was discovered in the command ship, the Falcon was finally dropped away at 6:05 p.m. PDT.

But Falcon did no move out of the way as it should have. Command pilot Scott was about to fire his own manoeuvring jets when he called down to earth:

"She's about 150 feet dead ahead." For reasons not yet determined the lunar craft was still sitting there in the sun in front of them.

Scott informed Mission Control, and officials there quickly radioed back: "Hold the burn, Dave."

They then readjusted the jet firings and Endeavour itself was manoeuvred carefully away from Falcon, which crashed into the moon at 8:04 p.m.

The sudden discrepancy in pressure reading that delayed Falcon's jettison was reminiscent of a Soviet tragedy, the loss of three cosmonauts aboard Soyuz 11 June 30. They were killed when there was a sudden pressure drop in their spaceship during reentry.

Mission Control in commenting on the problem said the astronauts were in no danger.

If there were a leak, the astronauts had two alternatives. They could have re-

Eskimos Helped By Rare Serum

QUEBEC (CP) — One Fort Chimo Eskimos has died and nine others have been flown south to hospital suffering from botulism poisoning after eating white whale meat which had been dried in the sun.

The condition of the nine survivors was reported as satisfactory Monday after they were treated with a rare serum.

Dr. Normand Tremblay of Fort Chimo, 900 miles north of Montreal, informed the medical centre at Laval University Saturday night that he had 10 patients suffering from poisoning.

By Sunday, one of the patients had died and Dr. Tremblay decided to send the others, including two children, to the Laval hospital in Quebec City and Maisonneuve Hospital in Montreal.

No serum was available in Quebec but Royal Victoria Hospital authorities in Montreal located some at the Connaught laboratory in Toronto. By early Sunday it was on its way to Laval in a Canadian Armed Forces aircraft.

Steel Prices Zoom Higher

PITTSBURGH (AP) — U.S. Steel, the industry pacesetter, announced Monday a price increase averaging eight per cent on virtually all its products, and other leading American companies followed suit. Tht move promised to drive up the cost of all kinds of consumer products, ranging from trucks to toasters, but probably not immediately.

Bethlehem Steel was the first to follow the U.S. Steel lead and Armco Steel was next.

Republic Steel and Youngstown Sheet and Tube fell in line with the others Monday night.

The White House said it is "questionable whether the increase is in the industry's long-run interest." Deputy press secretary Gerald L. Warren said that "price increases of this magnitude and at this time are bound to have an adverse affect on the tonnage of steel produced in the United States and on jobs in the steel industry."

The U.S. Steel increase is intended mainly to offset the cost of a new three-year contract approved barely 12 hours earlier between the industry and the United Steelworkers union, the company said.

Word of the U.S. Steel increase, which is to be spread over five months, came before most of the country's steel production lines were operating again. Anticipating a strike rather than settlement, most steelmakers began shutting down last week; and the startup process is expected to take another 10 days at least.

U.S. Steel said the new United Steelworkers' contract, which provides for a 30-per-cent wage increase spread over three years, would raise its labor costs an estimated 15 per cent.

Mainland China

Taiwan Accepts New U.S. Policy

From AP, UPI

WASHINGTON — More than 20 years of American opposition to a United Nations seat for Communist China ended Monday with State Secretary William Rogers' announcement that the United States will support UN membership for Peking.

However, part of the new policy will be an American fight against expelling the Nationalist Chinese government based on Taiwan from the world body.

After outlining the reasons he said dictated a change in policy dating to the 1949 Communist takeover of the mainland, Rogers told a news conference:

"The United States accordingly will support action at the General Assembly this fall calling for seating the People's Republic of Communist China. At the same time the United States will oppose any action to expel the Republic of Nationalist China or otherwise deprive it of representation in the United Nations."

In his statement and in answering questions later, the secretary emphasized the Nixon administration belief that the interests of world peace will best be served by UN membership for Peking as well as Taiwan.

The Nationalist government, which Rogers said was fully consulted along with other interested countries before his announcement, indicated it accepts the new U.S. policy and will fight for both its General Assembly seat and its membership on the Security Council.

The Taiwan foreign ministry, while not directly addressing Rogers' statement, said it would base its claim on the UN charter, which among other things specifically names the Republic of China as the representative in the General Assembly and Security Council.

The Republic of China is the official name of the Nationalist government.

This is a turnabout in Taiwan's position, which previously was that the Nationalists would not accept any sort of two-China UN policy, a stand also taken by Peking.

The mainland government was not consulted in advance, said would be certain bankruptcy.

In London, relief was expressed. An estimated 10,000 British Rolls-Royce workers are affected.

Rolls-Royce went bankrupt early this year, with the British government taking over its aircraft engines division.

The government guaranteed continued production of the RB 211 jet engine, the power plant for the Tristar, but only if the U.S. government guaranteed Lockheed's survival.

Senate opponents had argued in vain since July 21 when the debate began that a government guarantee would mean a bailout for Lockheed and would violate the free enterprise principle.

Proponents countered that the government normally goes to the aid of all business, big and little, and that it took no risk in guaranteeing the Lockheed loan. But if it did not, they said, it would add to the unemployment problem by putting the Tristar workers on the jobless list.

British Rolls-Royce Staff Pleased by Lockheed Aid

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. Senate approved a quarter-billion dollar loan guarantee for the bankruptcy-threatened Lockheed Aircraft Corp. by one vote Monday. President Nixon greeted the action with "gratitude and deep satisfaction."

The 49-48 vote giving final congressional approval to legislation permitting the government to guarentee $250 million in bank loans to the giant airplane builder "will contribute greatly to the economic strength of the country as a whole" and "save tens of thousands of jobs," the president said in a statement.

Senate approval of the house-passed measure assured continuation of Lockheed's production of the L1011 Tristar, a mammoth commercial jetliner, and saved the company from what it

Crash Error Admitted By Flight Instructor

MORIOKA, Japan (UPI) — An air self-defence force flight instructor's navigational error was blamed Monday for the mid-air collision Friday that killed 162 persons in the worst aviation disaster in history, police said.

Police said Capt. Tamotsu Kuma erroneously led himself and a pilot trainee in another plane to fly too close to a commercial air route.

The trainee's F86 jet fighter collided with the Boeing 727 All-Nippon Airways jet, killing all aboard the passenger plane. The fighter pilot, Sgt. 2-C Yoshimi Ichikawa, bailed out safely.

Police said Kuma Monday retracted an earlier statement and admitted his error.

Kuma told police he and Ichikawa were flying in formation and he was unaware of the airliner's course until a few seconds before the collision. Kuma said he was flying about 1.2 miles ahead of Ichikawa, police said.

Kuma said when he saw the commercial plane behind Ichikawa's F86, he banked sharply to the right and pulled up. He said he had instructed Ichikawa to do the same, but it was too late for the trainee to carry out the emergency procedure, police said.

In Tokyo, Prime Minister Eisaku Sato ordered a review of the existing aviation control system and promised compensation to the families of the victims.

Common Problems on Victoria Agenda

Premiers Will Avoid Charter

By IAN STREET
Colonist Legislative Reporter

There will be no bid by provincial premiers who begin two days of meetings here Thursday to revive the Victoria Charter, Premier Bennett indicated Monday.

He was commenting on reports from sources in Eastern Canada which said the premiers would discuss the Victoria Charter on the constitution, drawn up here in mid-June, and later vetoed by Quebec.

Bennett, who as host will be conference chairman, indicated constitutional problems won't be on the agenda for the meetings which will continue behind closed doors through Friday.

Like past meetings of premiers, Bennett added, the conference will deal with problems common to provincial governments across Canada, such as fiscal matters and environmental control.

Most of the premiers are expected to arrive here Wednesday. Bennett will greet them officially on the steps of the legislature before the first closed session begins at 10 a.m. Thursday.

Reporters will be allowed into the conference late Friday when the business has been completed to ask questions of the premiers. Bennett said no opening statements will be issued and no final communique issued at the conference's end.

The Victoria Charter, which proposes a formula for patriating Canada's constitution from Westminster where it must now be amended by the British Parliament, was given provisional approval by provincial premiers and Prime Minister Trudeau here in June.

Debbie's Record Jump Latest Canadian Thrill

From Canadian Press

CALI, Colombia — Debbie Brill of Haney cracked the existing Pan-American Games record Monday with a leap of six feet, seven-eights of an inch to take the women's high jump and Canada's fifth gold medal in three days.

Miss Brill, an 18-year-old science and arts student, easily beat the record of five feet, 10 inches set by American Eleanor Montgomery at Winnipeg four years ago as she ended U.S. domination of the event.

Canada's brilliant women athletes took three gold medals in track and field events Sunday and flyweight Chinese-Canadian weightlifter, Chun Hon Chan, of Montreal, won a gold medal on Saturday.

Brenda Eisler of Vancouver set a new record in winning the women's long jump; Stephanie Berto, also of Vancouver, raced to victory in the 200 metres and Abigail Hoffman of Toronto took the gold medal in the 800 metres.

RECORD TOTAL

Miss Brill's gold medal enabled the team to exceed Canada's entire gold production of four years ago in track and field. At that time, Nancy McCredie of Brampton, in the shot put, Harry Jerome of Vancouver, in the 100 metres, and Andy Boychuk of Oshawa, in the marathon, were the only gold medalists.

The four gold medals are the best ever by Canada's track and field girls in the Pan-Am Games. Previous best total was three at the 1963 Games at Sao Paulo, Brazil.

LONE FAILURE

Miss Brill, who used what she calls the "Brill Bend" similar to the "Fosbury Flop" made famous by Dick Fosbury of the U.S. in winning the gold medal at the 1968 Olympics, failed in a try for the world record at 6' 3¼", held by Iolanda Balas of Romania.

Miss Brill jumps regularly at six feet and her coach, Lionel Pugh of Vancouver, says she should reach 6' 6".

Miss Eisler jumped 21 feet, 1¼ inches, four and-a-quarter inches better than the previous Games mark of 20' 9", set in Winnipeg by Irene Martinez Tartabull of Brazil.

Her nearest competitor was another Brazilian, Silvana das Gracas Pereira, who also surpassed the old mark with a jump of 20' 10".

PENNY LOSES ONE

Mariana Noble Samuels of Cuba was third with a leap of 20' 1¾", edging Penny May of Victoria out of the bronze medal by half an inch. Miss May jumped 20' 1¼".

The Victoria girl made up for this later, however, by taking the bronze medal in the 100-meter hurdles.

"I can't say I was expecting to win but I sure was hoping," said Miss Eisler, a 19-year-old education student at the University of British Columbia.

OWN RECORD MATCHED

Miss Berto, an 18-year-old Olympic veteran, spun off the blocks in the long sprint and fought a stirring duel with Fulgencio Romay to win in 23.5 seconds — a clocking that equalled the Games record she set in the heats Saturday.

Miss Berto's team-mate, Patti Loverock of Vancouver, was eighth in 24.9. Miss Romay got the silver medal and Ester Stroy of the United States the bronze.

Miss Hoffman, 24-year-old veteran who has campaigned all over the world in her specialty, outdistanced an American and team-mate Peggy Werthner of Ottawa to win the 800 metres in two minutes, 5.5 seconds.

ANOTHER BRONZE

Miss Werthner, 19, won the bronze medal in 2:06.3.

Miss Hoffman, winner of the 800 metres gold medal in the 1963 Games, defended it four years later in Winnipeg and finished third behind gold medal winner Madeline Manning of the United states.

Sunday, the Americans had to settle for second place, won by Doris Brown of Seattle in 2:05.8.

UNEXPECTED SILVER

In the men's 1500 metres, Bill Smart of Vancouver won a silver medal with a surprising burst of speed in the final stretch.

Marty Liquori and Jim Crawford of the U.S. appeared to have the first two places clinched in the final 50 yards but Smart's sudden move split the two Americans and the Canadian miler took second place by an easy five strides.

Liquori won in a Games-record time of 3:42.1. Smart's 3:43.2 effort was also under the record of 3:43.4 set by American Tom Van Ruden in 1967.

Canada's seventh medal, a bronze, was won by Ain Roost of Toronto in the men's discus. Roost was particularly happy with his throw of 190 feet, 5 inches.

I'm very satisfied considering I haven't been in competition for quite a while," he said.

A FINE DAY

In team sports Sunday, the Canadian contingent didn't lose a game.

The baseball team bunched four of its six hits in the fourth inning to defeat Mexico, 2-1.

The soccer team overwhelmed the Dominican Republic, 4-0; in field hockey the Candians triumphed, 3-0, against Guyana; the men's basketball team defeated Colombia, 88-58, and the women's volleyball team beat Haiti, 3-0.

It was a different story for Canada in team sports Monday, however.

OUCH!

Colombia defeated Canada, 2-1, in soccer; the United States downed the Canadian baseball team, 7-1; Brazil defeated Canada, 3-0, in men's volleyball and Mexico edged Canada, 64-61, in women's basketball.

Only the Canadian men's field hockey team came through with a victory by 1-0 over Mexico.

ISLANDERS STAR

Angie Radanovich of Nanaimo was top scorer for the Canadian women's basketball team with 15 points, while Mary Coutts of Victoria had 12 points.

In rowing, Brazil broke Argentina's domination by winning the paired oars with cox. The Canadian pair of Robert Cunliffe of Victoria and John Wilkinson of Kamloops, coxed by Glen Battersby of Delta, was fourth.

CALI, Colombia (CP) — United States athletes took three track and field gold medals and dominated the women's gymnastics Monday to finish with a total of five golds for the day and move well ahead of second-place Cuba in the medal standings at the Pan-American games.

BIG EDGE IN GOLD

After three days of competition, the U.S. now has a total of 33 medals — 13 golds, 12 silver and eight bronze.

Cuba has 28, including six gold, 14 silver and eight bronze.

In track and field, the U.S. won gold medals in the 5000 metres and the men's shot put and climaxed the day with a gold in the decathlon.

Steve Prefontaine ran away with the 5000 metres, whipping his American team-mate, Steve Stageburg, by 75 yards. Mexico's Mario Perez made a game run in trying to catch the Americans and won the bronze medal.

Allan Feuerbach, a six-foot-one, 250-pounder, won the shot put gold, heaving the 16-pound iron ball 64 feet, 10 inches. Fellow-American Karl Salb, a six-foot-four, 290-pounder, beat out Canadian Mike Mercer of Toronto for the silver with a toss of 62' 8".

Mercer took the bronze with 59' 1".

Rick Wanamaker from Des Moines, won the two-day decathlon. Veteran Russell Hodge of the U.S. was second and Jesus Mirabal of Cuba was third.

Wanamaker put on a strong spurt in the closing events to win it with a total of 7648 points. hodge scored 7314 points and Mirabal 7295.

Wanamaker won the high jump, javelin and pole vault to boost his total.

Victoria Stays Unbeaten In Babe Ruth Tournament

Mike Squires' towering two-run homer gave Victoria Firefighters a 2-1 win over Trail Monday night and a berth in the Pacific Section winners' bracket final of the Babe Ruth 16-to-18-year-old baseball tournament at Royal Athletic Park.

The All-Stars from the Firefighters League will take on the powerful Northern California team from Fruitridge, a suburb of Sacramento.

In the equally exciting first game Monday night, Fruitridge edged South Bay from the defending champion Southern California region, 6-5, in eight innings.

It was the third straight victory for Victoria, who defeated Guam, 15-3, on the opening day of the nine-team, double-knockout tournament.

Firefighters downed Oregon's Crater Lake, 5-1, in one of four Sunday games.

The other three games were in the losers' bracket. Washington, represented by a team from Bellevue, shut out Guam, 11-0, and hammered the weak Alaskans from Ketchikan, 17-0.

In the other game, Oregon outslugged Carson City, 17-15, after losing a 14-4 lead when the Nevadans came up with a 10-run seventh inning.

LINN IN RARE FORM

Lefthanded Andy Linn shared honors with Squires in Victoria's Monday win, holding on in a tense pitching battle with right-hander Rick Babcock. An error preceded Squires' sixth-inning home run which brought a 2-0 lead.

Linn lost his no-hit bid and shutout in the Trail half of the sixth when Gary Picone and Terry McDougaul singled around a sacrifice bunt.

They were the only two hits

Laver Upset By Okker In Net Final

QUEBEC (CP) — Winning $20,000 in eight days can be a great feeling, tennis star Tom Okker of The Netherlands found out Sunday.

He turned the trick at the $50,000 Quebec international tennis open, defeating Rod Laver of Australia 6-3, 7-6, 6-7, 6-1 for the $10,000 first prize in singles. The win came right on the heels of a similar $10,000 prize last Sunday at the First National Classic in Louisville, Ky., and boosted the Dutch star's 1971 earnings to well over the $70,000 mark.

Laver, leading money winner on the $1 million, 20-city, World Championship Tennis tour with over $200,000, added $5,000 to that impressive total with his second-place finish.

Over 16,000 fans were attracted to the week-long tournament and saw superlative matches between 30 of the best tennis players in the world. The Quebec tournament was the 11th stop on the four which travels through North America, Europe, Asia and Australia.

Bosox and Dodgers Win Series Openers

Boston Red Sox and Los Angeles Dodgers both closed in Monday as they opened series with the division leaders they are chasing.

Closest of the runners-up in major league baseball, the Bosox moved within four and a half games of the lead in the American League East by burying Baltimore Orioles, 7-4, with a 13-hit attack.

JUST IN TIME

And the Dodgers came up with a three-run ninth inning to get past San Francisco Giants and cut the margin separating them from first place in the National League West to eight games.

Orioles got off to a 4-0 lead in the first inning but Bill Lee came on to relieve Luis Tiant and stopped the leaders cold the rest of the way.

Boston won it with a pair of home runs in the seventh inning a two-run blast by Reggie Smith and a bases-empty clout by Carl Yastrzemski, who had been benched Saturday for weak hitting.

Charlie Fox of the Giants sort of managed himself out of the decision. When the Dodgers started a threat in the ninth inning, he called in Jerry Johnson, who promptly got two outs, to relieve starter John Cumberland.

Then Fox brought in left-handed Steve Hamilton to face the lefthanded-hitting Willie Crawford. But Crawford singled and Pete Garvie won it with a three-run homer.

Defeat came after the Giants had boosted their lead slightly and brought some hope for pursuers in the National League East by sweeping a four-game set with Pittsburgh Pirates.

FREE SWINGING

The sweep ended Sunday with a free-swinging doubleheader win, 11-7 and 8-3. A three-run homer by Willie McCovey and a two-run double by Willie Mays helped win the first game. Rookie Dave Kingman, brought in from Phoenix to give McCovey some rest, hit two two-run homers in the second game.

SIZEABLE GAIN

St. Louis Cardinals didn't get a chance to do anything for themselves on Sunday because they were rained out, but they made the gain a game and a made the gain a game and a half on Monday by taking San Diego Padres, 3-1, with the Pirates idle.

That left the margin only eight games.

In the other divisional race, Oakland Athletics moved 13½ games in front Monday by knocking off the runner-up Kansas City Royals, 2-1.

Tennis Seedings Pass First Test

Seeded players all won their way through to the second round of the men's and women's singles when the British Columbia Open tennis championships began at the Victoria Racquet Club Monday.

Seasoned American tournament players dominated the seeding lists in both the open events and the Pacific Northwest Seniors championships, being run in conjunction with the open.

IT WAS EASY

Top-seeded Mike Mullan of Philadelphia cruised past Barry Waters of Victoria, 6-1, 6-2, in the men's singles and top-seeded Hedy Jackson of Portland won by default over Carol Castell of Mexico in the women's singles.

There were some great first-round battles between visiting players.

Robert Benton of California went three tough sets before defeating Hank Moon of California, 7-5, 4-6, 7-6.

Mike Vacchina of Nevada defeated Jose Cambria, one of Spain's leading juniors, 6-4, 6-4, and Juan Ceron of Mexico went down, 2-6, 4-6, to Robert Campbell of Texas

TOUCH STILL THERE

Veteran Dorothy Cheney, who as "Dodo" Bundy was one of America's leading players 25 years ago, showed she is still a force to be reckoned with as she brushed aside Celia Cousens of Victoria, 6-0, 6-0.

The tournament, sponsored by the B.C. Centennial Committee, ends Saturday.

Lawyer Says Sam Could Gain His Freedom

NEW YORK (AP) — The counsel for major-league baseball players said Monday the Sam McDowell contract dispute with Cleveland Indians must be resolved in court, and predicted McDowell will win his plea to become a free agent.

"The grievance procedure is for the purpose of resolving disputes which arise under the basic agreement between the Major League Baseball Players Association and the club owners," lawyer Dick Moss said.

"The basic agreement, however, specifically excludes individual salary negotiations from its coverage.

"The grievance procedure, therefore has no application, and the issue must be resolved in court where, in my opinion Sam will win."

Moss was commenting on the grievance the Indians filed during the weekend with the Players Association regarding McDowell's request that the Indians declare him a free agent following a breach-of-contract claim involving illegal bonus clauses.

HE'S WAITING

The ace lefthander who has a 10-10 record, had been suspended by the club for failing to report to games last Friday and Saturday.

"It is obvious that when Bowie Kuhn the commissioner of baseball ruled that the bonus provisions of Sam's contract were invalid, he should have required the Cleveland club to renegotiate a valid contract with same," Moss said.

"However, that's not what he's paid for. The clubs pay him to do what they want him to do, and that's what he does.

POINT IN QUESTION

"The question very simply was whether Sam was induced to sign on the basis of bonus promises of the club. If the answer is yes, then his whole contract is invalid because it was fraudulently induced."

On June 11, Kuhn ruled as illegal the bonus clauses by which McDowell's base salary of $72,000 could jump to $90,000 if he won 25 games this season and to $160,000 for 30 victories.

He also could earn an additional $2,000 for pitching 270 innings.

Children Come First

GOLD RIVER — Some of the newest concepts in children's playgrounds were offered during a recent visit by Jeinz Berger, parks consultant with the district of West Vancouver.

Invited by the recreation commission, he also gave a slide show and generally drew plaudits from everyone.

Mayor Les Cartwright said playgrounds designed by Berger are "fantastic."

Ald. Vic Welch said Berger's main theme was playgrounds for children aged seven years and under. Berger said the first four years are the best learning years.

He feels the best play grounds can be constructed of logs, rocks and gunnite cement structures with caves, different sized holes, poles and platforms so children can climb, find different ways to go up and down, and use their imagination.

The playgrounds should be strictly for children, with trained leaders, and kept out of bounds to adults. They should even be fenced so parents cannot see it. He said children have to learn to overcome dangers themselves.

Boat Explodes

Angler, Vessels Rush to Rescue

By MILDRED KURTZ

PARKSVILLE — An explosion and fire on a 21-foot pleasure boat sent a man to hospital suffering from burns and shock, following a boating accident just off Parksville at the weekend.

Len Porcella of Ladysmith was the lone occupant of the cruiser when the accident occurred, it was reported.

Prompt action of a sport fisherman angling in the area resulted in the rescue of the injured man within a few minutes of the mishap.

At the same time, the Parksville volunteer fire department arrived at French Creek boat harbor with the inhalator and first-aid equipment.

Following emergency treatment at the dock, Porcella, 37, was taken to Nanaimo Regional Hospital. Late Monday, hospital officials reported Porcella was in satisfactory condition with first-and-second-degree burns.

Officials reported the sea rescue was carried out by Bill Norman, address unknown.

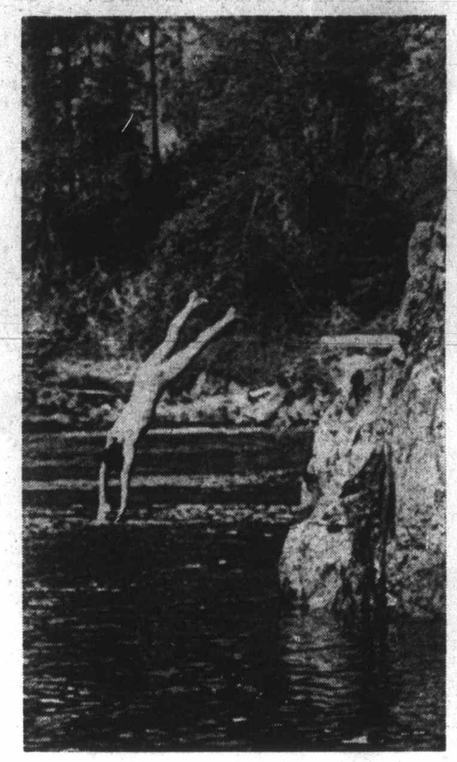
Although the cruiser was some distance out from Parksville, the spectacular blaze was clearly visible as the boat burned to the waterline and appeared to sink.

The doomed vessel was surrounded by assorted craft which had come to offer aid.

A number of attempts was made to tow the flaming boat to shore, but all proved unsuccessful.

Parksville beach was thronged with spectators, many of them vacationers and weekend visitors, who watched with horrified fascination as columns of black smoke rose from the boat, which had burst into flames in seconds.

The sea was calm, which made the rescue less difficult than it could have been.



Steady as a Rock

Gold River's Paul Webster shows his high-diving form, plunging from a 42-foot-high rock at popular Peppercorn Park swimming hole, on the Gold River. He's made 92 dives from same perch so far this summer and plans to make it an even 100 as his personal centennial project. He then plans to complete 100 dives from greater height into Heber River at other side of town.—(Betty MacMillan)

MLA Projecting Jumbo Thoughts

NANAIMO — MLA Frank Ney has requested Highways Minister Wesley Black to put jumbo ferries on the Nanaimo Horseshoe Bay run.

Ney said the increased capacity is necessary because of record traffic this year and consistent summer overloads, even during the week.

A jumboized ferry has a capacity of about 200 cars where the ordinary ferries on the Nanaimo run now take an average of 130 cars. Ney estimated it costs about $2 million to jumboize a ferry.

There are two jumbos on the Tsawwassen-Swartz Bay run, and three ordinary size. Four ferries make the run between Nanaimo and Horseshoe Bay.

Ney said ferry traffic is increasing by about 10 per cent per year.

There are nightly lineups for the ferries leaving Nanaimo, and Fridays and Sundays many tourists have longer than the normal two-hour wait when they miss a ferry.

Another point to be considered is that while more and more ferries are being stretched — jumboized — on the Swartz Bay-Tsawwassen run, the opposite has been true for the Nanaimo-Horseshoe Bay link.

But even with the stretching, the Swartz Bay-Tsawwassen route has had some dandy pileups of traffic this summer.

Exclusive Nanaimo Subdivision

Residents Flay Suite Plan

NANAIMO — The residents of Hawthorne Hill, an exclusive subdivision near the outskirts of Nanaimo at Wakesiah Avenue and Bowen Road, came to a city council meeting Monday to protest a proposed apartment development in their area.

The city advisory planning commission had recommended that council approve the plan of Explorer Developments Ltd. to build nine small apartment buildings and a 12-storey highrise on a section of the subdivision.

The residents — and they had with them a petition signed by people from 37 of the 40 properties — claimed they have a long-standing agreement with the city that the subdivision remain for single-family dwellings only.

One of the spokesmen, Art Lionel, said a sudden influx of 300 families into the subdivision would strain and congest the facilities.

Another speaker, Fred Douglas, who built the first home in the subdivision, said rezoning to allow multiple residential would be a "flagrant contravening" of the primary agreement made between the city and residents of the area 15 years ago, when it was first being developed.

Douglas said people in the subdivision have been subjected to "very high taxes" because they've entered into a number of local improvement schemes when the city did not have the finances. He said he pays $2,038 a year in taxes for a three-bedroom home with no basement.

John Cook, a former alderman who was on council when Hawthorne Hill was being developed, said he has sympathy for the residents who pay "tremendous taxes," but that he could not remember any written agreement.

Council agreed to study the whole situation in committee. However, no date was set for the committee study.

Storm Lights Fiery Trail

LAKE COWICHAN — One forestry official termed the recent outbreak of fires here "the biggest since 1963."

More than 15 lightning fires were reported Saturday and Sunday. Ten were controlled by the Lake Cowichan forest service while the remainder was turned over to Port Alberni, Parksville and Duncan.

Ten fires in the Lake Cowichan district did not cover a total of more than one acre.

"Three were patrolled from the air and extinguished themselves; six have crews working on them now, and the other was extinguished by a forest service airplane," said the spokesman Monday.

One Plane, 32 Men

The fires are being controlled by a group of about 3[illegible] men with the aid of an airplane.

The fires were caused by a lightning storm which hit the area Saturday afternoon to Sunday morning. A second effect of that storm was to reduce the fire hazard from extreme to moderate.

Temperatures have also dropped — Monday's reading was 78 degrees while temperatures last week ranged in the high 80s and low 90s.

At Duncan, crews also fought several small lightning blazes — at Shawnigan Lake and on Mount Sickler. A forestry spokesman at Duncan said the total area burned did not exceed one acre. All fires are under control.

Campbell vs. Dairy Problems:

I'll Settle Them

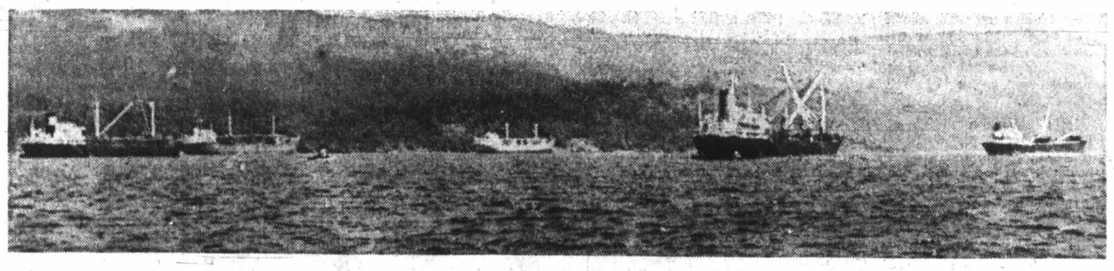
COURTENAY — "I've settled dairy problems before and I'll settle them again," Dan Campbell municipal affairs minister, said Monday in telephone interview from Williams Lake.

He was referring to a statement made by Comox Valley dairymen and farmers, who claimed recently the minister was "hard to get hold of."

Campbell claimed they have never had difficulty in getting in touch with him. "If they don't contact me," he stated, "I'll contact them."

Campbell said he had already been in touch with Mayor Frank Ney of Nanaimo, who is also an MLA, and that a meeting for August 14 is tentatively scheduled for Comox.

It is understood all parties concerned will discuss the dairy problem, which concerns bringing in milk from Vancouver to detriment of Comox Valley farmers, and that future plans may be made to alleviate the fears that the Island daily industry is on the way out of existence.



World-Famous Spot Carries Its Share of Freight

Cowichan Bay resembles a convoy-gathering point Monday morning as five large merchant vessels are anchored in world-famous fishing spot to take on logs while a sixth—Nego Victoria from Bergen, Norway—was busy loading about 18 million board feet of lumber for Baltimore, Md., at the wharf. Norwegian freighter left Monday afternoon. Meanwhile, opinions are divided as to wisdom of having freighters loading logs in bay, depending on whether you are a logger, fisherman or just private resident. So far, everyone has done well, including the fishermen.—(Klaus Muenter)

Wage Laws In One Act

Chabot's Stand Appalls Women

Minimum wage laws for males and females in B.C. will likely be combined into one act quite soon, Labor Minister James Chabot said Monday.

Chabot made the prediction as he met with representatives from Victoria Voice of Women, Victoria Women's Caucus and Thomas More Centre.

Already, he said, wages are comparable for both sexes in B.C. and although the men and women are listed under separate acts, there are not separate standards. Linda Sproule-Jones, one of VOW representatives, alleged, however, that more categories of women were excluded from the laws than categories of men.

The women, Mrs. Sproule-Jones, Kathleen Ruff, also from VOW, Fiona Gow from the Women's Caucus, and Mary-Jo Dixon from the Thomas More Centre, met with Chabot in his office for about 50 minutes to discuss the Sandringham hospital strike situation and other problems of women in the labor force.

The four women, said after the meeting they were "extremely disappointed ... appalled ... flabbergasted" by the meeting and by Chabot's attitude

"He showed no understanding of the human element involved and no sympathy to the problems of working women," said Mrs Ruff.

Chabot had reiterated his stand that he has no authority to intervene in the strike of 28 nurses' aides at Sandringham private hospital at 1650 Fort.

As well, he said, he did not believe in compulsion and what the women wanted him to do was force the owners to sign a contract.

He would, he said, ask Health Minister Ralph Loffmark to investigate recent charges of mismanagement and inefficiency at the hospital.

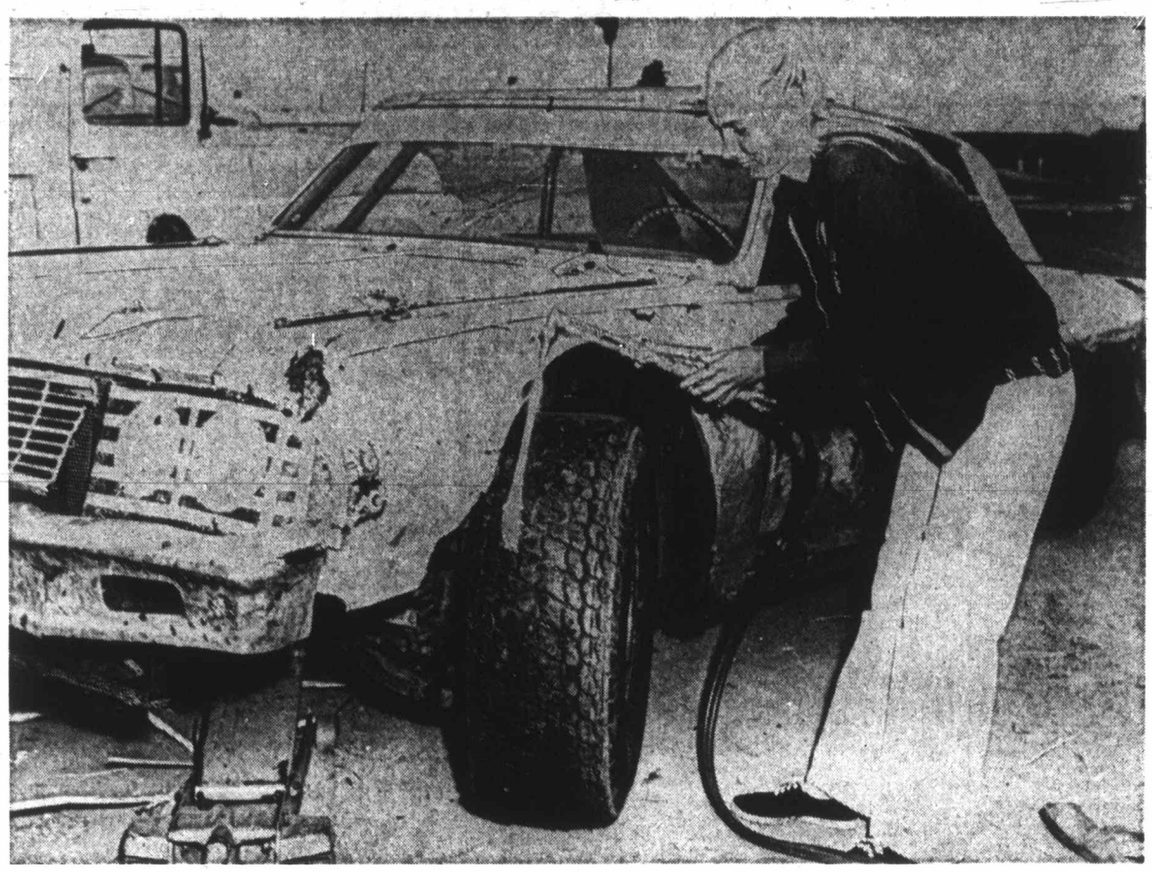
During the meeting, Mrs. Ruff said the Sandringham strike was an example to all the women of B.C. who were providing a "cheap labor supply" not to try to organize to improve their lot, not to have hope they could better their condition. It was obvious they could not, she said, because the government would not support them against the employers.

After the meeting, Chabot said he had found it "productive."

"Any exchange of ideas is always productive," he said.

Recycling Begins

Display to mark start of Recycling Week in Greater Victoria went up in showcase of public library Monday. Preparing display are, left to right, Elaine Dickson of 1032 McGregor, and Jennifer Clark of 561 Cedar. Both are working for Project Recycle which will have information booths throughout the area this week to inform people about recycling. (Ellis Shipman)



Mrs. Ferro does repair job on racing car

'I Do Body Work Too, But Enjoy Engines More'

Mom's Life a Drag Strip

Colonist-Los Angeles Times Service

GARDENA, Calif. — After Charlene Ferro finishes the dishes and puts the kids to bed at night, she heads for the family garage to work on her racing car.

After Charlene's husband Ed goes to work in the morning, she tidies up their Gardena home and heads for the garage to work on HIS racing car.

On Sundays, she and Ed and children Danny, Debbie, Diane and Dawn Dee go racing. Charlene in the Women's Racing Association oval races and Ed in the rough-and-tumble figure 8 criss-cross at nearby Ascot Park. The children, ages five to 11, form a private cheering section and collect the trophies.

"Ed pretty well leaves me alone with my car," said Mrs. Ferro setting aside her welding torch. "You can see, I do the body work, too, but I enjoy working on the engines more.

"I rebuilt Ed's engine myself while he was building another car after his was 'totalled' in an intersection crash at Ascot. I'd never done anything mechanical like this before we were married, but I picked it up watching Ed.

"It sure beats sitting around at home. I used to sit in the house, wondering what to do, while Ed was working in the garage. So, I joined him."

Apparently her mechanical and driving aptitudes mesh, for Mrs. Ferro is the current association point leader with 10 main event victories in her last 13 starts. Ed is leading in the expert division of the figure 8s.

The women race 20-lap main events and eight-lap heat races on Ascot's quarter-mile dirt oval, hitting speeds of about 70 miles per hour on the short straightaways before sliding through the turns.

Both Charlene and Ed race '65 Chevelles, but on the occasions when Ed runs in a NASCAR race, guess who's car he drives — his wife's.

"Her car runs faster and is set up better for oval races," said Ed with unblushing pride in his wife's accomplishments. "She can take an engine apart and rebuild it from start to finish.

"She started out doing little things to help me and she learned quickly. One day, about four years ago, I left a torn-down engine on the engine stand when I went to work. When I came home she'd pulled the pan, put in new rod bearings and replaced the pan. Since then, she's learned to do it all."

Charlene also is chairman of the association, a group of about 25 women who race twice a month at Ascot.

They race for purses of about $500 a program, with the winning driver getting from $55 to $85.

"It's not a lot of money, but if you're winning, it's a nice way to pay for your hobby," explained Mrs. Ferro. "And, like I said, it keeps me occupied, and keeps the kids interested in what the family's doing."

One thing she isn't interested in — women's lib. She has no ambitions to compete against men at the racetrack.

"The men have problems enough without women trying to move in on their races," she believes. "I don't like to see women pushing their way in. We women have our fun, with our own racing, and I think that's plenty good enough."

Centennial Dahlia Garden Open to Public Wednesday

Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis will officiate at dedication ceremony of the display and trial dahlia Garden in Saanich at 7 p.m. Wednesday.

Several Saanich aldermen, members of the Greater Victoria centennial committee and other invited guests will also attend the public ceremony at the garden in Lambrick Park.

The garden is the centennial project of the Victoria Glad and Dahlia Society. It is hoped it will eventually be a trial garden where any dahlia grower on the North American continent may ship his seedlings to be grown for trial purposes under local weather conditions.

It was hoped the dahlias would be in full bloom by the time of the dedication ceremony, but Mrs. Dorothy Eveleigh, president of the society, said Monday the late summer had slowed down the growth.

However, she said, some were blooming, and society members were putting in some last-minute work on the garden this week to have it looking as nice as possible for the ceremony.

Bill Kempster, of 730 Greenlea Drive, Saanich, is garden superintendent, assisted by Tom Leslie.

Castillo Styles Nice Surprise

PARIS (AP) — The Castillo fashions presented Friday came as an agreeable surprise.

Castillo's name has been sold again and purchased by a former Cardin financial director, Jean Patrick Cavinet.

The designer, Robert Nelissen, a Dutchman, has placed his first collection well up front. His daytime clothes are "with it" featuring professional know-how in cut, fabrics, color contrasts and above all, new treatments. About 100 models are shown.

The now perennial black body stocking or knitted tights are treated to bra bodices sometimes cut assymetrically but "dressing" the upper part of winter pants or Bermuda ensembles.

For Cocktails, however, focus is again on bosoms and midriffs and new exposures of bare skin just skirt the frontiers of decency. A "bunny" cocktail number is shirred coffee tulle trails a bustle bow and long sash just for fun.

Castillo-Cavinet feature skin-tight Bermudas shown under trench coats, swing coats or bathrobe styles in wonderful reversible wools. The coat fabric is exploited for the corselet bras and pants or skirt.

The collection is largely based on Bermuda jumpsuits and changeable tunics. Bishop sleeves are for day, batwing for evening, except in an excellent daytime great coat with a cuffed hemline. Upright spreading cape collars are sometimes deeply pointed.

A flight of fancy inspires an all-fur Bermuda suit. The tailored cropped jacket tops skin-tight lamb Bermudas.

Woman Eyes Top Seat

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Representative Shirley Chisholm (Dem.-N.Y.) said Saturday she is considering running for the United States presidency in 1972.

The second-term congresswoman, a member of the House of Representatives black caucus, said any final decision would "be dependent on what happens with the coalitions we are developing to change the direction of the Democratic party."

"If certain developments do not occur," she said, "I may be a mover for a third party ... The only thing I'm going to say at this time is that we're working to bring about some coalitions ... which can perhaps work within one of the parties to restructure the whole system."

Olympic Games Not Romance Princess' Aim

LONDON (AP) — For the moment, it looks as if horses are more important than men in Princess Anne's life.

The princess, who will be 21 Aug. 15, was joined by 100 of her friends Monday night aboard the royal yacht Britannia for a pre-birthday dinner and dance.

But riding in the Olympics next year — not socializing — is her main aim right now.

Anne began riding at three and has loved horses ever since. For three years she has been training intensely in jumping.

Allison Oliver, her coach, comments: "Even if her name was Anne Bloggs, I wold say that she is good enough to ride for Britain in top international events."

Officials say that if she is selected for Britain's equestrian team it will be on the basis of her ability, not her blue blood.

Anne lives in the goldfish bowl, British publications record her merest frown or gaffe.

The treatment can upset boy-friends. The princess went to see the musical Hair with London sugar broker Sandy Harper, 22. She made headlines by jumping on-stage to dance with the cast.

Harper later dropped out of view because, friends said, of the strain of squiring a princess who is constantly under reporters' eyes.

Another friend is 32-year-old Richard Meade, an equestrian gold medallist for Britain in the 1968 Olympics.

Anne once said that she "might just fall in love at first sight."

Strike Slows the Suds

There's Nothing Worse Than a Pub with No Beer

By DON COLLINS

Nothing, be it war, famine, epidemic, flood, earthquake, attack from outer space or enraged mother-in-law, will test the nerves of a man as much as the mere thought of a beer strike.

Tell the tough medal winner his beer supply is threatened and watch him go to pieces.

Take Uncle Amos, for instance. (Something Aunt Katrinka was always advocating, but no one would oblige.)

He fought his way in and out of many love nests and once tangled with three suspicious husbands at the same time. Didn't ask for help. Didn't bat an eye.

On one occasion he fell down a flight of stairs breaking a bottle of scotch in his back pocket. As the liquid ran along his back, he exclaimed:

"My God, I hope that's blood I feel."

A brave man through and through. Made of stern stuff.

But then one day a beer strike hit Toronto. Uncle Amos went a little funny.

It was the first time Aunt Katrinka had ever heard him cry. The strike sort of came in stages and while some supplies were still moving about Uncle Amos took to hiding behind lampposts and telephone poles and watching for wayward beer trucks.

He threw himself in front of one crying: "Give me beer or death."

As it turned out, he got a mud-spattered face instead. The driver veered at the last moment and skidded through a puddle.

When the strike ended Uncle Amos poured beer over his head and down the back of his neck and sprayed himself under the arms with it. Aunt Katrinka joined in the fun. She hit him over the head with an empty.

Uncle amos has long since gone to the great beer garden in the sky — or elsewhere. But if he were around today he'd certainly understand the behavior of normally rational men caught in B.C.'s current strike-lockout situation.

"It's pretty fantastic," a weary liquor store clerk in Vancouver told the Colonist Saturday night.

"We got about 540 cases in here today and do you know, they were gone within the hour — gone within the hour, that is."

The severe shortage — confined mostly to the Lower Mainland is the result of the strike by the Beverage Dispensers Union at Labatt Breweries and the lockout of Brewery and Soft Drink Workers at Molson Breweries in Greater Vancouver.

The clerk — stationed in a store at Granville and 70th, away from the core of the city — said it is amazing to note how quickly the thirsty public learns of a beer delivery.

"When there's a beer truck anywhere in the area the word spreads like crazy."

Victoria and Vancouver Island remain a sort of haven for the thirsty. With the Labatt Brewery plant operating in Victoria under a separate contract, stores and hotels were — for the most part — not feeling much effect. Stores were out of some brands, but not out of beer.

Which meant that by Saturday they were being visited by the most desperate of the dry Mainlanders.

This is certainly what Uncle Amos would have done. He wouldn't have even waited for a ferry.

Hush Over Socreds

The Sandringham Private Hospital strike took some interesting turns Saturday along the ground, into the air and smack through some healthy servings of strawberries and ice cream.

The strike became airborne when the Canadian Union of Public Employees hired a plane to tow the large-lettered message "Settle Sandringham Strike" over the Social Credit Party picnic at Beacon Hill Park.

Meanwhile, local unionists and others from out of town — an estimated 50 — stepped up picketing activity in front of the hospital at 1650 Fort.

They carried out what they called a "changing of the guard" at regular intervals as small groups of pickets replaced one another. This was necessary because of a recent court order limiting pickets to no more than five at any one time.

The ground-level program spread to the Socred picnic where the party was celebrating 19 years of government rule.

After Premier Bennett and his wife cut a special birthday cake about six unionists arrived on the scene and began handing out a tabloid presenting the union's side of the strike.

In return, they were offered servings of strawberries and ice cream.

"They accepted," a union spokesman said. "It was a fair exchange."

He said a "sort of hush" fell over the party faithful as the plane buzzed past with the union's message.

The move was part of a stepped-up publicity campaign being waged by the union on behalf of the 28 women who have been on strike against the hospital for 10 months in their fight for a first contract.

Most were earning the $1.50 an hour minimum wage and were seeking job security.

Home Loot $640,000

NAPLES (UPI) — Thieves stole $640,000 worth of jewels, silver and furs from the wife of shipping magnate Achille Lauro while the couple was on vacation. Police said entry was gained by cutting a hole in the bathroom wall, and the thieves hauled away two safes.

Duncan Student Captures Bronze Medal

A 16-year-old Shawnigan Lake student attending Cowichan high school in Duncan has been awarded the Governor-General's bronze medal as the second-ranking student in B.C.'s Grade 12 scholarship examinations.

Gary Bruce Little, winner of the award, achieved a 98.5-per-cent average in physics and chemistry.

The silver medal went to Hilary Maddison Powell, of Vancouver, the top-ranking student in the examinations.

Miss Powell, who attended Crofton House School in Vancouver, earned a 99-per-cent average on her English literature and Latin papers.

Education Minister Donald Brothers said he was pleased the top award went to a student in the humanities subjects. The award is usually won by a science student.

Brothers also announced that 2,013 students will qualify for scholarships. The assistance goes to those getting more than 70 per cent on the scholarship exams provided the number doesn't exceed 17 per cent of total enrolment in Grade 12.

Gold River Eyes Change

GOLD RIVER — Gold River council is considering the change of status of Gold River from that of a district municipality to a village. In a report to council, municipal Clerk Norman Paulson listed the advantages and disadvantages of such a change.

Included in the points in favor of such a change, Paulson indicated that assessment, policing and welfare costs would not be the responsibility of a village. At the present time these combined costs amount to $41,600 This amoung includes $2,500 for assessments, policing costs $19,900 and $19,200 is the budgeted amount for contribution to Social Welfare and Rehabilitation.

Paulson said the provisions for borrowing are more restrictive in respect to villages. They would preclude, for instance any borrowing in respect to recreation. Borrowing by villages for debts other than temporary current borrowings shall not exceed 10 per cent of the assessed value for general municipal purposes of the taxable land and improvements, as compared to 20 per cent for borrowings by cities, towns and districts.

Ald. Don Clark said, "There are definitely some advantages, but would we find that we're limited in certain things, borrowing for instance."

Paulson replied that at the present time the borrowing is well in line with the 10 per cent allowed for villages. Paulson also pointed out it would mean a considerable saving at the present time and if the population of Gold River increased sufficiently, it could again become a district municipality.

Council agreed to a motion by Ald. Pat Haigh the matter be table until the full council was present.

He was born in Nanaimo, the son of the late W. H. Philpott who operated a restaurant on Conmercial Street in the early days of the city.

Kinnettes Sponsor Blood Day

GOLD RIVER — Gold River Kinnette Club will sponsor a Red Cross blood donor clinic here Friday in the firehall of the Public Safety Building. The clinic will be open from 2:30 to 4:30 p.m. and 6 to 8 p.m.

The Red Cross blood transfusion service is going into its 25th year in Canada, with the first blood donor clinic held in Vancouver in 1947. Red Cross officials say since then the need for blood and blood products has grown enormously as surgical and medical techniques have developed and population has increased.

To illustrate the growth of this life-giving service, it now takes 1,900 donors a week or about 400 donors a day to take care of the 30,000 patients a year in B.C.-Yukon who have need of blood.

Impaired Driver Banned, Fined

Crash Error By Flight I

MORIOKA, Japan (UPI) — An air self-defence force flight instructor's navigational error was blamed Monday for the mid-air collision Friday that killed 162 persons in the worst aviation disaster in history, police said.

Police said Capt. Tamotsu Kuma erroneously led himself and a pilot trainee in another plane to fly too close to a commercial air route.

The trainee's F86 jet fighter collided with the Boeing 727 All Nippon Airways jet, killing all aboard the passenger plane. The fighter pilot, Sgt. 2-C Yoshimi Ichikawa, bailed out safely.

Police said Kuma Monday retracted an earlier statement and admitted his error.

'Better Than Transplants'

Artificial Hearts Near

By JOE ALEX MORRIS Jr.
Colonist-Los Angeles Times Service

ROSTOCK, East Germany — In the future, a man with a bad heart will be able to drop it off at a clinic for repairs while he goes his merry way fitted with an artificial substitute.

This is the fantastic and confident prediction of East Germany's leading organ transplant specialist, Dr. Horst Klinkmann. The artificial heart will be ready in three years and will be in clinics within five years, he said in an interview.

He is confident that for moral as well as practical reasons, the artificial heart will win out over the transplant of human organs on either a temporary or permanent basis. "The heart is a relatively simple organ, and using polyurethane as the construction material, there is no problem with rejection at all," said the 36-year-old specialist, who is the first East German ever to get an American professorship.

Most of the patients given heart transplants have died because their bodies ultimately rejected the foreign organ.

Klinkmann returned to Rostock University last year after a year in residence at the University of Utah. While there, he delivered guest lectures in 24 American universities.

He is best known for an artificial kidney he developed in co-operation with Dr. Hans-Juergen Wilke. The membrane employed, which they produce on sausage skin-making machines, is regarded as the best and is now being bought by U.S. firms.

Klinkmann believes medical science has now reached the threshold of its most dramatic era. "Medicine is now developing the way physics and chemistry did at the beginning of the century," he said.

His optimism about the heart is based partly on the fact that it is a muscle, and not a complicated biochemical organ such as the liver or the kidneys. An artificial pump can be built, and the problem or regulating it has already been solved with the Pacemaker.

The great advantage with the artificial heart is that it will allow doctors to remove the natural heart, freeze it, and make the necessary repairs, he said.

" . . . In two-thirds of the cases, the original heart could be returned after it was repaired," he said. "In the other one-third, the people could survive with artificial hearts in their bodies."

Hookup Slowed

HOUSTON (AP)—The Apollo 15 astronauts rocketed off the moon Monday with bags full of lunar secrets, linking up with their mothership in orbit around the moon for the first step home, but they ran into temporary trouble.

On the verge of jettisoning their faithful lunar lander Falcon, the same craft that had carried them to the moon and back again, an odd pressure reading was noted between the chambers of the spacecraft.

It posed the question, was there a pressure leak? And where?

Mission Control delayed the jettisoning of the lunar lander for two hours while the crew — astronauts, David Scott, Alfred Worden and James Irwin — performed checks. When no leak was discovered in the command ship, the Falcon was finally dropped away at 6:05 p.m. PDT.

But Falcon did not move out of the way as it should have. Command pilot Scott was about to fire his own manoeuvring jets when he called down to earth:

"She's about 150 feet dead ahead." For reasons not yet determined the lunar craft was still sitting there in the sun in front of them.

Scott informed Mission Control, and officials there quickly radioed back: "Hold the burn, Dave."

They then readjusted the jet firings and Endeavour itself was manoeuvred carefully away from Falcon, which crashed into the moon at 8:04 p.m.

The sudden discrepancy in pressure reading that delayed Falcon's jettison was reminiscent of a Soviet tragedy, the loss of three cosmonauts aboard Soyuz 11 June 30. They were killed when there was a sudden pressure drop in their spaceship during re-entry.

Mission Control in commenting on the problem said the astronauts were in no danger.

If there were a leak, the astronauts had two alternatives. They could have re-

Eskimos Helped By Rare Serum

QUEBEC (CP) — One Fort Chimo Eskimo has died and nine others have been flown south to hospital suffering from botulism poisoning after eating white whale meat which had been dried in the sun.

The condition of the nine survivors was reported as satisfactory Monday after they were treated with a rare serum.

Dr. Normand Tremblay of Fort Chimo, 900 miles north of Montreal, informed the medical centre at Laval University Saturday night that he had 10 patients suffering from poisoning.

By Sunday, one of the patients had died and Dr. Tremblay decided to send the others, including two children, to the Laval hospital in Quebec City and Maisonneuve Hospital in Montreal.

No serum was available in Quebec but Royal Victoria Hospital authorities in Montreal located some at the Connaught laboratory in Toronto. By early Sunday it was on its way to Laval in a Canadian Armed Forces aircraft.

Steel Prices Zoom Higher

PITTSBURGH (AP) — U.S. Steel, the industry pacesetter, announced Monday a price increase averaging eight per cent on virtually all its products, and other leading American companies followed suit. Tht move promised to drive up the cost of all kinds of consumer products, ranging from trucks to toasters, but probably not immediately.

Bethlehem Steel was the first to follow the U.S. Steel lead and Armco Steel was next.

Republic Steel and Youngstown Sheet and Tube fell in line with the others Monday night.

The White House said it is "questionable whether the increase is in the industry's long-run interest." Deputy press secretary Gerald L. Warren said that "price increases of this magnitude and at this time are bound to have an adverse affect on the tonnage of steel produced in the United States and on jobs in the steel industry."

The U.S. Steel increase is intended mainly to offset the cost of a new three-year contract approved barely 12 hours earlier between the industry and the United Steelworkers union, the company said.

Word of the U.S. Steel increase, which is to be spread over five months, came before most of the country's steel production lines were operating again. Anticipating a strike rather than settlement, most steelmakers began shutting down last week, and the startup process is expected to take another 10 days at least.

U.S. Steel said the new United Steelworkers' contract, which provides for a 30-percent wage increase spread over three years, would raise its labor costs an estimated 15 per cent.

Taiwan Accepts New U.S. Policy

From AP, UPI

WASHINGTON — More than 20 years of American opposition to a United Nations seat for Communist China ended Monday with State Secretary William Rogers' announcement that the United States will support UN membership for Peking.

However, part of the new policy will be an American fight against expelling the Nationalist Chinese government based on Taiwan from the world body.

After outlining the reasons he said dictated a change in policy dating to the 1949 Communist takeover of the mainland, Rogers told a news conference:

"The United States accordingly will support action at the General Assembly this fall calling for seating the People's Republic of Communist China. At the same time the United States will oppose any action to expel the Republic of Nationalist China or otherwise deprive it of representation in the United Nations."

In his statement and in answering questions later, the secretary emphasized the Nixon administration belief that the interests of world peace will best be served by UN membership for Peking as well as Taiwan.

The Nationalist government, which Rogers said was fully consulted along with other interested countries before his announcement, indicated it accepts the new U.S. policy and will fight for both its General Assembly seat and its membership on the Security Council.

The Taiwan foreign ministry, while not directly addressing Rogers' statement, said it would base its claim on the UN charter, which among other things specifically names the Republic of China as the representative in the General Assembly and Security Council.

The Republic of China is the official name of the Nationalist government.

This is a turnabout in Taiwan's position, which previously was that the Nationalists would not accept any sort of two-China UN policy, a stand also taken by Peking.

The mainland government was not consulted in advance.

British Rolls-Royce Staff Pleased by Lockheed Aid

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. Senate approved a quarter-billion dollar loan guarantee for the bankruptcy-threatened Lockheed Aircraft Corp. by one vote Monday. President Nixon greeted the action with "gratitude and deep satisfaction."

The 49-48 vote giving final congressional approval to legislation permitting the government to guarentee $250 million in bank loans to the giant airplane builder "will contribute greatly to the economic strength of the country as a whole" and "save tens of thousands of jobs," the president said in a statement.

Senate approval of the house-passed measure assured continuation of Lockheed's production of the L1011 Tristar, a mammoth commercial jetliner, and saved the company from what it said would be certain bankruptcy.

In London, relief was expressed. An estimated 10,000 British Rolls-Royce workers are affected.

Rolls-Royce went bankrupt early this year, with the British government taking over its aircraft engines division.

The government guaranteed continued production of the RB 211 jet engine, the power plant for the Tristar, but only if the U.S. government guaranteed Lockheed's survival.

Senate opponents had argued in vain since July 21 when the debate began that a government guarantee would mean a bailout for Lockheed and would violate the free enterprise principle.

Proponents countered that the government normally goes to the aid of all business, big and little, and that it took no risk in guaranteeing the Lockheed loan. But if it did not, they said, it would add to the unemployment problem by putting the Tristar workers on the jobless list.

Crash Error Admitted By Flight Instructor

MORIOKA, Japan (UPI) — An air self-defence force flight instructor's navigational error was blamed Monday for the mid-air collision Friday that killed 162 persons in the worst aviation disaster in history, police said.

Police said Capt. Tamotsu Kuma erroneously led himself and a pilot trainee in another plane to fly too close to a commercial air route.

The trainee's F86 jet fighter collided with the Boeing 727 All Nippon Airways jet, killing all aboard the passenger plane. The fighter pilot, Sgt. 2-C Yoshimi Ichikawa, bailed out safely.

Police said Kuma Monday retracted an earlier statement and admitted his error.

Kuma told police he and Ichikawa were flying in formation and he was unaware of the airliner's course until a few seconds before the collision. Kuma said he was flying about 1.2 miles ahead of Ichikawa, police said.

Kuma said when he saw the commercial plane behind Ichikawa's F86, he banked sharply to the right and pulled up. He said he had instructed Ichikawa to do the same, but it was too late for the trainee to carry out the emergency procedure, police said.

In Tokyo, Prime Minister Eisaku Sato ordered a review of the existing aviation control system and promised compensation to the families of the victims.

Common Problems on Victoria Agenda

Premiers Will Avoid Charter

By IAN STREET
Colonist Legislative Reporter

There will be no bid by provincial premiers who begin two days of meetings here Thursday to revive the Victoria Charter, Premier Bennett indicated Monday.

He was commenting on reports from sources in Eastern Canada which said the premiers would discuss the Victoria Charter on the constitution, drawn up here in mid-June, and later vetoed by Quebec.

Bennett, who as host will be conference chairman, indicated constitutional problems won't be on the agenda for the meetings which will continue behind closed doors through Friday.

Like past meetings of premiers, Bennett added, the conference will deal with problems common to provincial governments across Canada, such as fiscal matters and environmental control.

Most of the premiers are expected to arrive here Wednesday. Bennett will greet them officially on the steps of the legislature before the first closed session begins at 10 a.m. Thursday.

Reporters will be allowed into the conference late Friday when the business has been completed to ask questions of the premiers. Bennett said no opening statements will be issued and no final communique issued at the conference's end.

The Victoria Charter, which proposes a formula for patriating Canada's constitution from Westminster where it must now be amended by the British Parliament, was given provisional approval by provincial premiers and Prime Minister Trudeau here in June.

SECOND NEWS SECTION — VICTORIA, BRITISH COLUMBIA, TUESDAY, AUGUST 3, 1971 — PAGE THIRTEEN

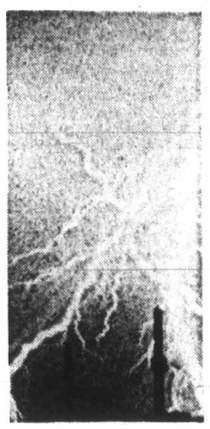
Cloudy Weather

The brief flurry of thunderstorms over the weekend seemed to have heralded the end of sunny, warm weather, at least for the time being.

According to the weather office at Victoria International Airport, it will be mostly cloudy today with showers and more clouds forecast for Wednesday.

What caused Sunday's rare thunder? The weather office says it was a sudden surge of cool air replacing warmer air. The noise originated in the ridge areas of Sooke and the Malahat.

Lightning played up and down the Island, starting a number of small forest fires, all of which were either out or well under control by Monday night.



Hot Flash

A Jonah Confesses

The Curse of Kitchener

By DON COLLINS

You heard the rumble of thunder over Victoria Sunday, of course

Doesn't happen often in these parts. So everyone hears about it and talks about it and laughs or cries (depending on how they feel about the roll of Mother Nature's drums).

Well, there's one guy who talks about it before it happens.

Me.

That's right.

Saturday afternoon I turned to Jim Brahan, a veteran reporter and seaman who knows a lot about the weather and I told him I could feel a thunderstorm coming — probably by Sunday.

He paid me no heed. Which is usually the best way to treat people who say insane things.

For everyone knows you aren't likely to hear thunder in Victoria more than once every two or three years.

When Brahan heard the first crack of thunder Sunday he thought of me immediately.

"Stay away from me," he said Monday. "You're spooky."

I guess maybe I am. Where the weather is concerned, anyway.

Somehow or other there has long been something between the elements and me that defies explanation. A sort of frightening connection.

It showed itself first when I was very young and was dragged off to a picnic against my will. I had wanted to stay home and play ball with the other kids.

It was a beautiful day. Not a cloud in the sky. But to be spiteful, I told my parents it would rain as soon as we drove the 30 miles to the picnic site.

As soon as the food had been passed around there was a loud crashing sound in the heavens and a river of rain sent everyone scurrying for cover.

"You'll have to do something about that awful child," a relative said afterward to my mother.

Years later strange things began to happen each time I wrote a weather story. I became known as the curse of Kitchener, Ont.

Each time I quoted the weatherman, the opposite would occur. If he said the weekend would be sunny and a treat for holidayers, storms would wash out their tents and ruin their food.

On other occasions the weatherman would tell me there was no snow expected and motorists would become trapped by blizzards.

Things like this, repeated almost daily, cause people to become ill-tempered. There were times when I received threatening phone calls. No one thought of blaming the weatherman. They looked on me as the real culprit.

Then I moved to the West Coast and looked forward to my first winter in Victoria, where snow is seldom seen.

Just before the Christmas holiday, I jokingly told a couple of fellow workers: "Lock your doors — you're going to be snowed in."

Two days later — Boxing Day, 1968 — 18 inches of snow buried Victoria, a record unmatched even in some northern towns.

Some people laughed about my funny prediction. Others, with cars stuck on the side of the road, suggested I get out of town..

I guess that's the way it will always be with me.

Now, about that earthquake . . .

Extension to Royal Oak

Approval in Principle Given Sewer Proposal

Expansion of Saanich's sewer enterprise area into the Royal Oak district was approved in principle Monday night by Saanich council.

However, the motion was passed with the understanding that other areas which Saanich has been committed to servicing would be sewered first. No date was given for the Royal Oak work.

Municipal planner Tom Loney, describing the Royal Oak area to council, said 750 acres of the area is planned for residential development while 330 acres is planned for development other than residential.

Loney said about 1,000 persons live in the areas of Royal Oak where sewerage extension is proposed.

He said the planning department estimates an additional 13,000 persons could eventually live in the areas slated for sewerage.

Boundaries for sewerage, it was pointed out by Loney, would later have to be decided by committee.

Commerce Sought

Loney said roughly 168,000 persons could be accommodated by Saanich's existing sewer enterprise area. Fifty-five thousand persons currently live in the area, he said.

Speaking for the motion, Mayor Hugh Curtis said: "The time has come to make an extension into the Royal Oak area to take advantage of attracting commercial development there.

"We must start to broaden our tax base which we all know has been so narrow and so costly for Saanich residents.

Need Projected

"The present sewer enterprise is on or ahead of schedule.

"We don't want to move in the Royal Oak area at the expense of other areas. It must wait its turn . . ." Curtis said.

The sewer enterprise area was established by a Saanich bylaw as a result of a referendum held during 1968. It is the area within which the municipality has undertaken to provide sewers within a five-year period.

In a recently-published report on residential development, the Saanich planning committee said: "It (the sewer enterprise area) can be readily extended to meet future demands as its main trunks are based on the anticipated demand for a 50-year period.

Project Excluded

"In view of the large supply of land within the sewer enterprise, a decision to expand should not be taken prematurely," the report said.

The area to be sewered under present plans stops just short of Royal Oak.

It does not include the 713-acre Broadmead housing estate and its $13.1 million regional shopping centre which is destined for the east side of Patricia Bay Highway.

Nor does it include the existing commercial areas of Royal Oak, or the site of a planned $10 million shopping centre at Glanford and Patricia Bay Highway.

Council and its public works committee have discussed several times the question of sewer expansion in this area which is the key to a number of future developments.

Saanich Gives Approval

Firemen Qualified In Heart Case Care

Use of a defibrillator and two drugs by firefighters who operate the Saanich fire department's ambulance was unanimously approved Monday night by Saanich council.

The defibrillator and therapy, involving use of the drugs atrophine and xylocaine, could be administered by firemen on their way to hospital with a patient suffering an acute coronary heart attack.

A defibrillator changes an abnormal heart pattern to a normal one by electrical shock.

Council also passed a motion commending Saanich Fire Chief Joe Sutherland for his advice and assistance throughout the training program.

In a letter to council, Dr. George Woodwark, an instructor in the course, said the firemen are proficient in the use of the defibrillator and drugs.

The Saanich municipal ambulance crews now are trained to the level of a nurse who works in a hospital's heart ward — that is to say, they are prepared to cope with almost any type of cardiac emergency without the immediate supervision of a doctor.

In that respect, the Saanich ambulance service is the first in Canada.

Two years ago, the municipal ambulance was equipped with an electrocardiograph that radios patterns of the patient's heart behavior to Royal Jubilee's coronary care ward. Hospital staff was able to make an early diagnosis of the illness and thus have the correct drugs and equipment awaiting the patient's arrival in the emergency ward.

The electrocardiograph is so compact and portable that it can be taken right into the patient's home. Once the electrodes have been attached to the chest, they start sending signals to a receiver in the ambulance, where another transmitter amplifies the signal for reception at Jubilee.

There were questions raised about the legal liability of the municipality of Saanich. It was asked: To what degree would Saanich be responsible if someone claimed he was inadequately or improperly cared for?

However, in recent months one legal opinion that has been offered suggests Saanich would be liable, now that it has the trained personnel and the equipment, if it did not provide such care.

There also have been suggestions that residents of Greater Victoria in addition to those of Saanich might consider cardiac ambulance care as a legitimate service. However, this is a question that has not been raised at any other municipal council or at the Capital Regional Board.

Lightning Blazes

One forestry official terms the recent outbreak of fires at Lake Cowichan "the biggest since 1963."

More than 15 lightning fires were reported Saturday and Sunday. Ten were controlled by the Lake Cowichan forest service while the remainder was turned over to Port Alberni, Parksville and Duncan.

Ten fires in the Lake Cowichan district did not cover a total of more than one acre.

"Three were patrolled from the air and extinguished themselves; six have crews working on them now, and the other was extinguished by a forest service airplane," said the spakesman Monday.

Missing Boats Part of Plot?

Is there a stolen boat ring operating in the Sidney area?

Speculation about such an illegal operation arose Monday after the RCMP reported two boats stolen from the Lands End Road area and said one apparently was used to tow away the other, as happened during the July 17-18 weekend when two boats were taken from Breakwater Marina at the foot of Beacon Avenue.

More valuable of the two taken this past weekend was a $5,000, 17-foot inboard-outboard Glascraft vessel with a full canvas top. It has a white hull, cream top, 155-horsepower motor and number 14K19274. The owner is David Duncan, 822 Lands End.

The other was a $300 yellow glass fibre catamaran, which has no motor and is owned by Alfred Deans, 1565 Lands End.

The pleasure craft taken July 17-18 were a 17-foot Thermoglas vessel and an 18-foot cabin cruiser, worth a total of $6,500. That, with the two taken more recently, makes a total loss of $11,800.

Sidney RCMP said an RCMP boat made a thorough search of the Sidney area Monday without success. They said the two boats taken earlier were still missing and declined to speculate on whether stolen boats were being taken to the U.S. or to another part of B.C. — but they asked that any information be phoned to their office at 656-3931.

Talks Continue

Settlement Hopes Rise For Police

By BRUCE LOWTHER

Hope for an early settlement of the long-deadlocked Victoria police contract dispute rose Monday when the two sides spent more than seven hours talking to a B.C. mediation officer, then agreed to continue the talks later this week.

Mediation officer Clark Gilmour spent the time shuttling between two offices in the Victoria police station, with a six-member group in one representing the police union and four men in the other representing the police commission.

When it was over, commission spokesman Edwin E. Pearlman and union official Kenneth Horsman issued separate statements which said the same thing — various areas were explored as a basis for settlement, most of them wages, and the talks probably will continue Wednesday.

Gilmour is scheduled to conduct a similar shuttle service the same day between the Saanich police association and commission.

Pearlman said no wage offers were made by the city group but no other details of the talks were given.

Wages are the key to the dispute, with all four police unions in Greater Victoria seeking pay parity with Vancouver-area police and independent arbitration rather than the B.C. Mediation Commission, if Gilmour can't work out settlements acceptable to all.

Victoria's last offer was a two-year pact, twice as long as the union requested, with a 5-per-cent raise each six months. The last Saanich proposal was 5 per cent each six months for 18 months. The contracts will be retroactive to last Jan. 1.

'Telling About Jesus'

Several people in a car were driving by 4973 Old West Saanich Road in Saanich Monday morning on their way to a funeral when five people with two dogs suddenly ran out of the driveway there and blocked the vehicle.

Those facts were given Monday afternoon in Victoria Provincial Court to Judge William Ostler by prosecutor John Macintyre after one of the five, Randy Cummins, 24, of 4973 Old West Saanich, pleaded guilty to a charge of causing a disturbance by impeding other persons.

Cummins' explanation of what the prosecutor called a bizarre case was : "We were out there stopping traffic . . . we were trying to tell the people about Jesus."

Macintyre said a girl stood screaming and waving her arms in front of the car while Cummins "climbed in to the car on top of the driver, shouting, swearing and waving a Bible in one hand."

'Souls Safe'

He said the people in the car pleaded to be allowed to go and the driver eventually worked loose and called police. Before Cummins was subdued in a struggle, said Macintyre, he was seen by police instructing an Alsatian dog to "attack" and "kill."

Cummins told the judge he and the girl "felt those people's souls were on the way to destruction and we wanted to stop them. tell them."

He added: "I believe the people that know Jesus Christ, their souls are not on the way to destruction. Their souls are safe. I know if they (those in the car) had found that way, I was hoping they would be there with me, trying to tell others."

Ostler remanded Cummins to today for sentence and asked for a doctor's report. He did this after telling Cummins:

"You see, any cause, no matter how worthy or how much one believes in it, does not justify breaking the law or disturbing other persons in this way."
